Talk 'Useless!' Italy Cries at U.S. Plea for China Peace

Britain, France Support Norman Davis' Stand as Parley Opens.

Orient Strife Held Peril to the World

Collapse of Conference Feared; Concessions to Japanese Loom.

By the United Press.

Brussels, Nov. 3.—Italy served notice today that efforts to settle the Sino-Japanese war were "useless" in a conference at which Japan is not represented, and the ultimatum threatened to wreck the Far Eastern Peace Conference before it got well under way.

The United States, Great Britain and France clashed with Italy when Norman H. Davis, America's dapper "roving ambassador," opened the conference with a warning that war threatens the whole world as long as hostilities rage in China.

To Italy, Germany and Japan he extended a word of caution—without mentioning them by name—that their policies of economic self-sufficiency are "conducive to the threat to peace."

Davis, speaking in a slow Tennessee drawl before the delegates of 19 nations gathered in the marble salon of Belgium's Academy of Arts and Sciences, urged an "equitable adjustment" of the Chinese-Japanese war.

Tributes Paid Roosevelt.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Britain and Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos of France came staunchly and eloquently to Davis' side with glowing tributes to President Roosevelt's peace pronouncements.

The Italian delegate, Count Luigi Aldrovandi-Marescotti, who carried the instructions of Premier Mussolini, served notice, however, that he was there to defend Japan and that the aims of the conference—to seek an armistice in the Orient—were "useless."

He struck out at President Roosevelt's suggestion for a "quarantine" of aggressor nations and said that peace could be restored in the Far East only by direct negotiations between Japan and China.

Japan Stays Away.

The Italian announcement was almost identical to the position taken by Japan in boycotting the present conference of signatories and adherents to the Nine-Power Washington Treaty of February 6, 1922, of which she is a signer. The badly battered treaty sought to guarantee China's territorial and political integrity.

Ends In Discouragement.

It was apparent to observers that the Italian stand might wreck the conference, and Davis, Eden and Delbos met at the American delegation's headquarters tonight to seek a means of sidestepping that threat.

The meeting ended in discouragement and Great Britain was reported to be paving the way for possible collapse of the peace parley.

The British Ambassador to Brussels, Sir Robert Henry Clive, conferred with Japanese Ambassador Sayuro Kurusu and was understood to have attempted to learn whether Japan would attend "another conference at some future date and discuss a Chinese-Japanese settlement on a broader basis" than the present one might attempt.

The British delegates believed the proposal might enable Japan to "save face" and at the same time

Chinese Extend Shanghai Lines, Hint Army May Abandon City

New Strategy Believed to Include Evacuation of Industrial and Native Areas, Though Troops Are Seeking to Strengthen Positions.

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai (Thursday), Nov. 4.—Chinese expanded and strengthened their positions today under pounding Japanese artillery fire despite intimations that the defense might abandon the Shanghai front.

Rumors of impending large scale changes in the positions of the contending forces in Shanghai persisted. Of increasing prominence was a theory that the Chinese were on the verge of evacuating Pootung, the industrial area across the Whangpoo River from the International Settlement, and the thronged native area, Nantao, south of the French concession.

The Chinese admittedly were formulating new strategy and the belief was that they might abandon the Shanghai peninsula entirely to Japanese control. There was no evidence, however, that such a step yet was under way as the Chinese entrenched themselves more firmly both to the south and west of the foreign areas.

Could Block Advance.

(The Chinese, by shifting their lines inland from Shanghai, still would obstruct the advance of the Japanese westward toward Nanking.

(When Chinese forces withdrew from Chapei last week Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek declared, "our real defenses are to the west.")

Japanese air raiders in the interior, central and south China were continuing attacks on railroads and towns virtually from the Yangtze River to Canton, great South China port, Chinese declared. They reported additional scores of noncombatants killed in the bombardments.

A group of influential Chinese civic, educational, agricultural, labor and commercial organizations jointly besought the Brussels Conference to take collective measures against Japan.

Negotiations through a third power to avoid endangering foreign and native noncombatants in the

G. O. P. Divided Over Off-Year Party Meeting

Borah, Townsend Condemn Proposal on Eve of Committee Decision.

By Robert C. Albright.

Serious Republican cleavage over proposals for an off-year Republican convention developed here and in Chicago last night as Congressional Republicans opened fire at the midterm G. O. P. conference plan of former President Herbert Hoover.

On the eve of the Republican National Committee meeting in Chicago tomorrow to vote the plan up or down, Senator William E. Borah, Idaho Republican, called the proposal, "dictatorship in politics," and demanded Republican reorganization "from the bottom, not from the top."

He was joined here by Senator John G. Townsend, jr., of Delaware, chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, who opposed "any action at this time that might jeopardize the chances for election of Republican Representatives and Senators in 1938."

Ill Effect Feared.

In Chicago, Representative Joseph W. Martin, of Massachusetts, chairman of the House Republican campaign committee, reiterated his opposition and warned the off-year convention would have an "ill effect" upon Congressional campaign prospects.

Sponsors of the convention plan claim the national committee will vote to name a committee of "distinguished Republicans" to formulate policies and agenda to be laid before the proposed 1938 convention. Party leaders, particularly the Congressional contingent, have split on the plan now being vigorously pushed by Hoover and Republican National Committee Chairman John D. Hamilton. The latter wants to let the country know "where the Republican Party stands" before the 1938 Congressional elections.

Borah here yesterday compared the proposal with "the play of

Medical Society Asks End of Delay On Health Center

The District of Columbia Medical Society last night through its executive committee demanded immediate construction of the District Health Center authorized by the last session of Congress.

The committee's action, taken at a meeting in the society's headquarters at 1718 M street northwest, was unanimous.

"Congress appropriated the funds for this health center," declared Dr. Thomas E. Nell, society president. "The site has been selected and approved. Ways and means should be found to begin building the center without untoward delay."

Token Price Raised to 6 For 50 Cents

Universal Free Transfers Ordered; $1.25 Pass Unchanged.

Tickets Now Good on All Bus Lines Except Hains Point.

By James D. Secrest.

Token fares on street cars and buses were raised five-sixths of a cent yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission in an order that was made effective last midnight, it was explained, "to forestall speculation."

One-third of the car and bus riding public will pay the higher rate, 50 cents for six tokens, instead of 30 cents for four.

At the same time, thousands of bus riders who have been paying 10 cents cash will find their fares lower, as the tokens will be acceptable on all buses except the special Hains Point service.

Weekly pass users will be unaffected by the change, as the rate remains at $1.25. They constitute approximately half of the Capital Transit Co.'s patrons.

The commission's order, which follows an investigation that extended more than 16 months, also provides for universal free transfers for the first time in recent mass transportation history in Washington.

New Cars Suggested.

While raising the token rate in compliance with a company petition, the commission suggested, but did not direct, the company to add new street cars, replacing obsolete equipment, at least at the rate of 50 a year. It pointed out that even though local loans may not be available, the North American Co., which controls the local railway, has ample resources to furnish whatever money is needed.

For the purpose of the order, the commission stated that the fair value of the Capital Transit Co. properties within the District is "not less than $23,000,000," as of May 1, 1937. However, the commission intends to declare a formal valuation of the company's properties shortly, and it probably will exceed this figure.

The increased fare is expected to add $254,114 to the revenue of the company, which in 1936 earned $717,925. This will give the railway a return of slightly more than 4 per cent, which the commission stated is not a fair return.

Wage increases amounting to $1,225,000 a year since the merger and imposition of $66,000 in social security taxes were cited by the commission as reasons for increases in the company's operating costs.

Repercussions Expected.

Repercussions from citizens associations and in Congress are expected as a result of the order, but the commission believes that its order will stand up in the courts because of the low rate of return of the company. Complaints were general last night among street car riders who buy tokens.

Roosevelt to See LaGuardia Today En Route to D. C.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 3 (AP).—President Roosevelt will be visited by Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia at the Chief Executive's town house in New York City tomorrow.

White House aides announced tonight that the Republican-Fusionist victor for re-election in New York's mayoral race was the only one on Mr. Roosevelt's appointment list during his three-hour stay in the city, en route to Washington.

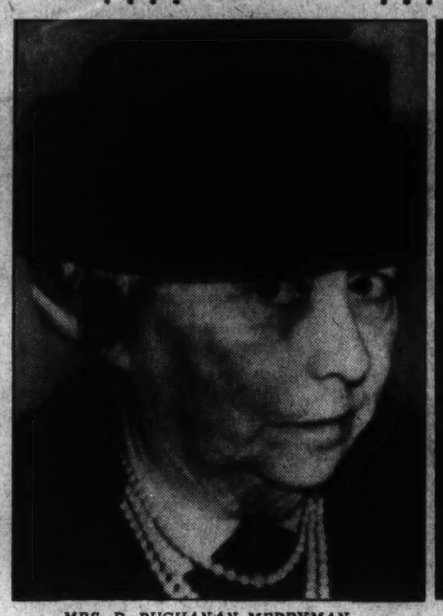
LaGuardia has been an enthusiastic supporter of many Roosevelt policies. In this year's mayoralty campaign, Mr. Roosevelt refrained from any public statements on the race, but Jeremiah Mahoney, Democratic candidate, was supported by Postmaster General Farley and Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York.

Lindbergh Writes Of Returning Soon

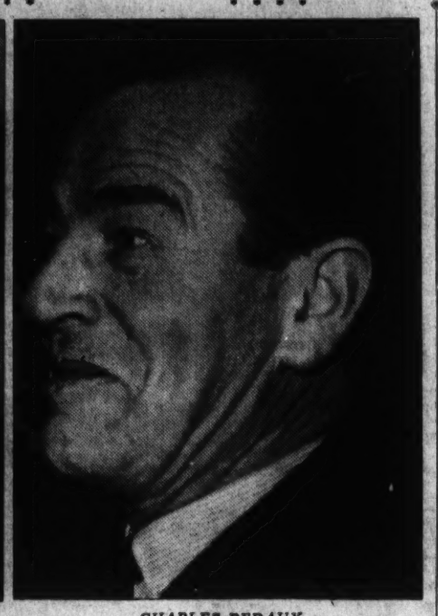
St. Louis, Nov. 3 (AP).—Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, one of Charles A. Lindbergh's backers in his epochal flight to Paris ten years ago, said tonight he had received a letter from Col. Lindbergh in which "he expressed a desire to come back to St. Louis—and very soon."

Col. Lindbergh and his family have been living in England since December, 1935. Reports have been published that he planned to give up United States citizenship and become a British subject.

Windsor Menaces U.S. Labor, Union Warns, Attacking Way Hitler, Bedaux Treat Workers



MRS. D. BUCHANAN MERRYMAN.



CHARLES BEDAUX.

Bedaux Aunt Bessie's Guest; Windsors to Tour Greenbelt

Itinerary in Washington Will Include Dinner at White House, Entertainment by Lady Lindsay; Couple Will Arrive Armistice Day.

The Duke of Windsor's best American friend, Charles Bedaux, New York financier, was a dinner guest last night of Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman, the Duchess of Windsor's Aunt Bessie, in her apartment at 1911 R street northwest.

The dinner, coupled with Bedaux's consultation during the day with the State Department's chief of protocol, George T. Summerlin, the man whom the department has intrusted with arrangements for the duke's American visit, lifted from a haze of rumors and denials several pretty well-established facts about the royal tour:

Unless the dinner was merely a reciprocal courtesy on the part of the two people in the world closest to the minds and hearts of the former British monarch and his American wife, it means Edward and Wallis will stay in Aunt Bessie's modest apartment at least part of the time they are in Washington. An earlier report had them stopping in a ducal suite in one of the city's more sumptous hotels, which is still a probability.

Will Be Here Two Days.

The immediate destination of the duke and duchess after disembarking from the liner Bremen in New York on Armistice Day will be Washington. This was established after Bedaux's interview at the State Department and in a revelation of a part of the tour by the royal couple's representatives in New York.

Edward and Wallis will be in Washington for two days. They will launch their study of life in the lower incomes by a visit to Greenbelt, the Government's model community in nearby Maryland, probably on November 12, the same date Lady Lindsay, wife of the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, has marked on her calendar for the embassy dinner in honor of their royal highnesses.

May Make Second Visit.

Washington may be host to their royal presences a second time, probably a week after the first visit and after the duke and duchess have been given a close-up of low-income centers a bit more industrial than Greenbelt or New York State's

Returns Please Both Hamilton And John Lewis

G. O. P. Chief Satisfied With Tammany Blow; C.I.O. Points for 1938.

By the Associated Press.

The Republican Party and labor both declared they saw encouraging indications yesterday in the returns from Tuesday's State and municipal elections.

John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican National Committee, called the results "tremendously satisfactory," expressed pleasure at a one-seat gain in the House of Representatives and thought the "Democratic high command" could derive little joy from the voting in New York City.

John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chief and chairman of Labor's Nonpartisan League, said returns showed "distinct progress for labor." His organization, he added, will "now devote its attention" to next year's Congressional elections.

Lewis made no direct mention of a possible third party in 1940. It was known, however, that third-party speculation centered about New York's Mayor LaGuardia. LaGuardia is well liked by Lewis and has strong labor backing.

New Deal Rebuff Seen.

However, Alex Rose, New York executive secretary of the American Labor Party, which helped reelect LaGuardia, said in a telegram to President Roosevelt that "support of New Deal policies is still one of the basic principles of our party."

"I resent the interpretations made by the reactionary elements in the Republican Party that the people of the city have repudiated the New Deal," the telegram read. "New York is the greatest New Deal stronghold in the Nation and the American Labor Party is still its stanchest adherent."

Meanwhile, Republican leaders in Congress hailed election results as

Big Fighting Craft Circles as Smaller One Dives at It Repeatedly.

By the Associated Press.

Seattle, Nov. 3.—Five navalflers were killed and two injured today in a collision of two fighting planes 3,000 feet above Boeing Field.

Apparently trapped in the ruins of their big Navy amphibian, the five fell to their deaths. The other two men, in a smaller naval plane, leaped to safety with parachutes.

The dead:

Lieut. Henry B. Twohy, Spokane, Wash.

Aviation Cadet K. F. Schmidt, Springfield, Minn.

Aviation Cadet Kenneth Rhuddy, Seattle, former star mile-runner of the University of Washington.

Machinist Mate M. McCroddan, New Farrenton, Fla.

Radio Operator R. E. Reagan, Grand Rapids, Mich.

J. D. Goodsell, aviation chief machinist mate, Bremerton, Wash., and W. S. Bowman, seaman, Alexandria, Va., received slight hurts in their parachute descents.

Civilian witnesses said the accident occurred while the planes were high above the airport, the larger plane circling while the smaller made repeated dives.

Goodsell said:

"It happened so fast I don't know what went wrong."

Col. J. Vinton Birch, resident engineer for the Fisher Body plant, said both planes seemingly went into power dives, each pilot trying to get under the other.

"They came together with a terrific crash," he said. "The wings of the big plane seemed to fold back and her pontoons fell off. Great pieces of fabric ripped from both planes and were wafted out into the sky.

"The small plane fell like a plummet, with no spin. Almost as it started falling, one man bailed out with a parachute. A moment later the second man leaped."

Parachutes were strapped to the bodies of the five men when they were taken from the wreckage.

Friend, His 'Publicity Agent,' Described as Arch-Enemy.

'Don't Be Taken in by Slumming Parties,' Resolution Cautions.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Nov. 3.—The Baltimore Federation of Labor tonight unanimously adopted a resolution "condemning" the Duke of Windsor for coming to America with Charles Bedaux, "archenemy of labor," as his guide, and expressing disfavor of the duke's association with Chancellor Adolph Hitler in Germany.

The resolution "warned" organized labor in Baltimore not to be "taken in" by "slumming parties professing to help and to study labor."

It was introduced over the signature of Joseph P. McCurdy, president, and Frank Meeder, secretary, of the federation, an American Federation of Labor affiliate.

Harm Laid to Bedaux.

Of the Duchess of Windsor, formerly of Baltimore, the resolution said that she, while a resident here, "in no way showed the slightest concern or sympathy for the problems of labor or of the poor and needy."

"This is very important," McCurdy said when he told the meeting of the resolution. "This fellow who is going to conduct the tour of the former British King in this country—this publicity agent he has—is a notorious antilabor systematizer.

"This man, this Charles Bedaux, created more harm and havoc here in America with his speed-up and stretch-out system . . . than any other thing that has cropped out against the labor movement in many years.

Text of the resolution follows:

"Whereas: Press reports have told us that the former British King and his wife are to visit this country for the avowed purpose of studying housing and labor problems, and

"Whereas: Immediately preceding this visit the former King and wife have visited Nazi Germany and have studied labor under the personal guidance of Dr. Ley, the man who ordered and ruthlessly directed the destruction of all German free trade unions; the man who is personally responsible for the imprisonment and slaughter of honest, courageous, God-fearing leaders of free men, and

"Whereas: Following a study of labor, under the guidance of labor's foe, Dr. Ley, the former King and his wife continued their study of labor problems in conference with Adolf Hitler, the world's most notorious foe of democracy, and of freedom of conscience, and

"Whereas: The former King and

A division of loyal forces left Asuncion this morning to reinforce the loyal regiment already at Concepcion. A state of war was declared in Asuncion yesterday, after the uprising, which was said, however, to have been limited to Concepcion.

Vigilantes to Roam at Night As Petters Upset Glen Echo

Affectionate couples who choose Glen Echo for their trysts had better mask the license plates of their automobiles to avoid irate citizens who have formed a band of voluntary vigilantes to do away with the nuisance.

With Henry I. Pahlow as president and Clarence W. Sands as secretary, 12 members of the Glen Echo Heights Citizens Association have launched an antinecking crusade. Their procedure will be to tour Glen Echo after dark, jotting down the license numbers of parked automobiles and reporting them to the police.

Chief offenders are Washington residents who "come out Massachusetts avenue, park along the roads, turn their lights off and even come up in our lanes at all hours of the night," according to Secretary Sands.

He added that while the vigilantes "do not wish to fill anyone's heart with terror, they are determined to maintain law and order." Everything will be conducted in a "gentlemanly and neighborly fashion," but the vigilantes mean business.

The association also is against people who cross the District line to dump their trash; the motorists who go speeding through Glen Echo, "forgetting that there is a settlement here," and persons who wantonly cut down trees.

"A citizen has some rights, even in Maryland," Sands maintains.

"The chairman of the vigilante committee is a member of the American Legion, imbued with patriotic and civic pride," Sands said of Pahlow. Formation of the committee resulted indirectly from conferences with County Commissioner Robert D. Hagner and Chief of Police J. William Garrick, of Montgomery County.

Brazil Drops Coffee Control Aimed at Pegging Prices

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 3.—Brazil's seven-year effort to control coffee prices collapsed today, and the nation prepared to pour into world markets a three-billion-pound crop.

Thus came to an end one of the weirdest experiments of modern times—an experiment in which for seven years Brazil has purchased from the farmer, then destroyed, about 40 per cent of its annual crop.

Forerunner of crop control and price-fixing plans in the United States and elsewhere, the aim of Brazil's ambitious program has been to balance world supply with demand.

Linked with Brazil in the control plan was Colombia, which agreed to acept a share of the cost of keeping surplus coffee from reaching world markets. But Colombia failed to co-operate, or so Brazil charged, the Brazilian national coffee department was driven into a debt of more than $72,000,000, and today the government decided the strain was too great.

The action came as a shock to world coffee exchanges. In New York and elsewhere prices dropped.

Acting to prevent damaging speculation, the Brazilian Finance Ministry ordered exchanges at Rio de Janeiro, Santos and Victoria closed while the Government works out a new coffee program.

The Government promised also to provide banking assistance, reduce taxes and take other remedial measures to speed the export of Brazil's huge coffee crop and as-

30 Oil Companies Question Black Right on Bench

Constitutional Objections Are Raised and Bias in SEC Case Charged.

A third challenge of Justice Hugo L. Black's eligibility to sit on the Supreme Court was filed with court officials yesterday, when three Florida oil companies petitioned for reconsideration of complaints against Securities and Exchange Commission subpenaing of telegrams.

The petition raised the same Constitutional objections to Black's seating previously brought before the court by Albert Levitt, former special assistant to the Attorney General, and Patrick Henry Kelly, Boston lawyer.

The court rejected the Levitt and Kelly motions on October 11, contending they lacked a substantial interest.

Interest Alleged.

Black apparently participated in the Supreme Court rejection a week later of the Florida companies suit to invalidate the securities act. They sought to establish "interest" by contending Black "could not sit in judgment . . . as an unbiased, unprejudiced, fair and impartial judge."

Black, as chairman of the lobby committee, favored use of telegrams obtained by the Communications Commission from parties under investigation.

Commenting on this, the petition filed yesterday said "Justice Black recorded himself as being definitely attitudinized in favor of the right of a Government agency to coerce private telegrams from a telegraph company by the use of a blanket subpena.

The petition for rehearing renewed the request for Supreme Court review of lower court rulings upholding seizure of private telegrams by agents for the SEC, and blamed stock market "instability" on doubt as to legality of the securities act.

Basic Questions Raised.

The petiton was filed by the Ryan Florida Corporation, of Tampa, Income Royalties Co., of St. Petersburg, and Florida Tex Oil Co., of St. Petersburg.

Constitutional questions as to Black's eligibility, on which the court was asked to rule were:

Did retirement of Justice Van Devanter legally create a vacancy on the court, and has Black a right to sit if no vancancy exists?

As a member of the Congress which passed the Supreme Court retirement act, did not Black disqualify himself by his part in increasing the emoluments of court office?

The companies contend Black is ineligible on both points. Observers pointed out that Black might not participate in consideration of the petition for rehearing, in which case the court might again decline to pass on the constitutional questions by contending that Black's eligibility was not involved in the case.

Not only Black's status, but validity of the SEC is at state in the companies' second challenge of the commission's authority to issue blanket subpenas for telegraphic correspondence. The petition said enforcement of the securities act is "one of the costliest burdens to the American people of all Federal regulatory acts for which Federal tax money is expended."

Cites Market Instability.

It added:

"The present instability existing on the large stock exchanges throughout the country, of which this court must take judicial notice, is believed to be due, at least in a large part, to the uncertainty as to whether Federal regulation of securities and securities exchanges is constitutionally authorized."

Objecting to Black's participation in consideration of the petition, the companies said the Alabaman has "settled views" and his views on blanket subpenas "were and are such as to render Justice Black unable to dissociate his strong and fixed bent of mind toward said questions from a fair consideration of these clauses."

They asked that Van Devanter be called back to the bench to sit on the case in lieu of Black—that unless Black is barred he would "in effect be sitting in judgment upon his own qualifications and . . . such participation would also render void any decision or order entered thereon."

The petition made no reference to Black's former membership in the Ku Klux Klan, around which a furious national controversy raged when Black ascended to the bench.

IDAHO'S TWO SENATORS, William E. Borah (Republican), and James P. Pope (Democrat), differed yesterday on the amount of work the forthcoming special session will be able to accomplish. Borah said it is "inconceivable" Congress can dispose of the President's "must" program during the session and that he will be surprised if the farm bill is enacted before Christmas.

On the side of optimism, however, Pope said he expected some opposition to the farm bill but that it could be disposed of in good time.

Airport Rules May Be Finally Settled Today

Civic Groups in Fight to Protect Gravelly Point Field Site.

A final solution of the problem of flight regulation at Washington Airport may be forthcoming today, Fred D. Fagg, jr., director of the Bureau of Air Commerce, said yesterday.

Meanwhile, it was learned that a determined drive is under way by local civic organizations to protect flying operations at the projected Gravelly Point air terminal.

The Aero Club of Washington has sent letters to the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the Bureau of Air Commerce protesting the erection of a Bureau of Public Roads laboratory on the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway a few hundred yards from Gravelly Point terminal site.

Clarence Miller, chairman of the aviation committee of the Board of Trade, aid yesterday he intends to inform Secretary of Agriculture Wallace that his group is opposed to construction of the building.

In his statement concerning the operation of the present terminal, Fagg said, "We have completed our conferences with all interested parties and now are considering final action on the requests for both lightening the present restrictions and for the imposition of even more rigid control of transport operations.

Building Not Begun.

Although he declined to state what action would be taken, it is understood that the present regulations, restricting planes of more than 15,000 pounds to the long runway, will remain in operation.

Under the present system of operation Douglas DC-2 and DC-2 planes weighing approximately 18,000 and 23,000 pounds, are compelled to use Bolling Field in stormy weather.

Investigation yesterday disclosed that although the contract for the construction of the laboratory at Gravelly Point has been awarded, the builder has not yet been ordered to proceed with the project.

John Nolan, jr., planning director of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, admitted last night that his agency is "working closely with the Bureau of Public Roads with the view to co-ordinating the airport and testing projects" but refused to say whether this action is responsible for the construction delay.

"The President has indorsed Gravelly Point as an airport site, therefore it seems that the Secretary of Agriculture should go slow in approving the building of a plant so close by and at such an elevation as to imperil flying there," he added.

Hull Drops Cares Of State by Putting At Carolina Resort

Pinehurst, N. C., Nov. 3 (AP).—Cordell Hull finds in a putter relaxation from the cares of office—but he is not a golfer.

The 66-year-old Secretary of State, here with Mrs. Hull for his first vacation in 18 months, said today that putting "provides a better mental relaxation than merely walking, because it requires concentration and keeps the mind off other matters."

The Secretary and Mrs. Hull plan to spend two weeks here, but he said they were ready to return to Washington earlier if need arose.

Twice daily Hull walks about a mile from his hotel to a golf club. Usually he wears a business suit and carries only a putter, which he often uses as a cane.

At the club he spends an hour on the putting course each morning and afternoon.

Sprague Flouts Return to Gold For the Present

Harvard Monetary Adviser Fears Stabilization in 'Unstable World.'

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Nov. 3.—Dr. O. M. W. Sprague, of Harvard University, a former New Deal monetary adviser, told the Foreign Trade Council today "to stabilize currencies in a highly unstable world does not get you anywhere."

"Sooner or later the system will break down," he said.

"The fact that countries went off the gold standard for the first time in the history of man in times of peace makes it doubly important that when we return it should be on a firm basis.

"That is not a doctrine that is widely held at the present time."

Bankers Split on Gold.

Dr. Sprague, who spoke informally at a banking session, said the council's banking committee was wise in not recommending the immediate stabilization of currencies.

Previously W. A. Mitchell, of J. P. Morgan & Co., reporting for the committee on stabilization of international currencies, said it did not offer "any suggestions regarding the redistribution of the gold now concentrated in the hands of a comparatively few nations." On the other hand, Fred I. Kent, Bankers Trust Co. (New York) director, sent a message to the meeting asserting:

"At the moment it is the belief of business men and economists that the price of gold will have to be reduced somewhat from its present high valuation to better meet business and trade needs of trading countries."

Trade Program Praised.

George S. Messersmith, Assistant Secretary of State, hailed the Government's trade agreements program tonight as "perhaps the only single, important, constructie element at work in this disordered world to bring back order into dislocated commercial markets."

W. F. Gephart, St. Louis banker and president of the Bankers Association for Foreign Trade, told the council "bankruptcy" threatens civilization if "most of the nations" do not revise thair commercial policies.

Straus Terms U.S. 'Backward' In Slum Work

State and City Housing Officials to Convene Here Nov. 22.

Nathan Straus, new administrator of the United States Housing Authority, created under the Wagner-Steagall act, yesterday announced a conference of State and municipal housing officials will be held here November 22, to be supplemented by other conferences on a wider basis later.

After characterizing the United States as the "most backward nation in the civilized world" in dealing with slums, Straus emphasized certain general principles to be followed by the new agency in providing Federal subsidies, as follows:

The U. S. H. A. will not entertain new applications for Federal grants and loans for 60 days, because "we want to get started slowly and get our policies set."

Restrictions on the new homes to be built under the much amended Wagner act require expenses to be cut to the bone, even to the abandonment of cross-ventilation of apartments, which Straus has favored for years.

Maximum rent levels in big cities like New York, Chicago and Detroit under the law must be kept to $5 and $5.25 a room, including utilities.

Construction costs will be kept to $1,200 a room—an amount so low, Straus indicated that mass building for "whole neighborhoods" must be undertaken.

Confidence that if the buildings were confined to slum-clearance projects that Government subsidies would not compete with private enterprise was voiced by Straus. He said this had been the experience in every country which had undertaken such building on a large scale—England, Sweden, Holland and Switzerland.

"All human experiences," said Straus, "has been that developments of the type proposed do not prevent the building or purchase of private houses. The law under which we will operate makes it a condition not to go above $1,000 a room in most cities and $1,200 in cities of more than 500,000 population. I take it to be the intention of Congress to get rents down to what slum dwellers can pay—in fact, they provide for the lowest income class."

P. U. C. Car-Bus Fare Order Issued

By order of the District Public Utilities Commission issued November 3d, fares on our cars and buses will hereafter be as follows:

Single cash fare, 10 cents. Unchanged

Tokens, six for 50 cents, instead of four for 30 cents. An increase of five-sixths of a cent a ride, one and two-thirds cents per round trip, a total increase of a dime for six round trips weekly.

School fares, 3 cents. Unchanged

Weekly passes, $1.25. Unchanged

5 cents, no transfer, on Bureau of Engraving, Chevy Chase and Bureau of Standards loops. Unchanged.

By the commission's order these fares are made uniform, with universal free transfers, on all cars and buses in the District, except the Hains Point line.

It is hoped, by Commission and Company, that the slight increase in token fares will yield $254,000 yearly added revenue—enough to buy 16 new cars or 21 new buses of the finest type.

Church Leaders Promise Aid in Jobless Tally

Biggers, Administrator, Assured Help of Religious Groups.

Church leaders have assured John D. Biggers, unemployment census administrator, of the support of "every major faith and religious group in the United States" in his effort to make the census "a representative Nation-wide effort," Biggers announced yesterday.

Those named by Biggers as having written him assurances of cooperation were:

Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, senior bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Mgr. Michael J. Ready, general secretary of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

Dr. Lewis S. Mudge, executive head of the Presbyterian Church in the United States.

Dr. Ralph H. Long, executive director of the National Lutheran Council.

In addition, Samuel McCrea Cavert, general secretary of the Federal Council of Churches, wrote partly as follows, Biggers said:

"You will find the churches of our constituency ready and eager to give cordial support to your undertaking. I hope and believe that they will make a special point of co-operating with you by an announcement all over the country on Sunday, November 14, concerning the census which is to be taken during the following week. We sall be glad to collaborate with you in such ways as are appropriate for the churches in the furtherance of your plan."

Mgr. Ready was quoted in part as follows:

"Your appointment as administrator for the census offers you an extraordinary opportunity for serving the best interests of our country. The sad plight of the unemployed and partially unemployed during the past distressing years is a matter of grave concern to every worthy citizen. It is our prayer that your own labors will be blessed with success and that the census will be a guiding light of mercy for the Congress of the United States."

Belasco Show To Clear Profit For Lunch Fund

Matinees Sold Out But Night Proceeds Disappoint Chairman.

Matinee performances of the magic show being presented this week at the Belasco Theater for the benefit of the school lunch fund are being sold out consistently but evening performances are meeting less success, the committee announced last night.

Despite adult Washington's unsatisfactory response Chairman Charles W. Townsley expects the venture will show a "sizable profit" at end of the week. Tickets for the shows, twice daily, may be obtained by telephoning Western Union or from the Belasco box office.

Enthusiasm with which white school children have responded has resulted in a decision to hold a performance of the show in one of the colored high schools next week, it was announced.

Proceeds from the "silent guest" and "vanishing tea" campaigns have been coming in slowly but no less surely than the committee anticipated. A contribution from an unexpected source was received yesterday when a taxicab driver appeared at headquarters with funds he had collected by placing a milk bottle in his cab.

A $50 check from the City Fire Fighters' Association, with memberships of more than 600 firemen in the District, was delivered yesterday by Curtis E. McGhee, president of the association.

'Musquash' Caught In Va. Fur Trade Baffles Historians

The days when the deer and the antelope, to say nothing of "leopards," moose and "musquash," roamed the Virginia forests are recalled by recent publications of National Park Service wild-life specialists who are investigating the history of the Virginia fur trade in the early 1700's.

The lofty independence of British customs officials in the matter of spelling and biological classification and the flourishing fur trade between the Old Dominion and the back country seem to account for the listing in old records of many species of animals not native to Virginia.

The 20 "leopard" pelts whose receipt was noted in 1705 were probably skins from jaguars caught across the mountains in the Southwest. "Musquash" have been identified as muskrats, and the "woodshock" and "wolvering" are equally easy.

But "shemway" still has the National Park Service experts guessing. Chamois seems the likeliest answer, but researchers over in the Interior Department confess it's not too convincing.

Investigations into the early fur trading days also reveal the relation of Virginia's present highway system to the old game trails.

T. A. Hill to Speak.

T. Arnold Hill, director of the department of industrial relations of the National Urban League, will speak at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow at a meeting of the Phyllis Wheatley Association at the Phyllis Wheatley Y. W. C. A. Hill's subject will be "The Labor Union and the Negro."

Fists, Teeth Fly As Lawyers Fight At Court Building

Philip L. Ershler and Irwin Geiger, lawyers, engaged in a fist fight in the District Court Building Wednesday.

Cause of the battle was not learned by those who witnessed it.

Ershler is said to have lost some teeth, while Geiger sustained a bump on his head.

The fisticuffs started in the office of the assignment commissioner, where brawny John (Jack) Sullivan, former Georgetown University football player, acted as peacemaker. Later they were resumed with the resultant casualties.

Remington Rand Dance.

The fall dance of the Capital Club of Remington Rand, Inc., will be held tomorrow evening at the Indian Spring Country Club, it was announced yesterday by Fred Carmack, president. Ed Nye is chairman of the dance committee, whose members are Miss Mayo, George Miles, Joseph Tracy and Daniel McCrossan.

Peace With Socialists Indicated in Austria

Vienna, Nov. 3 (AP).—The Fatherland Front, Austria's only legal political organization, tonight announced that thousands of Socialists had joined the party before memberships closed November 1. Front officials said this indicated the passing of the hatred for Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg's government, which Socialists had felt since the bombing of Socialist homes in February, 1934.

It was estimated 3,000,000 persons, nearly half Austria's population, have joined the Front. Nonmembers may not hold government jobs and will be unable to vote in any future elections.

Forgers Rob N. Y. Bank Of $200,000; One Held

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—District Attorney William Geoghan of Brooklyn said tonight several New York banks had been robbed of $200,000 through withdrawals on forged signatures from dormant accounts. He said one suspect had been taken into custody in Concord, N. H., and indicated there were several other persons involved.

Danish Scholar May End Riddle Of Kent's Murals

Dr. William Thalvitzer, professor of Eskimo linguistics at the University of Copenhagen, probably will be the "supreme court" in l'affaire Kent.

It was learned yesterday that the Treasury's section of painting and sculpture wrote him a month ago asking for his translation of an inscription which Rockwell Kent painted on his mural in the Post-office Department Building. No reply has been received yet.

Dr. Thalvitzer is reputed to be the world's foremost authority on Eskimo dialects. Language experts in Washington have said there is no one in the United States qualified to confirm or spike the "unofficial" translation by Explorer Vihljalmur Stefansson, who said the message is a Kuskokwin Eskimo exhortation to Puerto Ricans to declare their independence.

Meantime, the feeling was rising yesterday among Federal officials concerned in the matter that the whole controversy, which has been raging for weeks, is a publicity coup conceived and executed by Kent and his close friend, Stefansson.

Crazed Giant Kills 2 to Test Suicide Nerve

Brother, Sister Slain in Bed; Jammed Gun Saves Rest of Family.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—A 24-year-old man, courage bolstered with liquor, told police he shot and killed two members of his family and critically wounded a third today because, "I figured if I killed somebody else, I'd have guts enough to kill myself."

Victims of six bullets from Samuel Economos' mail order pistol were a brother and two sisters, Alexander, 14, and Nancy, 15, who were killed, and Mary, 17, who was wounded.

Policeman Walter Tracey said Economos, son of a confectioner, told him he intended to kill two other brothers, James, 19, and George, 28, to make "the biggest funeral ever held here."

Brother Mental Patient.

A note, signed "Samuel," said he wished another brother, John, a mental patient at an institution in Manteno, Ill., "could have come along with us."

Handcuffed to a chair, the wild-eyed, 240-pound man clutched to his chest a pair of blue pajamas and a carton of cigarettes as he was questioned by Assistant State's Attorney Richard Regan. He told police:

"I started drinking gin about 2 o'clock . . . I guess I drank about 12 ounces . . . I went into the bedroom where Nancy was sleeping and shot her.

"Then I went over and shot Alex; he was sleeping, too.

Jammed Gun Saved Others.

"Then Mary started to scream . . . so I went over and shot her.

"Then I seen my brother Jim coming, and my mother started yelling so I climbed out a window on the back porch and was going to reload my gun, but two of the empty shells got stuck in there, and I couldn't get them out."

James Economos told police he and his brother, George, 28, were awakened by shots and found Samuel standing over the bodies of his victims.

"I threw a chair at Sam and knocked him down," James said, "and then Geroge disarmed him. We later found an empty liquor bottle."

Ex-Roosevelt Aide Appeals to Labor To Settle Quarrel

By the Associated Press.

Senator George Berry (Democratic), of Tennessee, former aide to President Roosevelt, has appealed to the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. to effect a quick reconciliation, informed persons said last night.

Both William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, received letters from the Senator today, but neither would comment.

This development, on the eve of resumption of deadlocked peace negotiations tomorrow, led to new speculation that the Administration might be ready to intervene in labor's 2-year-old conflict.

D. C. Tag Revenue Put at $1,200,000

An estimated $1,200,000 — revenue from the new motor vehicle weight tax—will be added to highway safety and maintenance funds next year, according to figures at the Department of Vehicles and Traffic yesterday.

Although faced with the highest registration fees in Washington's history, motorists have filed but few complaints with Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, he said last night.

Revenue from the 16 per cent increase in personal property taxes, he added, will go into the District's general fund.

Approximately 17,000 new tag applications were mailed to car owners yesterday. Throughout the day, long lines of motorists stood in line to change addresses after Van Duzer's warning that applications will not be mailed or issued until correct addresses are given.

Ad Club Applauds Barton's Election

At their first fall luncheon, members of the Washington Advertising Club yesterday approved unanimously election of Bruce Barton, New York advertising man, to Congress.

Charles J. Columbus, secretary, announced that a department and specialty stores group will begin the first of a series of informal discussions of business problems today at 12:30 p. m. at the Raleigh Hotel.

Other special groups already organized in the club include national advertising managers of Washington newspapers, radio, direct mail and agency representatives. George B. Kennedy, one of the directors of the club, is preparing a program for the direct mail group.

Coast Guardsman Gets Medal for Rescuing 2

Award of a silver life-saving medal to Boatswain's Mate Maurice F. Worth, U. S. Coast Guard, was announced yesterday by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau in recognition of Worth's heroism in rescuing a girl and man from drowning last August.

Worth plunged twice into the surf near Pamet River Coast Guard Station, Truro, Mass., to bring the drowning couple to shore, and then administered artificial respiration to the girl.

Bankhead to Offer New Control Act

Jasper, Ala., Nov. 3 (AP).—Differing with a house committee, Senator John H. Bankhead (Democrat), of Alabama, said today he would introduce another bill calling for compulsory cotton control at the special session of Congress opening November 15.

The House Agriculture Committee announced Monday it favored a voluntary control plan. Bankhead was the author of the repealed compulsory cotton control act which bore his name.

"I am sure that over 80 per cent of the cotton farmers favor Federal legislation that will enable them to adjust the supply of cotton and stabilize the price at a living level," Bankhead said.

Trial Reveals Two Attempts To Kill Stalin

13 Accused Trotsky Aides Confess Plots; 23 More to Die.

By the Associated Press.

Moscow, Nov. 3.—Disclosure of two attempts to assassinate Joseph Stalin, general secretary of the Communist Party, was reported today in the Tiflis newspaper, Dawn of the East.

It said details of plots against Stalin's life in 1933 and 1935 were given in the trial at Sukhumi of 13 prominent politicians of the Abkhazian Republic, in Georgia on the Black Sea.

Shots were fired in 1933 at the boat in which Stalin was cruising in Pitsunda Bay, but the attack failed because of the distance. In 1935, gunmen planned to ambush him, but arrived too late.

Confess Plot.

The Abkhazian defendants who faced death sentences were accused of taking orders from an alleged Trotskyist center in Moscow, headed by Gregory I. Piatikoff, who was executed February 1 with 12 others for treason.

They were reported to have confessed to a plot to kill Stalin and Laventry Berya, secretary of the Communist Party in Georgia, with the objective of separating Abkhazia from the Soviet Union and making it an independent capitalist republic "under protection of a foreign power."

The plotters ordered a frontier guard between Mussera and Pitsunda to fire on Stalin's boat when it passed the shore en route from Gagri to Mussera in 1933. The attack failed because the boat was too far off for accurate aim.

Second Plot Revealed.

Other testimony was given that a second attempt was to have been made on Stalin's life in September, 1935, from ambush, but an armed band arrived too late at the selected spot.

The newspaper said the defendants confessed they fomented unrest among peasants in Abkhazi which was to have been used as the start of an insurection.

The sentencing to death of 23 persons meanwhile was reported from other parts of Russia.

D. C. Trio Promoted At Military School

Robinson G. Minnick, 5015 Lowell street northwest, has been appointed a major in the Reserve Officers Training Corps at Fishburne Military School, Waynesboro, Va., it was announced yesterday by Maj. E. V. Kerr, professor of military science and tactics at the school.

Two other Washington students and one from Arlington were made cadet lieutenants in the school battalion. They are Robert Henning, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Henning, of Arlington; William A. Walsh, 3549 Warren street northwest, and Robert Westbrook, whose family moved from this city recently.

TAKE WEIGHT OFF TIRED FEET
Lose Fat The Easy Way—Without Starvation Diets, or Back-Breaking, Banding and Rolling Exercises.

If your feet and ankles feel tired and ache all over—because you are carrying too much fat—do something about it. Try the treatment that has helped millions to reduce excess weight.

There's a reason why so many people find dieting slow and often times futile in reducing. The reason, doctors say, is often because a little gland is not working right.

All the blood in your body goes through this tiny gland sixteen times every day. If it doesn't pour into the blood stream about one and one-half drops of vital fluid every 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat. This fluid helps Nature to "burn up" excess food and fatty tissue in much the same way as a good "draft" acts in a furnace.

Now, physicians combat this condition by feeding this gland the substance it lacks—and millions of pounds of excess fat has been wiped out in this way.

Marmola Prescription Tablets are based on the same method used by doctors. So don't waste your time or money striving to reduce with starvation diets or back-breaking exercises. Start the Marmola treatment today that millions have used successfully to get rid of excess fat. The formula is in every box so you know just what you are taking. Don't wait—get a box of Marmola today from your druggist. Adv.

Facts Withheld In 2d Autopsy On Davidson

Stafford County, Va., Jury to Get Findings in Hearing Monday.

A second autopsy on the disinterred body of Elmer J. Davidson, slain U. S. Chamber of Commerce attorney, was performed yesterday by District Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald in an attempt to substantiate new clews unearthed by investigators.

Acting upon the request of Mrs. Laura Dow, the slain man's sister, the health department yesterday issued a permit to exhume the body from Rock Creek Cemetery.

Coroner MacDonald and Deputy Coroner Richard Rosenberg would not state whether their findings would uphold any new evidence.

It was understood, however, that Coroner MacDonald would probably be called before the Stafford County grand jury Monday when the hearing is scheduled.

On hand for the autopsy was Sergt. E. J. McDermott, of the Virginia State police, who tracked down Walter Ross, confessed slayer.

Wash Dividend Paid by Rail, Senate Is Told

Alleghany Corp. Gained Through Transaction, Truman Charges.

By the Associated Press.

A Senate committee received evidence yesterday that the Missouri Pacific Railroad advanced $2,795,000 to the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railroad, a subsidiary, in 1928 and 1931 mainly to enable the latter to pay dividends on capital stock.

The transaction was characterized by Lawrence Brown, a committee investigator, as a "wash dividend."

Brown submitted a memorandum which he said had come from the office of M. Eckert, auditor of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, showing 11 separate advances from the Missouri Pacific ranging from $75,000 to $310,000. The memorandum said the advances were for payment of dividends on capital stock, and interest and principal on equipment trust notes.

William Wyer, secretary and treasurer of the Missouri Pacific, told the committee the schedule was not a correct statement of the purposes of the advances.

Wyer described the transaction as a "temporary borrowing" by the "capital side" from the "operating side."

The Missouri Pacific official repeatedly denied assertions by committee investigators that the railroad had borrowed money to pay dividends while under control of Alleghany Corporation, top holding company of the Van Sweringen system. He insisted that even though some borrowed money might have gone into dividends, payments to security holders were on the whole covered by income, or surplus.

Previously, Acting Chairman Truman (Democrat), of Missouri, of the committee, declared that the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railroad, another property in the Missouri Pacific system, had declared a dividend "out of funds it didn't have" in 1931. He said this was done to benefit Alleghany Corporation financially.

Farmer Roosevelt Spends Day Giving Orders to Hands

Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 3 (AP).—President Roosevelt, who informed the election board he was a farmer, spent today looking after his farm.

Accompanied by his secretary-son, James, he motored about the family estate in the crisp sunshine, giving his workers final directions about preparing for winter.

The President leaves tomorrow for an absence of probably several months from the Roosevelt home and farm.

He will motor 72 miles down the Hudson River to New York, and after a three-hour stop at his sixty-fifth street town house will proceed to Washington.

Canadian Stork Derby Goes to Supreme Court

Ottawa, Nov. 3 (AP).—Toronto's famous "stork derby" today reached the Canadian supreme court.

Man, 90, Sues Mate, 77, For Divorce, Alimony

Long Beach, Calif., Nov. 3 (AP).—C. B. Clayton, 90, asked "reasonable alimony" today in a divorce suit against Mary Clayton, 77. He asserted he has only a pension of $10 a month, while his wife has $250 monthly income and property valued at $60,000. They married at Omaha, Nebr., February 25, 1929, and separated March 13, 1935.

Those Wishing to Hire a Man Ought Not to Pass Up This One

J. H. Rodgers, 31, a U. S. Fighting Man With 3 Little Americans to Care for and a Fourth Due, Is a Swell Carpenter.

Wanted: By J. H. Rodgers, 31-year-old former Marine, a job. Reason: He has a wife, three youngsters and the stork is poised for a landing most any moment down the chimney of his home at 504 Third street northwest. Any kind of a job. Storks cannot be persuaded to delay their flights through space, regardless of the quality of chimney they must descend with their precious bundles.

So J. H. Rodgers cast himself more or less on the mercy of those Washingtonians who are able to employ people yesterday.

When he was out in China, with the Marine Corps, he had a job, and that was to hold a gun and represent the very thing his ancestors had fought for since the Revolutionary War.

But there was an end to China, for even a fighting man, with three children and the stork winging gradually toward his domicile, must settle down. So he became principal in the first free classified advertisement The Washington Post ever has inserted.

Rodgers is a carpenter. He worked well on PWA projects, until the $72 a month job he had ended, because the project was finished and there was nothing more to do.

He had worked well, and he and Mrs. Rodgers and all the little Rodgers had lived fairly comfortably on the $72 a month he was able to make.

Go away, Rodgers," he was told, "the project is finished. Good luck, Rodgers."

Anyone who has work for Rodgers—work that an honest man's capable hands can do—may reach him through The Post.

In this way Charles Henry Rodgers, 7, and Jimmy Rodgers, 5, both of whom are Presidential possibilities, and Lillian, 3, who some day may become the Nation's First Lady, may live and grow as America intended they should.

And when the stork has finished his non-stop flight, there still will be smoke curling from the Rodgers' chimney these autumn days.

Court Rehears Attack on D. C. Business Levy

Howard Berry Tells 3-Judge Tribunal Tax Is Burden on Commerce.

Before a three-judge tribunal in District Court, Howard W. Berry, advertising executive, yesterday reiterated the allegations of unconstitutionality he previously had charged against the business privilege and gross receipts tax of the District. Repetition of the charges was made necessary when it was decided to have a three-judge court hear the case instead of a one-judge court which previously had heard Berry's plaint. All constitutional questions must now be settled by three judges under a new law.

Berry is seeking to have the law declared unconstitutional on the ground that it is a burden on interstate commerce and is not uniformly levied, as it applies only to the District. Under his theory the law would have to apply to the entire United States to be valid.

The tax, which calls for a straight payment of $10 and a tax of two-fifths of 1 per cent on the gross receipts of persons and corporations, retroactive to last January, is expected to net the District some $3,000,000. About 18,000 persons and firms are affected.

In opposing the request for an injunction, Jo V. Morgan, assistant corporation counsel, relied upon a recent case in which the Court of Appeals held that revenues of the Potomac Electric Power Co., although derived from outside the District, were taxable here.

Justice D. Lawrence Groner, of the Court of Appeals; Chief Justice A. A. Wheat and Associate Justice Jennings Bailey, of the District Court, heard the case, which first had been heard by Justice Bailey, who did not render an opinion.

The justices took the case under advisement.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE
Caused by Tired Kidneys
Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.
If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Dean's Pills. Adv

Loans on Corn To Be Made by Sliding Scale

Wallace Announces Rules for 44 to 50 Cents Advances to Farmers.

By Russell Smith

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace yesterday announced the Commodity Credit Corporation will make loans, ranging from 44 to 50 cents a bushel on corn, from a commitment of $75,000,000 made to the CCC by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Wallace also revealed terms upon which the loans will be made, the principal feature of which was a sliding scale of loans based on moisture content of the corn sealed in farmers' cribs, as gauged by representative samples. Loans will be made only to farmers participating in the 1937 Soil Conservation program.

His action came shortly after a press conference during which, apparently in full confidence the ever normal granary plan will be enacted by Congress, he proposed the granary as a "model of abundance" which industry and labor should follow.

Reversing the traditional complaints that farmers are at an inequality because of their inability to combine, Wallace said:

"There is less excuse for business and labor to delay in setting up such a plan than there is for agriculture because they don't have the weather to contend with, as farmers do.

"In agriculture we are forced by bugs, heat and cold, and such factors.

"What we are doing is setting up a model of abundance for labor and capital."

Powers Increased.

The Secretary declined a specific answer to questions as to how such a program could be accomplished within the antitrust laws. His suggestion was made in the course of comment relative to the effect business recessions would have upon operation of the granary scheme. He contended that consumption remains fairly constant regardless of general business conditions.

Turning to experiences of the Federal Farm Board under President Hoover, he said that he is "prepared to admit," however, that "we might be confronted with problems similar to those of the Farm Board." He added:

"But I think we have things tied up somewhat better now. For instance, we make loans to individuals. That is a lot better, so far as the trade is concerned, than having it in terminal warehouses, subject to pressure from political groups to sell or hold it. We have learned a great deal from the Farm Board. We have more powers than it had, and the new legislation will give us more. I don't think the supply of commodities held on farms will have the same effect (of depressing prices)."

Meanwhile, on Capitol Hill the House Agriculture Committee made progress in its draft of a bill which carried the granary scheme backed by processing taxes of 3 cents a pound on cotton, 20 cents a bushel on wheat, and ½-cent a pound on rice and by compulsory production control of tobacco and corn.

Hearings Packed, Is Charge.

The bill, scheduled for major revisions before it completes the legislative journey through the special session convening here November 15, also specifies the normal supply of each of these major commodities as "an amount sufficient to meet domestic and export requirements" plus 40 per cent for cotton, 20 per cent for wheat, 5 per cent for corn and rice, and also 180 per cent of tobacco's domestic consumption and 50 per cent of export demand, as the "granary" reserve for carry-over.

Another Capitol development was the statement by Senator Lynn J. Frazier (Republican), of North Dakota, to reporters, that "Administration spokesmen" had packed field hearings of the Senate Agriculture Committee on farm legislation.

Kentucky Children Walk Miles To Study Art, Institute Told

Using only the most inexpensive of materials, school children of Breathitt County, Ky., have developed a keen appreciation of art as well as some talent, David C. Donoho, instructor in the county high school, yesterday told a meeting of the Southern Women's Educational Alliance here. Donoho is shown with some examples of the young sculptors' art.

Teacher and Class Founder Outlines Handicaps Breathitt County Students Endure to Session of Women's Educational Alliance.

Art means a great deal to children of Breathitt County, Ky., even after they have walked 8 miles to school, according to David C. Donoho, instructor in the county high school. Speaking yesterday at a tea at the Mayflower Hotel in connection with the Southern Women's Educational Alliance's rural youth institute, the young art teacher described the results his pupils have obtained with the meager materials.

The school is in no position to provide high-grade paper and other supplies. So the artists paint on cheap newsprint, using cardboard squares for drawing boards. "All the wood we get is needed in the woodworking shop," Donoho explained.

"The ridges you notice on some of the paintings are the result of using corrugated cardboard without sufficient padding."

When Donoho first instituted classes last year, under the auspices of the alliance, some of his students expressed a desire to experiment with charcoal. They could not afford the materials, so one of the children volunteered to furnish them. By placing chunks of willow in tin cans and toasting them in a bonfire, he produced satisfactory charcoal sticks.

For modeling statuettes and pottery, the children use the clay of the Kentucky hills. The models are fired in pits dug in the ground, a method used by the American Indians. But Donoho believes these handicaps stimulate the children.

"We are used to doing things the hard way," he told over 100 listeners.

Because of the limited experience of his pupils, many of their paintings must be executed with the aid of their imagination. One work he displayed was entitled "Rocks, Sea and Sky I Imagined" and consisted of a bleak landscape envisioned by a child who never had seen the ocean.

He has noticed that the more sordid a child's environment is, the brighter the colors in which he finds an outlet. A brilliant landscape entitled "Leaves Falling in Kentucky" was painted by a 17-year-old girl whose father recently had been injured in a shooting and whose drunken brother blackened her eye while she was finishing the painting.

Donoho is a native of nearby Floyd County, Ky. While he has studied art in Chicago, Cincinnati and various European centers, he retains his sympathy with the mountain children whom he teaches. He will display samples of his pupils' work in the Metropolitan Museum, New York City, later this week.

Other speakers at yesterday's tea included Dr. O. Latham Hatcher, founder and president of the Southern Woman's Educational Alliance; Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the District of Columbia Board of Education and organizer of a local branch of the alliance; John A. Lang, CCC administrative assistant in the office of education, and Mrs. Mildred S. Percy, president of the local branch of the Guidance and Personnel Association.

Bankers Asked To Help SEC Perfect Its Plan

Commissioner Mathers' Co-operation Plea Cheers Investment Men.

By the Associated Press.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Nov. 3.—The Nation's leading security distributors, meeting in a frankly depressed state of mind after the severe autumn slump in the stock and bond markets, were encouraged today by a plea from an SEC commissioner for their co-operation to make Government control of the securities business efficient and workable.

George C. Mathews, member of the Securities and Exchange Commission, told the initial session of the five-day annual convention of the Investment Bankers Association of America:

"We need to work together to complete a program and put it into effect."

He declined to discuss the causes of the recent market slump, saying that while some might expect him to touch upon the question as to "whether the regulation of trading practices has a place among those causes," it was clearly too early to appraise the situation "calmly and accurately."

In an interview after his address, Mathews indicated that the commission had no intention of taking any precipitant action against short selling to prevent possible "bear" operations in the markets.

Mathews, in his address, urged the bankers to study means of effective self-government, pointing out that the investigations of the commission indicated a large amount of policing work to be done.

"As I see it," he continued, "there need be no surrender of the full and final authority of the Government, but there must be a willingness to work with the industry and to realize that anything like perfection of the program must take time and study, a willingness to proceed gradually, and if necessary, to retrace steps which may prove to have been taken in the wrong direction.

"The business must be given encouragement to take over its share of the job and it must show willingness and capacity."

Request to Fly Higher Preceded Utah Crash

Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 3 (AP).—One month before United Airlines' luxurious Mainliner plowed into a Utah mountain peak, killing its 19 occupants, the Utah Aeronautics Commission had recommended airplanes be required to maintain higher flying altitudes the commission chairman said today.

"Had our recommended regulation been adopted at the time, I have no doubt but that the 19 persons who died in the October 17 crash would be alive today," said Chairman W. D. Hammond.

Business Rise By May Needed To Even Budget

Authorities Cite Relation of Tax Receipts to Trade Conditions.

By the Associated Press.

Informed authorities expressed belief yesterday that business upturn by next May at the latest would be necessary to attain the balanced budget predicted by President Roosevelt for the next fiscal year.

These persons, pointing out that tax receipts closely parallel general economic activity, said the Treasury must receive increased revenue if income and outgo are to balance.

This view presumably was presented to Mr. Roosevelt when Secretary Morgenthau, Roswell Magill, Undersecretary of the Treasury, and Chairman Marriner S. Eccles, of the Federal Reserve Board, called on the Chief Executive at Hyde Park recently.

Agriculture Department economists predicted a few days ago that the current business recession may continue well into 1938. Other officials said today, however, that Federal revenue for the next fiscal year might be larger than the current year's if business picks up next April or May and is in full swing by July 1, the beginning of the Government's 1938-39 financial period.

They declined to predict whether any new taxes would be sought in addition to levies on the manufacture of certain farm products, which already have been suggested to finance the projected new farm program.

It was indicated, however, that the Treasury now is resting its hopes for a balanced budget primarily on quickening business activity next year.

The Treasury's recommendations for changes in the tax laws, under consideration by experts since last spring, are scheduled to be given to a House Ways and Means sub-committee at hearings beginning today.

Although revisions in the undistributed profits and other taxes probably will be suggested, it is not expected generally that the recommendations will call for any reduction in the aggregate tax load.

Snite Denies $20,000 Daily Costs for Son

Atlanta, Nov. 3 (AP).—Fred B. Snite denied yesterday making an estimate October 19 of $20,000 a day for transportation and medical attention incident to a trip of his paralyzed son, Fred, jr., from Chicago to Miami Beach.

Snite said an Atlanta reporter "asked me how much I had spent on the boy, and my reply to him was that I had never figured the cost and did not care what it amounted to."

Baseball Chain Letter Lottery Draws Victims From Capital

'Player' Sends Dollar to Man Nearest Home Plate and Another to Operators; Southern Firm Barred From Mails.

Postoffice Department officials yesterday were fully prepared to believe that there is one born every minute, if not more frequently.

Since issuing a fraud order denying use of the mails to the National Baseball Statistical Bureau of Birmingham, Ala., and Atlanta, Ga., the department has received numerous complaints from "players," some residents of Washington, who believed an original investment of $2 would start them on the road to riches.

William C. O'Brien, attorney in charge of the fraud action of the department, said the baseball lottery worked on the same principle as the 10-cent chain letter, requiring purchase of a card depicting four men distributed along the base lines. The new player would send $1 to the man nearest home and a similar sum to the lottery proprietors. In return his name appeared on four new cards which were placed in circulation.

Handsome prizes were advertised for "home runs" and high totals. Department investigators failed to discover any sinking fund from which prizes could be paid.

The real winner of the game appeared to be the promoter of the lottery, who was clearing $700 to $800 a week, officials said.

Hull Renamed Pan-American Board Leader

Senor Don Manuel Trucco, Chilean Envoy, Chosen Vice Chairman.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull was re-elected chairman of the oard of the Pan American Union at a special session of the governing board yesterday afternoon.

The board named Senor Don Manuel Trucco, Chilean Ambassador, as vice chairman, to succeed Capt. Colon Eloy Alfaro, Minister from Ecuador. Senor Trucco has represented his country in Washington since October, 1933. Noted as a statesman, educator and diplomat, he served at one time as acting President of Chile.

The governing board yesterday considered reports on the proposed Inter-American Court of International Justice, a project approved for study by the Pan American Conference held in Buenos Aires last year.

Reports presented to the board indicated no technical difficulties in setting up a Pan American court. The desirability of such a court will be left to the decision of the Pan American Conference which meets in 1938 at Lima, Peru.

The governing board also heard a report submitted by the committee on the protection of industrial property.

Hunt Continues For Two Youths Feared Drowned

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 3.—Frederick C. Dreyer was summoned today to Garrett County to join in the search for Carl Reams, 20, and Floyd Sines, 17, believed to have drowned in the Youghiogheny River, 2 miles south of Swallow Falls, Friday.

Dreyer, who is regarded as an expert at rescue work, took equipment as he was advised that the equipment that had been used in the search, was washed away.

A boat in which the boys were riding evidently went over the falls, 6 feet high.

U. S. Officials Sued By Bank Trustees

Liquidating trustees of the closed Fletcher-American National Bank of Indianapolis, Ind., Tuesday brought suit in District Court against Secretary of War Woodring and other Government officials, charging a Philippines Islands fund of $500,000 was paid in full while other depositors have received only a 66⅔ per cent dividend.

They alleged through their attorneys, Brice Claggett and Charles E. Wainwright, the $500,000 was on deposit in the bank, guaranteed by Government bonds, when the bank was closed in 1933 by President Roosevelt's banking moratorium. The bank failing to reopen, the then Secretary o. War Dern sold the collateral for $518,538.19, paying the Philippines account in full

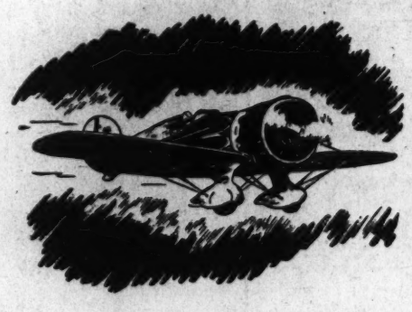
DO AMERICA'S FLIERS APPRECIATE THE COSTLIER TOBACCOS IN CAMELS?



YOU bet they do! In aviation is one of the most loyal groups of Camel smokers in the country. For example, the famous transcontinental record holder, Col. Roscoe Turner, smokes Camels. So do test-pilot Lee Gehlbach, Capt. Frank Hawks, and TWA's chief pilot, Hal Snead—to mention only a few. As Col. Turner puts it: "I guess you've noticed that men in aviation are great smokers. And, from what I see, most fliers share my regard for Camels. They need healthy nerves. That's one big reason why so many of us stick to Camels."

And many millions of Americans—more people than smoke any other cigarette in the world—give a hearty o-kay to Camels!

WINIFRED CASTLE works long hours at her editorial desk—smokes a lot. She says: "I can smoke as many Camels as I please and they never get on my nerves."

PETER KILLIAN is a news photographer. His slant: "Camels are always with me—especially at the table. Camels help my digestion to keep clicking day after day."

ED GRAFFE, gym instructor, says: "Yes sir, Camels set me right—and that takes in a lot of angles. It means I can smoke all I please without getting jangled nerves."

WARREN PIAGET, crack salesman, drives 50,000 miles—and more—a year. "Do I get tired, tense?" he says. "Sure! And it's swell the way Camels give me a 'lift'."

EDWARD HURLEY, a successful, busy architect, says: "To my way of thinking, a man doesn't really know what honest-to-goodness flavor means until he smokes Camels."

MARIE DRISCOLL, business girl, says: "Camels have everything I like in a cigarette. I enjoy smoking a lot more since I've found out how appealing Camels are!"

GENE ENGLISH, radio engineer, notices what cigarette the stars of radio like: "Camels seem to be the favorite. I smoke Camels myself. They don't make my throat scratchy."

Camel spends MILLIONS MORE FOR COSTLIER TOBACCOS! Camels are a matchless blend of finer—MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic.

Hosford to Quit As Coal Board Chairman Jan. 1

Says Business Reasons Are Only Factor in Resignation.

Chairman Charles F. Hosford, jr., of the National Bituminous Coal Commission, announced yesterday he will resign to return to private business about January 1, and later issued a supplementary statement denying published statements that "demands of patronage hunters" had caused him to quit.

In his statement Hosford said that "the two years I have spent in Washington have involved a greater financial sacrifice than I can continue to make, and personal circumstances alone impelled me to tender my resignation."

Dissension Reported.

His resignation followed several months during which there have been widespread reports of internal dissension within the commission, a charge by a minority group led by John C. Lewis, of Iowa, that it is not allowed an equal voice in consideration of commission affairs, and numerous 4-to-3 decisions on policy and personnel questions.

Hosford, however, added in his statement:

"During recent months efforts have been made to discredit the coal commission and its work by charges that its personnel is incompetent and that it had been selected solely for political reasons. The complete answer lies in the fact that today we have an efficient and competent organization; in fact, considering the short space of time allowed for the work, I believe that an unusually good job has been done.

Praises Commission.

"It has also been reported that members of the commission are hopelessly at odds with the result that little, if any, work is being done. The answer to that story is that there has never been any division among members of the commission on any fundamental question of policy and that after weeks of hearings, investigations and conferences, the work of arriving at minimum prices is nearing completion. Those prices should be fully effective before January 1, probably between December 10 and 15.

"I desire to express for every one of my fellow commissioners my highest regard and my appreciation of the co-operation they have given me as chairman of the commission. The story which has been published reflects unfairly, not only upon the members and employes of the commission, but also upon those Senators and Congressmen who loyally and effectively supported the new act."

French Want U. S. Gasoline for War

Paris, Nov. 3 (AP).—Socialist Deputy Charles Baron, chairman of the Chamber mines committee, sailed for the United States today where an official informant said he would seek sources of gasoline for France in case of a conflict.

An official said Baron would talk to President Roosevelt on behalf of Premier Camille Chautemps of France on the possibility of the United States supplying gasoline to France, and would confer with leaders of the American gasoline industry.

Ethiopian Asks Divorce Because Wife's Dad Quit

Cairo, Nov. 3 (AP).—Asfa Wossen, former crown prince of Ethiopia, today asked a divorce on patriotic grounds. In a petition to the Coptic Church council, which will hear the suit here next week, he declared that as a patriot he was unable to live with the daughter of a man who surrendered to the Italian conquerors. His wife, the daughter of Ras Seyoum, who made peace with the Italians, is expected to oppose the suit.

SSB Reserves Again Attacked By Vandenberg

Michigan Republican Advocates Annual 'Pay-as-You-Go' Plan.

Reiterating charges that the Federal Government is piling up an unnecessary and top-heavy social security reserve, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, yesterday advocated an annual contingent "pay-as-you-go" reserve fund of only $500,000,000.

Vandenberg will lay data before a meeting of a special social security advisory committee at the Labor Department tomorrow in support of his arguments that social security taxes and rapidly accumulating reserve funds are out of all proportions to actual annual needs for Federal old-age and unemployment insurance operations.

The Michigan Senator argues that at the present rate of accumulation, the reserve fund will reach the towering sum of $50,000,000,000 by 1980, and the 3½ per cent Government interest on that sum alone would raise the $1,500,000,000 estimated for benefits in that year. He said he has replies from 70 insurance companies in support of his contentions.

The advisory committee meeting here tomorrow was authorized in a Senate compromise between Vandenberg and Chairman Pat Harrison of the Senate Finance Committee, last session. Vandenberg was named with Harrison and Senator Harry Flood Byrd, Virginia Democrat, to confer with the advisory group on proposed social security act changes. Vandenberg and Byrd will attend tomorrow's meeting.

Senator Vandenberg said the original social security bill draft did not contemplate the huge reserve sum, but it was changed after Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., advised it would serve general budgetary and debt retirement requirements.

Vandenberg charged the only reason for building up a vast reserve is to enable the Administration to cover up its spending operations, and attacked this as "subterfuge."

Veteran Adventist Missionary Becomes Church's World Aide

Rev. W. K. Ising to Establish Takoma Park Headquarters as Associate Secretary of Sabbath School Department.

After more than 30 years of missionary service in Europe and Arabia the Rev. W. K. Ising soon will take up residence in Takoma Park as associate secretary of the Sabbath School Department of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists.

Born in Danzig, Germany, in 1881, Elder Ising was brought to St. Joseph, Mo., in 1889, returning to his native city in 1896 to resume his studies.

Graduating from the Seventh-day Adventist Seminary, Friedensau, Germany, in 1904, he was elected to his first office in denominational work the following year as secretary of the German Union Conference.

Several years later he was sent as a leader in the Arabian field and located his headquarters in Beirut, at the foot of Mount Lebanon in Syria.

While a missionary in Alexandria, Egypt, during the World War Rev. Mr. Ising was ordered to the Island of Malta, where he was interned five years as chaplain, acting as the intermediary between the provost marshal and the prisoners.

During the five years Mrs. Ising remained in Alexandria, where she nursed in a German hospital the British had commandeered.

Later the British replaced German-born nurses and Mrs. Ising was sent to Germany.

The interment camp did not dampen the missionary spirit of the Rev. Mr. Ising. Following his release, he returned to Germany and was appointed secretary of the European Division Conference, with headquarters in Berne, Switzerland.

Remaining in this office from 1920 until 1928, Elder Ising returned to his first field, where he spent another eight years. During his last stay there, he was located in Jerusalem when the denomination established a medical center.

In his new work, the Rev. Mr. Ising will promote Sabbath school activities in all parts of the world.

2 Suspects Seized In Bogus Bill Raid

Pittsburgh, Nov. 3 (AP).—Secret Service operatives seized today a counterfeiting plant, nearly $30,000 in spurious Federal Reserve bank notes and arrested two men in a raid on an isolated house near Monaca, Pa. For months agents have followed a trail of spurious bills through New York, Chicago, Detroit and St. Louis while seeking the source.

Gas Is Fatal to Child, Another Overcome

Baltimore, Nov. 3 (AP).—Mrs. Mabel Flaherty went to her bedroom today to awaken her two children and found one of them, Richard, dead and the other unconscious from illuminating gas.

Satterfield Opens Offices in Capital

Dave E. Satterfield, jr., of Richmond, Representative-elect from the Third Virginia District, came here yesterday to set up his offices in preparation for the special session opening November 15.

He spent his time here going over files of correspondence with his secretary, Tom Walsh, who for nearly 25 years was secretary to Satterfield's predecessor, the late Representative Andrew J. Montague.

He returned to Richmond last night to fill a speaking engagement. He was accompanied to Washington by Mrs. Satterfield.

McNabb Feted On Retirement As Tariff Aide

Officials Attend Luncheon as General Counsel Ends 58 Years' Service.

As a tribute to his outstanding record during 58 years in Government service, Charles E. McNabb, general counsel of the United States Tariff Commission, yesterday was tendered a testimonial luncheon at the Willard Hotel on the occasion of his retirement.

Presided over by Sidney Morgan, secretary of the Tariff Commission, the luncheon was attended by more than 100 prominent Government officials and personal friends of McNabb.

Speakers who paid tribute included Harry B. Mitchell, president of the Civil Service Commission; W. R. Johnson, chief counsel of the Bureau of Customs; Raymond B. Stevens, chairman of the Tariff Commission, and E. M. Whitcomb, chief of the commission's technical service.

Entering the Government service in the Treasury Department in 1888, McNabb was granted a special exemption by the President from the mandatory retirement provisions in 1932. His resignation was granted at his own request.

Born in Baltimore and educated in Washington, he is a graduate of Columbian University, now George Washington University. He later taught business law and finance at the university.

Transferred to the Department of Justice in 1907, McNabb was appointed special assistant to the Attorney General and later special attorney and counselor at law. He joined the Tariff Commission in 1917 as a legal expert and later was made chief of the commission's legal division and finally appointed general counsel.

A New Zoning Law.

Among the several District bills being prepared for consideration by Congress is one that affects intimately every landowner in the city. It is a proposed revision of the local zoning law.

The District was once a pioneer in zoning. In 1920, when the local zoning law was adopted, New York was the only considerable city which had attempted to regulate its physical development in a comprehensive manner. But that was 17 years ago, at a time when the courts had not come to permit much discretion for public officials. Accordingly, the District law was rigidly drawn. Exemptions or, to use the zoners' word, "variances," were virtually impossible. Mindful of this, and fearful of working undue hardships on property owners, the lawmakers of 1920 limited its scope.

Since 1920 the law has not been rewritten. Today, with the city greatly changed and still rapidly changing, the legislation needs broadening and simplifying. This would be the effect of the bill now drafted. For example, a board of appeals would be established, comprising a member from the zoning commission, a member from the Park and Planning Commission, and three members to be appointed by the Commissioners. Another sample of its broader view would be permission for certain reconstructions in nonconforming buildings erected before 1920.

In all, the proposed revisions seem to point toward a more flexible, yet equitable, zoning system for Washington. Without these two qualities in its code, the city can scarcely hope to guide, or in some cases redirect, its growth along the lines that make for urban beauty and convenience.

No Longer Debatable.

Senator Glass is an important recruit to the rapidly growing ranks of those who urge modification of inequitable taxes on capital gains and undistributed corporate profits. Indeed, the Senator goes further than most critics in demanding outright repeal of the latter tax.

President Roosevelt strongly hinted a few days ago that he distrusted the motives of those who are seeking revision of these taxes on surplus income—corporate and individual. He can hardly dismiss thus inconsequently demands for reform coming from high-ranking Government officials and members of Congress whose reputation for plain speaking and honesty of purpose are above question.

The basic arguments in favor of laws that have definitely retarded business progress, by discouraging new capital investment and reinvestment of corporate profits, have been set forth frequently. The time has come to correct evils attested by actual experience. The need for reform is really no longer debatable. Those who are not convinced of the necessity by impersonal arguments may at least be impressed by the testimony of men like Senator Glass, who cannot be accused of conspiring against the welfare of the submerged third of the population by his well-timed appeal.

On The Subject Of Traffic.

In view of current efforts to improve traffic conditions and safeguard Washington's streets by rigid enforcement methods, it appears a bit inconsistent to overlook evident exhibitions of law flouting at the very doors of our municipal center.

Certain downtown merchants advertise "free parking facilities for patrons." At least one concern in the congested area hires men to take patrons' cars at the door and return them at the end of shopping tours. Workers in this capacity are known as "car parkers."

For some time it has been the practice of these "car parkers" to find the "free parking facilities" in a so-called unrestricted area in the front and rear of the District Building. Daily, from 9:30 a. m. until the store in question closes, this merchant's "car parkers" race around the municipal building, eyes cocked for available curb space and with little or no regard for the safety or rights of other motorists.

Their escapades, so far, have been "overlooked" by policemen on duty in the vicinity. Making "U" turns where "U" turns are prohibited, cutting corners at high speed, "crashing" traffic signals and denouncing pedestrians or drivers who happen to get in their way, these store employes have been known to boast of "protection" from the powers that be around the District Building.

It is logical to assume that "car parkers" come under the same rules and regulations which govern other users of public streets. And it appears just as logical to assume they have no right to endanger lives and property without restraint from those whose duty it is to enforce the laws and regulations.

The Local Elections.

Those who scan Tuesday's elections for any clear light on national political currents are liable to be disappointed. Interesting and significant as these results individually may be, they tend to reflect local rather than national issues and thus have local rather than national importance.

In only two particulars does this general observation require modification. In the first place, the victories won by reform administrations in such scattered communities as New York, Bridgeport and Cleveland indicate a growing determination on the part of the electorate to secure honest and efficient local government, regardless of party labels. And, secondly, the emergence in various places of labor as an organized political force reflects a trend which may prove of more than passing moment in our political life.

The outstanding victory for good government was that scored by Mayor LaGuardia of New York and his associates on the fusion ticket. For the first time in the history of the metropolis a reform administration has succeeded itself. That in itself would make the New York election a real landmark. But Mayor LaGuardia's triumph goes further. It reveals the fact that under able and dynamic leadership the voters can be taught to ignore national political labels and take cognizance of local realities.

In supporting Judge Mahoney, it is obvious that Postmaster General Farley, Senator Wagner and Gov. Lehman hoped to capitalize the party tag their candidate wore. They have only succeeded in stigmatizing themselves by opposing a man with a concrete record of accomplishment of such outstanding merit that conservative as well as liberal and radical voters rallied to his side.

The Democratic Party in New York will certainly survive Judge Mahoney's defeat. But it is not so certain that Tammany Hall will ever again exert its traditional power in New York politics. If the past four years have been lean years for the Tiger the next four may be years of actual starvation. Defeated at the primaries by the Democratic organizations of the boroughs other than Manhattan, Tammany has now been routed in Manhattan itself. In particular the triumph of Thomas E. Dewey, the brilliant prosecutor of New York racketeers, as candidate for the district attorneyship of New York, is a terrific blow to Tammany Hall.

Given, at the outset, little chance of success, Dewey managed by the fearless and resourceful conduct of his campaign to turn a potential defeat into resounding victory. He is now a man to be reckoned with not only in New York politics but in a wider area. For it is common knowledge that the Republican Party, to which he belongs, is faced with a deplorable shortage of young, able and energetic leaders.

Many elements contributed to the fusion landslide in New York. Among these was the support given LaGuardia and his ticket by the American Labor Party. This group now emerges as an independent political force of no small potential significance.

Just the opposite is the result of the C. I. O.'s entrance into the political arena. In Detroit, where the Lewis organization hoped directly to capture the entire city administration, it met with decisive defeat. Its political efforts not only consolidated the ranks of the conservatives but also antagonized the A. F. of L. The reputation of John L. Lewis as a political strategist suffers accordingly.

With respect to other aspects of Tuesday's balloting little need be said. Senator Moore's victory in the gubernatorial race in New Jersey was a personal triumph rather than any victory for the New Deal, which he has supported only half-heartedly. The success of Bruce Barton, noted advertising man, in the Seventeenth New York District, makes a net gain of one for the Republican minority in Congress. Other Congressional by-elections showed no party change.

In the neighboring State of Virginia, Mr. Price's election as Governor was taken for granted. Insofar as he represents a school of thought different from that of Senators Glass and Byrd the Administration may be justified in regarding his election with pleasure. But in Virginia, as elsewhere, the New Deal issue was, where present, so overshadowed by local consideration as to be no issue at all.

Having Fine Time.

Rockwell Kent says Uncle Sam is no Belshazzar. That's good, for Belshazzar's kingdom was divvied up by the Medes and the Persians and he himself was slain, if memory serves. But Mr. Kent's point is that before dying Belshazzar paid off Daniel for translating a bit of handwriting on the wall, even though it predicted his doom. Mr. Kent has not been paid off for painting a mural in the Postoffice Building which urges Puerto Rico, albeit in an obscure Eskimo dialect, to "change chiefs."

So it would seem to be Mr. Kent who really resembles Belshazzar. That worthy was the original man weighed in the balance and "found wanting." So, likewise, is Mr. Kent—to the tune of $1,050 of his contract price, he claims. Ultimately, it is to be presumed, Uncle Sam will settle the debt, but not before deducting the amount needed to hire another artist to efface the "change chiefs" message and paint in some less Republican text. If in order we would suggest that the revised message should read: "Having fine time; wish you were here."

The essential absurdity of the whole affair is heightened by the report that Puerto Rico itself is little disturbed by the "change chiefs" part of the mural. The point that has stirred the island to hissing seems to be the picturization of Puerto Ricans as primitive blacks in cotton shirts. Puerto Rico is dominantly Hispanic, not African, they protest. If the lure of the icebergs is not too strong, perhaps Mr. Kent will sail for San Juan, combining information with adventure, on his next cruise.

The Minimum Wage.

When the conference hearings began six weeks ago, preliminary to fixing a minimum wage for women employed in District retail stores, spokesmen for employers and employes were far apart. The former declared that $14.57 per week was sufficient to maintain an unattached woman, while the latter asserted that an adequate living wage should amount to at least $21.51.

The fact that the conference has succeeded in reconciling such divergent views by setting the minimum at $17 per week is a major achievement for which it deserves high praise. The unanimity of the decision, moreover, will remove many obstacles to effective administration that would have arisen in case of dissent. There is still a possibility that evidence brought out in the coming public hearing on the agreement may result in modification. That is not believed likely, however, in view of the lengthy discussions and studies of living cost data that preceded determination of the figure.

This minimum, although moderate judged with reference to the living-cost estimates submitted to the conference, is nevertheless well above the wages actually paid to a large proportion of women employed in Washington retail stores. An extensive investigation in this field was made last spring by the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor. The results showed only too clearly the need for protective legislation.

Almost half of the more than 3,700 women employed in retail stores covered by the survey earned less than $16.50 weekly. In the limited-price stores, over one-third of the women earned less than $13 per week and just over 2 per cent of them earned as much as $15. While some allowance must be made for the low wages of part-time workers, it was pointed out that seven-tenths of the women employed in the limited-price stores worked over 45 hours per week, while 3 out of 5 of the remainder worked 40 or more hours.

Thus the minimum wage established for the retail trade will involve extensive increases in actual wage payments for large numbers of employes. The resultant adjustments will no doubt be difficult in some cases. If the increased costs are too great to be absorbed, there will be increases in retail prices or reductions in the number of employes. Indeed, to the extent that low retail prices have been made possible only by underpaying employes, the public must be prepared and should be more than willing to pay more.

There will also be an increased incentive to introduce labor-saving devices, speed up the pace of work, and dispense with less efficient employes. If this weeding out process is not too drastic, it benefits workers in the long run by eliminating those who are not really worth a living wage. Unduly low wages are themselves an encouragement to inefficiency and thus an obstacle to wage increases. When employers are forced to conform to higher standards of pay, they often discover that the increased wage outlays are more than offset by the greater efficiency of workers.

Only after a period of testing, therefore, will it be possible to determine how the minimum set for the retail trades will work out. If only living costs had to be considered, the figure would certainly seem low. But living-cost standards have to be set with reference to the consumer's willingness to pay. This initial decision has at least been based upon a very painstaking inquiry and is being launched under extremely favorable conditions for testing its feasibility and fairness.

"Poets must live," declares John Masefield. It's a weak premise. The same thing has been said concerning lawyers.

Regulating Air Traffic.

From the Hartford Courant.

Although the navigable space for planes may seem to be unlimited, actually it is not so. There are highways of the air flown as truly as if there were white posts on the side and a white line in the center. Peculiarities of the terrain, the desire to follow the straight line that is the shortest distance between two air fields, the necessity of making use of visual air beacons or of following the radio guides, to say nothing of avoiding sections where the flying is poor because of storms and air disturbances, all make for a series of fixed routes through the air. When visibility is good, there is less danger from collision; hence the restrictions on contact flying have never been relaxed. It would seem that even here, however, because of the small size and the great speed of planes, too much freedom is not desirable.

In the case of poor visibility and blind flying, the situation is something else again and calls for rigid rules of the air. Highly complicated as the system may seem, with its prescribed altitude levels for different types of flight, its requirement of two-way radios on all planes and a submission by all flyers of their plans for departure and destination it cannot be dispensed with. Although some accidents still occur in transport flying, as the crash of the airliner in Utah indicates, it may be possible by careful ruling at least to preserve maximum safety for air traffic.

So You Were Going To Get Out The Vote, Eh?

A Spanish War Symposium

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

It has been stated that the Catholic Church's complete control of education in Spain was the reason for 50 or 60 per cent of her people being illiterate. Let's get down to some historical facts.

In 1837 the government undertook to confiscate all Catholic schools and to provide her people with a secular education. Then in 1857 all priests and religious were forbidden to teach in the newly established public schools. This prohibition continued until the rebellion in 1936, though it is true that the government after 1837 did modify its policy somewhat by permitting the church to have its own private schools for the teaching of the Catholic religion.

Who then, in the face of the real evidence, is to blame for the lack of education? Far from hindering education the church in Spain has always worked as far as permitted her to combat the illiteracy that would now be still greater were it not for her efforts.

The second charge most frequently hurled at the church is that she demanded that the state pay her a yearly income because she considered herself a part of the government. A true explanation of the circumstances reveals the untruth of such an accusation. During the years 1836 and 1837 the state had seized all church property and had sold part of it to the people. As the people began to realize that they had been buying stolen church property it worried them.

The state, however, refused to restore the property to the church and in 1860 the Holy See agreed to make valid the state's title to this stolen property on condition that the state provide annually 3 per cent of the total value of the stolen goods for the support of the Spanish clergy and of Catholic worship. So much for the yearly income paid the church by the state.

A third charge is that the Spanish people dislike their clergy since they were recruited from the upper classes. Let's take a look at the statistics of those studying for the priesthood in 1935. Of some 7,401 clerical students, 6 were of the nobility, 115 had a capital of 10,000 pesetas and more and the remaining 7,280 were poor or nearly poor.

Part of the so-called republic of Spain from the very outset started a campaign against the Catholic Church. Its first step was to declare all church property to be "public and national property." Listen to the words of Pope Pius XI speaking on this subject: "All buildings, episcopal residences, parish houses, seminaries and monasteries no longer are recognized as the free property of the Catholic Church but are declared—with words that badly hide the nature of the usurption—public and national property." If this is not communism, what is it?

The outcome of the war in Spain will prove either the truth or falsity of Lenin's prophecy—"Europe shall burn from both ends."

A PRACTICING CATHOLIC
Washington, Oct. 29.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The hideous and revolting tortures of the Inquisition of the Middle Ages appear by comparison quite mild with the savagery now being inflicted on children and noncombatants in the cruel war being waged on poor bleeding Spain.

Your correspondent, E. O. Deeble, in The Post of October 24, related in the concluding sentences of his account of his travels in Spain the results of an air raid over Barcelona, a city loyal to the Spainsh government. His account was as follows: "I reached Barcelona in the morning to learn that there had been a particularly brutal air attack. A school had been bombed just as the children were coming out, and the fleeing pupils had been pursued and mowed down by machine-gun fire in the streets. There is a long and hideous death list, most of the ages between 7 and 13 years. I have not visited the morgue; I could not bear to do it, but I have heard the tales of those who went."

Is there no pen, press or pulpit in our country that can marshal public opinion against such barbarious and inhuman savagery against helpless children and noncombatants?

After Spain it will be America that will be in line for the civilizing and uplifting work being so well and thoroughly done on the Mediterranean shores.

HENRY H. CURTIN,
Washington, October 25.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The only way I can account for the vehemence of the "taking sides" against the insurgents in the Spanish civil war on the part of many Americans is that it is an expression of prejudice against the Catholic Church. They must have read of the loyalists burning churches and killing priests and nuns. I can see why that might cause many American Catholics to sympathize with the insurgents; but why should it cause other Americans to sympathize with the loyalists, unless they approve of burning churches and killing priests and nuns?

And I would like to ask those who denounce the Catholic Church in Spain because of illiteracy and poverty which they allege exist there, "who is responsible for the illiteracy and poverty that exist in the United States?" I have seen people living in almost unbelievable squalor, starving, freezing, right here in the United States, and I have seen many signatures of the "X (his mark)" variety.

If I did not know from history that poverty, misery, slavery and degradation abound in places where the Catholic faith is almost unknown, they might be able to convince me that the church is responsible for whatever poverty exists in Spain; but knowing something about history, I see in their accusations only senseless railings.

VERONICA SMITH,

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

In this country the principle is generally accepted that no man may, in justice, be judged guilty without a hearing, nor may any issue be fairly decided until both sides have been heard.

It therefore seems surprising to me that, only a day or two after their arrival at Madrid, two American Congressmen, Bernard and O'Connell, should for the benefit of the press, promise judgment as to the merits of the two sides of the civil war now raging in Spain. Not only was their judgment hasty but they spoke after consulting only one side of the controversy.

News reports indicate a further disconcerting fact: Apparently they were not content to speak for themselves but they have also presumed to represent that they were speaking for the United States Government. To my knowledge at least, neither the President in his Chicago speech nor the Department of State have issued any official pronouncements justifying the conclusion that this country is supporting either side in Spain.

JEROME T. GASPARD.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

It is not territorial gains that each side wants in Spain but power, a fight of revenge, a blood-thirsty fight. The church controlled Spain for centuries, the church was mighty, the church was first, then the state. Just like Mexico was and most of South America is today; no country can prosper where the church controls the state.

America is a great country, because tolerance is in the Constitution; how thoughtful our forefathers were. Let our conscience be our guide, look all men in the face, smile, be glad that we have no dictators in America.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

I agree with you that Japan is the aggressor in China. But don't tell me that you are unable to distinguish between the unjustified aggression of Japan and the justified self-defense of Gen. Franco. Japan fights for self-aggrandizement; Franco fights to save his country from chaos and ruination.

EDWARD B. ACLAO.
Glenn Dale, Md., Oct. 12.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

In reading my favorite paper, The Post, the front page article, "Eden Thunders," proves that since the beginning of hostilities in Spain, we have been subjected to thunderous propaganda.

Mr. Anthony Eden, answering an interpellation in the House of Commons, states that the so-called nonintervention and anti-piracy pacts have greatly aided the loyalists, and states figures of shipments of arms and war materials given them by the three great democracies of Europe—England, France and Russia. We are being bombarded with news telling of the Italian and German arrivals of war materials and men to aid Franco, of their meddling and atrocities, etc. Was all this a smoke screen?

Now after Mr. Eden's statements, we know why when their ships were seized or sunk they did nothing about it—they were afraid that the truth might come out, and it always will. The threat of France to open her borders always had a hollow sound, because they have been open all the time. Why have the so-called dictators gotten the best of England and France? Because they were and still are frank about their actions.

ALFIO CARTA,
Washington, Nov. 2.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

I should like to say, having lived a year in Mexico, that the Catholic Church there had its difficulties, exactly as it has had in Spain, because of its greatly misused power over the masses—keeping the majority not only in constant monetary debt to the church but also illiterate, superstitious and wholly miserable.

STELLA NISSEN MASENG,
Washington, Oct. 26.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

In the name of all that is decent and honorable in life, why, in Heaven's name, do the papers of this liberty-loving land not give us the truth about this hellish persecution in Spain? Don't you want the truth? Do you realize that unless Gen. Franco is victorious, communism will possibly sweep Europe?

That its one aim is world revolution is well known. It seeks the overthrow of Christianity, and it may break loose here at any moment. Do you know that in the last analysis the church (the Catholic Church) is the only bulwark which man has against the "Red menace?"

If proof be needed, look at the recent pronunciamento of the 150 Protestant ministers and laymen who seemingly pin their hopes on the triumph of communism in Spain. How ministers of the Gospel, calling themselves Christians, can blackguard their fellows who are defending their flocks against human "wolves," is beyond my ability to answer.

The G. A. O.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The General Accounting Office is seriously in need of a modern auditing system, with each department supervised by a C. P. A. of wide experience. The entire bureau should be under an auditor general. If the Government is not able to have such a system, they better abolish the G. A. O. and have none at all. They are now working people on auditing work from $1,440 to $1,680 per annum. Trying to get efficient employes at such low salaries is a complete failure.

If some of the Congressmen who think more of their jobs than they do of the people who elect them would ask some of their poorly paid employes in the G. A. O. about how they are treated—instead of asking one or two big executives about everything—they would find out the facts and would want a change at once. JOHN G. SMITHERSON.

"Ought To Be A Law."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Now at long last we know why the stock market acts that way. It is explained nicely in Mr. R. R. Ray's letter published in The Post November 1. The wicked Wall street speculators buy stocks when they are low and sell them when they are high. There ought to be a law against it.

Chasing Butterflies.

THOUGH not even a sub-professional lepidopterist, I have always liked butterflies. In spring, when I was a boy, I used to pick off the drunken tiger swallowtails from the sweet syringa blooms and, holding the insects by their yellow-and-black wings, admire their diaphanous and intricate patterns and trembling loveliness. I was not a butterfly collector either; I suppose I didn't know more than half a dozen kinds. It was to my fancy, I am afraid, that they appealed the most, for butterflies are very fanciful creatures.

It is not easy to understand why a butterfly should be more fanciful than, say, a skunk. One can't very well say that a butterfly is more beautiful than a skunk. There is no denying that, to quote Robert P. Tristram Coffin, the poet—

The little skunk is very neat
With his sensitive, plush feet
And a dainty, slim head set
With diamonds on bands of jet.

You can hardly say that a butterfly smells better than a skunk; that is, relatively. There is one butterfly, for instance—the cybele fritillary—whose odor is described as strong and nauseating, and the female monarch is said to have a faint cockroachlike odor; one entomologist conjectures that the reason bumblebees and carpenterbees seem so to dislike the pearl crescent butterfly is that it possesses a repellant odor perceptible to them but not to us.

Butterflies, like birds, appeal to our imagination to a degree that no mere mammal could ever hope to match. Their mysterious metamorphoses, their colors, both brilliant and subtle, and their elegant grace are too much for our mundane minds. And there, perhaps, lies an answer to Shakespeare's query: "Tell me where is Fancy bred . . . Or in the heart or in the head?"

Where did butterflies come from, anyway?

The evolutionist would probably answer that question by tracing out the family tree of the Arthropoda. The fundamentalist, doubtless by quoting from the Book of Genesis. The poet—and there's where Fancy comes in again—might tell you almost anything, but it would be interesting and perhaps credible, depending upon how credulous you are.

A hundred years ago, for instance, Victor Hugo offered us a most alluring hypothesis concerning the genesis of butterflies. When we think, said he, of all the "soft silk paper that pens wound" and "the messages of love that mortals write" and that are "shredded and flown"—

We dream that all white butterflies above,
Who seek through clouds or waters souls to love,
And leave their lady mistress in despair,
To flit to flowers, as kinder and more fair,
Are but torn love-letters, that through the skies
Flitter, and float, and change to butterflies.

Another theory just as colorful comes from a book of Uncle-Remus-like tales called "Mules and Men," by Zora Hurston, published only two years ago. It has the flavor of "Green Pastures," this Deep South idea of lepidopterous origins:

"Way after while de flowers said, 'We'se put heah to keep de world company, but we'se lonesome ourselves.' So God said, 'A world is somethin' ain't never finished. Soon's you make one thing you got to make somethin' else to go wid it. Gimme dem li'l tee-ninchy shears.'

"So He went 'round clippin' li'l pieces offa everything—de sky, de trees, de flowers, de earth, de varmints, and every one of them li'l clippin's flew off. When folks seen all them li'l scraps fallin' from God' scissors and flutterin' they called 'em flutter-bys. But you know how it is wid de brother in black. He got a big mouf and a stamblin' tongue. So he got it all mixed up and said 'butterfly,' and folks been callin' 'em dat ever since.' Dat's how come we got butterflies of every color and kind, and dat's why dey hang 'round de flowers. Dey wuz made to keep de flowers company."

Without forethought, a few years ago I planted a butterfly bush (Buddleia) by an east window of my house. Now it is a summer-long intoxication for hundreds of butterflies; so I planted better than I knew, and until the frosts begin to come I can look out my window to see how (as Swinburne did)—

Some fly light as a laugh of glee,
Some fly soft as a long, low sigh.

The Soviet Mother Goose

Stalin is making the Soviet safe for heifers. At Archangel four men accused of sabotage have been sentenced to death "for bribing milkmaids to poison record-breaking cows." But what if the secret policeman misunderstood the motives of the patriotic milkmaid preparing deserved death for her charges because they acted like Trotskyites in disguise? How would Mother Goose—who makes every bit as much sense as a sabotage trial—report the scene?

Fair Enough

Hartford Prophets.

A BOOK called "One Hundred Years of Progress of the United States," published in Hartford, Conn., in 1870, ventures some interesting predictions as to the developments of the next century. The chapter on prophecy was written by L. P. Brockett, M. D., who was described as an editorial contributor to Appleton's Cyclopedia, and whatever may be said of the good doctor's opinion, it cannot be charged that he was afraid to go out on a limb.

"There is a strong probability, almost a certainty," he wrote, "of the annexation of British Columbia, Canada and probably also a part or the whole of Mexico, Central America and the most important islands of the West Indies before the close of the present century."

• • • •

HE PREDICTED that by 1890 50,000,000 Chinese, Japanese and other Orientals would immigrate to these shores, and said that if another civil war should come it would be due to the discontent of those people over the denial of suffrage and other political rights or to the proclivity of the Latin Americans for revolutions and pronunciamentos. A civil war arising from the aspirations of the Oriental races among us would be a long one, he thought, and might cause a change in our form of government, but the Latin Americans would be put down in a war "short, sharp and decisive," which would put an end to their ambitions.

"A more reasonable cause for concern in regard to the stability of our form of government," the doctor wrote, "may be found in the tendency of an oligarchy of wealth and political power in our great cities and the fearful corruption of the ballot which now exists. If a man of large wealth, devoid of principle, can, by alien votes, repeating or fraudulent naturalization, attain to power in city, county or State; if he can bribe the legislatures, purchase influence or control the judiciary, he may not find it difficult to reach the Presidency and make himself President for life, King, Emperor or Autocrat.

"OUR GREATEST DANGER as a Nation is to be found in the knavery of those railroad kings and chiefs of rings who will employ money to secure irresponsible power. Yet the checks and balances of our system are so admirable that we may fairly hope that our present form of government may be continued for a hundred years. The President then will have a hundred States under his sway. The cares will be such as few men will be able to endure, and the Cabinet officers must be more fully responsible to the national Legislature."

Dr. Brockett then spoke of gross intoxication in the Senate and said that unless there was some change in the method of selecting Senators eventually there would be enacted on the floor the scenes of folly, depravity and brutality which previously had been confined to the Lower House.

Of the House he further said: "Within a few years it has had among its members murderers, gamblers, prize fighters, swindlers and thieves and has been named 'The National Beer-Garden.' The judiciary probably will undergo less change than any other department. It would be a sad thing if the Justices of the Supreme Court should ever come to be brawling political partisans and demagogues or bribe-takers or degrade their position by unworthy motive or act. It might be well, too, that they should not adhere too slavishly to precedents but remember that there are cases where it is the duty of the judge to make precedents. Rigid adherence to precedents laid down in other countries at other times has been a great defect in our higher courts, State and national."

DR. BROCKETT envisioned a great increase in the use of petroleum for lighting, lubrication and engine fuel, but his imagination didn't quite picture the automobile and airplane, although he did flick aviation lightly with a vague reference to "some practical method of aero-locomotion." He overlooked the first World War, and this country's participation and radio were beyond him.

And, oh, yes, Dr. Brockett thought that the advocates of woman suffrage would overdo their campaign and cause a reaction which for at least a hundred years would stand off the menace of this social and political degradation. Otherwise, he thought, female servants and prostitutes would be brought up and voted by corrupt leaders, young men would lose their reverence for their mothers and political bickerings in the family circle would become intolerable.

Appeal to Auto Designers.

Gentlemen:
Your automobiles are marvelous . . .
Those new 1938 models have Everything. But there are still
Some things you should do . . .
For instance, how about bumpers
Over the doorways? . . .

No fooling. Those tops have Been getting lower and Lower, until every owner
In America can show you
Head injuries . . .
And nine out of ten
Autoists are going around
With their skulls all dented in.

And what about some new Ideas in horns? . . .
I mean couldn't you do away
With the darned things Entirely? Or put them
Back under the red light?
Or beside the radiator
Ornament where nobody
Could reach 'em in a hurry? . . .

That's the whole trouble
With automobiling: drivers
CAN reach the horns . . .
A horn was a good idea
In the old days when People could be taken
By surprise and had to
Be scared for their own
Good. But they have been Scared enough. Those horns
Just make 'em dizzy . . .

I would take horns off
Motor cars and give them
To the pedestrians. Don't Laugh. It's worth trying.

And this radio trend . . .
Can't you put the radio
Where you put the Batteries? . . . So nobody
Can find it, I mean?
Too many people are Being run over during Charlie McCarthy hours,
Rudy Vallee programs
And what have you . . .

And about the upholstery . . .
It's wonderful . . .
It's delovely . . .
But you are making
Automobiles too comfortable . . .
I fall asleep in mine . . .
And judging by the Accident returns I guess
EVERYBODY ELSE DOES! . . .

Danzig's Change

Observer Condemns League For Weakness In Permitting Nazification Of 'Free State;' Writes Danzigers May Check Hitler.

By S. Miles Bouton.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

NATURALLY, the world today is centering on Spain and China. It may, however, be overlooking the significance of another current happening in Europe. The "Free State of Danzig" has become in effect a part of Nazi Germany—and it is too late to do anything about it except worry.

To create new occasions for worry in Europe is equivalent to painting the lily or adding another hue to the rainbow. The Danzig government's act is a flat violation of not only the Treaty of Versailles, but also of its treaties and agreements with Poland. This does not bother the Nazis, however.

The treaty-makers of Versailles gave Danzig a democratic constitution, which could be altered only by a two-thirds vote and with the consent of the League of Nations. A high commissioner represented the League, with offices in Danzig. Like most Americans who know Europe and European history, I believed and still believe that America shirked her manifest duty by not joining the League, and that a very considerable share of responsibility for the situation in the Old World today rests upon us. Be that as it may, it must be said that the League's whole record in respect of Danzig has been timorous, pusillanimous, cowardly (more adjectives along the same line could be used) almost from the establishing of the Free State.

Poland Early Ignored Her Treaty Obligations.

FOR TEN YEARS and more after the end of the World War, Poland was a stronger military power than Germany. During those years it paid little or, in some cases, no heed to its treaty obligations. An outstanding example of this came in 1925. I reported it a year ago for The Post from Danzig, but it should be recalled now. In 1925 Poland set up Polish letter boxes throughout the city at midnight, in open violation of its treaty commitments. The high commissioner ruled that it was such violation, but he was overruled by the Permanent Court of Arbitration. The court, however, did order seven of the boxes removed. They were still there in 1936, and the League had done nothing to enforce the order.

As Germany's armed strength grew greater the League's feet grew colder. I do not believe I am violating a confidence in writing now that Sean Lester, a soft-spoken Irishman who was the High Commissioner last year, told me that he was powerless to do anything. The Nazis demanded that he refrain from "interfering with domestic affairs," but he was placed there to do precisely that. His orders were disregarded. Moreover, the Nazis watched his office and reported to their government every person who visited him. All he had to do was draw his salary.

Mr. Lester was succeeded by Dr. Burkhardt, the present High Commissioner. He is generally recognized as one of the comparatively few pro-Nazi Swiss, and if the League, when it appointed him, did not know this it failed to inquire into his qualifications. But, of course, it did know it, and his appointment was equivalent to notice to the Nazis in Danzig that they could go their length and fear nothing.

They have done just that. At the Nazis' Danzig "Gautag," the district congress, on October 10, District Leader Forster made a speech setting forth the party's new program, to be effectuated now that the party had by terrorism and violations of solemn agreements gained a two-thirds majority in the Parliament. "Above all," said Forster, "we will now settle the Jewish question." The second point was the "liquidation of the party state;" the third, the return to Danzig of some 15,000 Danzigers employed in the Third Reich.

Despite the increased cost of living, it was announced, no wage increases could be made, but "Grossbauten" (palatial buildings) would be erected for the party and its auxiliaries. Danzig had now become a part of Germany, and "interference from without will no longer be tolerated." As to Poland, "Danzig will no longer be so ready to acknowledge interpretations of treaties which have no relation to actualities."

All Parties Except Polish Now Prohibited.

THE EFFECTUATION of this program is already under way. All parties except the Polish Party have been prohibited. This may be suffered for a time to exist, for the Poles constitute only about 4 per cent of the population. Little would be gained by muzzling them, and an attempt would cause trouble out of proportion to the gain.

The Jews are already in the same situation as in Germany. The Danzig authorities declare that the smashing of Jewish shop windows and hundreds of assaults on Jews happened without their approval, but that, of course, is a false declaration—quite apart from the fact that the totalitarian state is responsible for everything that happens. Already we read of Jewish refugees to Poland—of all places—and to the Scandinavian states. Poland's treatment of the Jews is a blot on the country, but it is still milder than the treatment meted out to the unfortunates by the Nazis.

The case of another refugee casts a further light on the Danzig government. It is reported by the Copenhagen newspaper, Politiken. A 12-year-old girl had to write an essay on Mothers' Day. She wrote that the best way of observing it was to oppose war, so that the mothers' sons would not have to die in battle. The Nazis thereupon ordered the girl committed to a reform school. She was smuggled out of the country by friends, is now in Denmark and attending school there.

The de facto annexation of Danzig to Germany must not be considered merely from the viewpoint of an increase of the Third Reich's population by 400,000 and the addition of a splendid harbor. To the west lies the so-called Corridor. On both sides today lies Germany, a mighty military power which has just added a fourteenth corps to its army, making its strength probably 750,000, against half that number for Poland. It is possible that Germany will not, for a time, at least, openly make Danzig a garrison, but it is not at all improbable. However, whether that is done or not is of no consequence.

When I was in Danzig last year the city was full of Black Shirts and Brown Shirts, and I was told, on what seemed good authority, that most of them were merely camouflaged members of Germany's regular army. There will, of course, no longer be Polish control of the Danzig harbor and customs; so nothing stands in the way of arming the former Free State in conformity with German armaments.

Quick East-West Drive Could Overwhelm Corridor.

THE CORRIDOR is only about 20 miles wide on the Baltic. A simultaneous drive from west and east by motorized troops, undertaken without any declaration of war—and there will be none—could conceivably join German forces in a single night, shutting off Poland from the sea and taking away her splendid harbor at Gdynia. That would mean war—inevitably, inescapably. Poland would fight if the Corridor were invaded. France must then fight—and will. Quite apart from her treaty obligations to Poland she could not sit still and see Poland destroyed, with the certainty that her turn would come next. And if France fights, Great Britain must fight.

Optimists may object that no German government would be so mad as to attempt to bring about territorial contact between the Reich and Danzig, but optimists do not know Hitler, they do not comprehend the nature of fanaticism, and they forget how the bluffs of the last years have all succeeded.

It is to be remembered also that, according to apparently trustworthy accounts, the commander in chief of the German army, the Minister of War and the Foreign Minister argued with Hitler for hours to keep him from declaring war on the Spanish loyalists when a German cruiser was bombed, and left him in tearful hysterics when they finally won their point.

There is but one slight ray of light in the situation. I have believed confidently for four years that the coming war will be stopped, as far as Germany is concerned, by a revolution there. That prospect is now increased by the Danzigers. For centuries their forbears had intimate cultural and trade relations with free England, the Netherlands and other enlightened countries, and acquired traditions of freedom which still exist. There can be no doubt that the great majority of the people are opposed to Hitlerism.

A friend who returned lately from spending many months in Germany, where he lived more than 20 years, writes me that many Germans told him they were hoping for war, so they could get a gun in their hands, "and we shall know what to shoot at the next time." This friend, who has friends and acquaintances in all parts of Germany, believes that at least 80 per cent of the people would welcome the Nazis' overthrow.

Soft Music

By Barnet Nover.

Mr. Davis' Gentle Overture.

FOR A FEW HOURS, last Monday, rabid Anglophobes in this country had their worst suspicions confirmed.

Over the wires from London there had come a few scattered sentences from Anthony Eden's speech to the House of Commons. These remarks, garbled in transmission and pulled out of their context, suggested that wily John Bull was again letting gullible Uncle Sam hold the bag by refusing to assume any responsibility for the summoning of the Brussels conference or taking the leadership there.

It was the United States, Mr. Eden appeared to have said, at whose insistence the conference had been called. It was this country which Great Britain expected to take the lead at Brussels.

But before long the full text of Mr. Eden's remarks was made available. It then became apparent that all the British foreign secretary had said—and this with entire truth—was that the United States had suggested that the conference of Nine-Power Treaty signatories which had already been agreed upon should meet at Brussels rather than some other place and this suggestion had been approved.

The mountain, in other words, was only a molehill. So ruffled feelings were smoothed down and threatened speeches on the subject of perfidious Albion were put aside for some other occasion.

• • • •

BUT THE OVERTONES of this episode will not so quickly subside. They echo all too well an important tenet in the American credo. This belief is that while, generally speaking, Americans are a very smart people, they are babes-in-arms in their dealings with foreigners. And that goes especially for our diplomats.

In foreign relations, therefore, it is the counsel of wisdom for the United States to remain aloof altogether, when that is possible, but when it is not it is essential to act with complete circumspection and whole-souled suspicion. European statesmen, the apparently indestructible myth has it, are shrewder, less scrupulous, more Machiavellian than our own.

This belief has little to substantiate it. The United States has had its fair share of innocents abroad. But from the days of Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson, John Adams to our own times we have also had our fair share of statesmen and diplomats capable of holding their own with the best of other lands.

Certainly Britain's recent record in the field of foreign policy has been far from brilliant. The ineffable Sir John Simon was clearly no Bismarck or Talleyrand; Sir Samuel Hoare was little better; while Anthony Eden is a statesman whose performance never quite comes up to his promise.

Great Britain is not the wily fox of the isolationist's nightmare but only a sick and confused lion.

YET THE BELIEF which exists in so many American minds of Uncle Sam as a rustic in a world of city slickers cannot be ignored simply because it is false. American statesmen and governments find it necessary to cater to it even if in doing so necessary action is delayed and valuable time is lost.

Thus in order to avoid even the slightest impression that the United States plans to take the lead at Brussels, even though the present world situation and our own interests suggest that we do precisely that, our representatives at the conference are fearful of advancing any kind of constructive policy.

To do so might give the other powers present at the parley a chance to fall in line. But that clearly would not do. For then we should be the leader and it would be possible for our isolationists and Anglophobes to raise the cry that the United States is being pushed out on a limb by Downing Street.

The game we propose to play at Brussels is one of ring around the rosy. There is safety in circles since a circle, as any mathematician will tell you, has no beginning and no end.

The program speech of Norman H. Davis, American delegate to the Brussels conference, is a case in point. If it was intended to say nothing at long length it was a superlative performance. It is as full of those very sound cliches regarding the virtues of peace and the evils of war as a plum pudding is of nuts and raisins.

To every one of its resounding generalities such as: "Peace once envisaged only by idealists has become a very practical matter of vital self-interest to every nation" the other delegates at Brussels could nod their heads—until sleep overtook them. But insofar as the Davis speech was intended to be a program of action it is largely futile and when not futile, dangerous.

Mr. Davis was only adding one generality to a long string that had preceded it when, for instance, he said that: "Co-operation between Japan and China is essential to the best interests of those two countries and to peace throughout the world." But in saying so he was, wittingly or unwittingly, giving aid and comfort to the Japanese militarists. For they too, favor Sino-Japanese co-operation—if necessary at the point of the bayonet. Mr. Davis' statement, therefore, may be employed by the Japanese as proof to China that, despite Geneva resolutions, Chicago speeches and State Department denunciations of Japanese policy, China had better submit to Tokyo's gentle mercies.

OF COURSE, Mr. Davis intended no such conclusion to be drawn from his unexceptionable remarks. He was merely talking for time. His was a one-man filibuster against realities which are so dour it is dangerous to grapple with them. No doubt he is not alone in this attitude. No one nation wants to rush in quixotically to bell the Japanese cat.

Thus, at the outset, the Brussels conference is acting like Mr. Micawber. It is waiting for something to turn up. Possibly something will turn up. But a golden opportunity to do something truly constructive for world peace rather than merely praising its well-advertised virtues may be lost if no alternative policy is, in the meantime, worked out. And it will be lost if the United States insists on playing Gaston to Britain's Alphonse so as not to scare our isolationists by indicating that we really have a policy regarding the Far Eastern imbroglio and are not afraid to expose it.

Knighted Novelist

By William Lyon Phelps

Sir Hugh Walpole.

The novelist Hugh Walpole, recently and deservedly knighted in England for his distinction as a creative writer, although only a little over 50, has had a career more than 25 years, and before he was 30, he scored a tremendous success with the long novel "Fortitude."

While he was still an undergraduate at Cambridge, he wrote a novel, as did James Hilton in later years; and incidentally, Mr. Walpole's short novel "Prelude to Adventure" gives a good picture of college life there, although the murder makes a rather unusual incident.

Whenever he wishes, Mr. Walpole writes a wildly exciting yarn like "Portrait of a Man with Red Hair," or "Captain Nicholas." The dramatization of "The Old Ladies" was tremendously effective on the stage. No writer has ever made old ladies more terrifying.

His new book, "John Cornelius," is full of variety and in some chapters thrilling; it is a combination of realism and idealism; a combination of life in a village and life in London. Many readers will be interested in identifying, or in trying to identify, the characters in this book with famous contemporary English novelists. There are some pages that are equal to the best of the author's work and others that are not so good. The finest thing in the whole novel is the mystical quality in the hero, which reminds me somewhat of Harmer John.

Tom McCarthy

Brees Plays the Bells.

BREES PLAYS the bells.

Thus far that fact hasn't caused any misunderstanding about the new Singing Tower in Luray, Virginia. But down in Florida at the Mountain Lake Tower, the information that "Brees plays the bells" was always causing trouble.

TOM McCARTHY.

"Of course my name is Anton Brees," the Flemish carilloneur told me. "That has caused the trouble. At Mountain Lake they ask, 'Who plays the bells.' They are told 'Brees plays the bells.'

"The first thing we knew," he said, "tourists were coming down to the tower on windy days. They wanted to hear the breeze play the bells!"

However, nobody has become confused, thus far, on the question of who is playing the carillon in the new Singing Tower at Luray. The town's entire population is acutely conscious of the tower.

It doesn't make any difference whom you ask about the tower. The business men or the school children can give you the information you want.

"The tower," they'll tell you, "is 115 feet high. It has 47 bells. The largest weighs more than 7,400 pounds. Mr. T. C. Northcott is giving the tower to the town at the dedication ceremonies next week. Mr. Anton Brees plays the bells. But in a few weeks the principal of the high school is going to take over the tower. A home town boy is going to play the bells."

That is probably part of the reason everybody is so interested in the Singing Tower of Luray. It's distinctly a home town project.

Mr. Northcott, owner of the Luray Caverns, built the tower of Massanutten sandstone, as a memorial to his wife, Belle Brown Northcott. And Mr. Charles Hoffman, principal of the High School and home town boy, is going to be the first native of Luray to work under Mr. Northcott's $60,000 endowment insuring the upkeep, and playing of the carillon.

RIGHT NOW, though, while the finishing touches are being put on the $100,000 tower, and the $50,000 carillon is being given the final adjustment, Mr. Anton Brees is at the keyboard. And it's quite a keyboard.

"You see," Mr. Brees told me, "a carillon is quite a bit different from any other musical instrument. It demands the technique of both the piano and the organ. But instead of pressing down on keys you hit these with the heel of your hand."

Mr. Brees pointed to the shaped pieces of wood which protruded from the instrument. They were the keys, and they lead to wires connected with the bells hung in the tower above. The heavy bells are played by foot pedals.

"You have to cultivate a sensitive touch to really play these," Mr. Brees said. "Many do not play them—they bang them!"

"Bell-bangers!" Mr. Brees was more than considerably fervent when he exorcised "bell-bangers."

The carrillon in the view of Mr. Brees is just as much an instrument to be played for the beauty of its tone as any in existence.

"People ask me," he said, "how far the carillon can be heard. There's no answer to that. It depends on the weather; on the noise of traffic. I tell them that the best place from which to hear the carillon is a distance of about 200 yards from the tower. Why if I did play it so that it could be heard ten miles away——!"

Mr. Brees conjured up a picture of startled citizens of Luray scurrying for cover as the crash of bells thundered down the valley.

ABOUT THAT time Mr. Frank Godfrey came from the bell tower into the little room near the tower's peak where the carillon board is housed. Representing John Taylor & Co., Loughborough, England, he had come from England to install the carillon. And from the experience of a lifetime spent in that work he was able to supplement Mr. Brees' information about carillons.

Carillons it appeared, first found favor, in the Flemish lowlands of Belgium and Holland. Those countries in constant fear of invasion of flood or warlike neighbors were among the first to install bells in the church towers. Later more bells were added, each with a peculiar significance.

For signal purposes each bell was given a particular meaning. There were Bridal Bells, Warning Bells, and I suppose even Fire Bells. Then some hundreds of years ago, some Flemish bell ringer conceived the idea of playing simple tunes. The development from this was the carillon, as it is known today.

Carillons, newly introduced to the United States, have been commonplace in Flanders for 300 years. Mr. Brees received his training in Belgium from his father, who for 50 years was carilloneur of the Antwerp Cathedral.

To me, however, the most interesting bit of Mr. Godfrey's supplementary information wasn't directly concerned with carillons. It was given with the bland British acceptance of ancient business firms.

"How long has our firm been making carillons?" Mr. Godfrey said. "We've only been making them since the war. We've been making bells for a much longer time, however. Considerably longer."

"Quite an old firm, Mr. Godfrey?"

"Quite," said Mr. Godfrey. "We trace it back to the year 1360. However," he said modestly, "it's only been in the Taylor family for the last 200 years." (!!!)

TOMORROW: McCarthy tells something about the man who has built a Singing Tower for Luray, and the high school principal who will play its carillon.

Norman Davis' Speech at 9-Power Parley

Text of the speech of Norman H. Davis, American delegate at the opening of the Nine-Power conference at Brussels, made public here by the State Department:

We have come to this conference to collaborate in efforts toward an objective for which all peoples and all governments should strive. That objective is peace.

Sixteen years ago there assembled at Washington the delegates to a conference which had been called for the limitation of armaments and to find a solution of Pacific and Far Eastern problems of international concern, and thereby to safeguard peace in the Far East. After a few months of careful consideration of the problems involved, those delegates signed a number of interrelated agreements and resolutions which, it was believed, would assure the legitimate rights and interests of all the countries represented, which provided for various common and reciprocal concessions and which committed the signatories to pursue policies of peace.

In that group of agreements was a treaty relating to principles and policies to be followed in matters concerning China. That treaty dealt with questions which are fundamental; it reaffirms principles to which most of the signatories had already—some repeatedly—committed themselves; it specified not only what should be the obligations of the other powers but what should be the obligations of China; it was ratified by all of the nine powers present at the conference and it has since been adhered to by five other powers. In that treaty there was a provision that, whenever a situation should arise which in the opinion of any of the parties involved the application of the stipulations of the treaty and rendered desirable discussion of such application, there should be full and frank communication between the contracting powers concerned.

Hostilities Cited.

It is in accordance with that express provision that we meet here today. Our present interest, however, would be real even if there were no such treaty and no such provision. The hostilities which are now being waged in the Far East are of serious concern not only to Japan and China but to the entire world.

For several decades the nations of the world have been seeking to evolve methods to achieve the twofold objective of preventing resort to armed force and, if unhappily it has been resorted to, finding means to bring the conflict to an end. Various methods have been proposed. Various instruments have been signed. In all of these there has appeared one common feature, namely, that where controversies develop, solution must be sought by pacific means. To this process 63 nations committed themselves by the Pact of Paris of 1928.

Peace once envisaged only by idealists has become a practical matter of vital self-interest to every nation. The day has long since gone by when the effects of an armed conflict are confined to the participants. It is all too apparent that under modern conditions, the human and material sacrifices and the moral and spiritual costs exacted by the use of armed force not only fall as a heavy and oftentimes crushing burden upon the nations directly involved in the conflict, but have grave repercussions upon all nations of the world.

Armed conflict, wherever it may occur, impairs everywhere the immeasurable value of freely negotiated treaties and agreements as effective and reliable safeguards of national security and international peace. The resulting loss of confidence in such instruments leads nations back to seek safety in competitive armaments and to devote a disproportionate share of their resources thereto, thus impoverishing some nations and inexorably lowering the standards of life to all.

Not only does resort to armed force result in needless loss of human life and shock every humane instinct of mankind, but its disorganizing effects fall upon all phases of constructive human activity, national as well as international.

As a result of the amazing developments in science and industry, there has come about an interdependence among nations as a result of which the effects of any major disturbance are felt everywhere. As our modern civilization has evolved, as it has developed new methods and processes, as it has raised the standard of living of hundreds of millions of human beings all over the world, it has become increasingly sensitive to shock. A dislocation in any part of its inter-related mechanism throws other parts out of gear. It creates need for prompt and skillful attention at the point of dislocation in order to prevent further disturbance and possible breakdown of the whole machinery.

Trade Is Victim.

International trade and financial relations, which are indispensable to human welfare, immediately suffer from the disorganizing effects of resort to armed force. It is through these channels that some of the most direct and most painful repercussions of any major armed conflict spread to the uttermost corners of the earth. Once mutually beneficial international economic relations are impaired or break down, nations are forced into varying degrees of reliance upon their own resources and, consequently, into a further lowering of their living standards.

Unfortunately the breakdown of the processes of international trade and financial relations may occur as a result of other causes than armed conflict. For reasons which I need not enumerate here, nations may elect to embark upon policies directed toward economic self-sufficiency or toward securing immediate though narrow advantages, thus foregoing the broad and cumulative benefits which trade released from excessive restraint will yield. Such policies in themselves create conditions conducive to a threat to peace. The world has witnessed during the past few years the emergence of such conditions and the unfolding of the vicious spiral of economic warfare, political tension, competitive armaments and actual armed conflict.

In the particular circumstances with which we are confronted at the present conference, our objective is the restoration of peace and stability in an extraordinarily important region of the world. But as we seek earnestly the means of attaining these objectives, let us keep in our minds also the pressing need for constructive effort directed toward the creation of conditions which will make unthinkable the use of armed force. There should be no place for resort to arms in an orderly and prosperous world.

In the Far East probably to a greater extent than in any other part of the world there are taking place great changes in the thought and the activities of vast groups of human beings. Within a few generations, Japan has undergone a great transformation and both Occident and Orient have witnessed and been impressed by admirable achievements effected by the Japanese people.

At the Washington conference, the governments there represented, after careful consideration of the situation in the Far East, adopted the view that the Chinese people possessed the capacity to establish a new order. The Nine-Power Treaty was based on that capacity. In agreeing to its provisions, the governments which became parties to that treaty affirmed their belief in the capacity of the Chinese to evolve and carry out a program of political and economic reconstruction.

The signatories to the treaty undertook to regulate their relations with China and with one another in a manner which would not interfere with this hoped-for development, but would, indeed, encourage and support it. During the years which have since elapsed, especially the more recent years, the Chinese have made rapid progress along a course which tends to confirm the faith on which the Nine-Power Treaty was founded.

Nationals Endangered.

Unfortunately, Japan and China have come into conflict and have resorted to hostilities. These hostilities have steadily increased in scope and intensity. Not only have they destroyed many Chinese and Japanese lives and much Chinese and Japanese property, but they have at some places taken and at many places endangered lives of nationals of other countries; they have destroyed property of nationals of other countries; they have disrupted communications; they have disturbed and interfered with the commerce of practically all nations that are engaged in international trade, and they have shocked and aroused the peoples of all nations. Such hostilities are of concern not only to the countries engaged in them; they have affected and they are detrimentally affecting the whole world.

We are here with a common concern and a common purpose and our effort to deal with the situation must be constructive.

We come to this conference to study with our colleagues the problems which concern us. We have come not with the expectation of working miracles but with the intention of appealing to reason. We expect to join with other nations in urging upon Japan and China that they resort to peaceful processes.

Co-operation Essential.

We believe that co-operation between Japan and China is essential to the best interests of those two countries and to peace throughout the world. We believe that such co-operation must be developed by friendship, fair play and reciprocal confidence. If Japan and China are to co-operate it must be as friends and as equals and not as enemies. The problems underlying Sino-Japanese relations must be solved on a basis that is fair to each and acceptable to both.

It is not only in the interests of China and Japan that hostilities be promptly terminated and that the differences between them be peacefully composed, but it is in the interest of the community of nations as a whole. The longer the present hostilities continue the more difficult will a constructive solution become, the more harmful will be their effects upon Sino-Japanese relations and upon the world and the more will general peace and stability be endangered. It is important that equitable adjustment be found.

We come to this conference with no commitments except those to treaty provisions and to principles which the Government of the United States has repeatedly and emphatically affirmed. The Government of the United States is prepared to share in the common efforts to devise, within the scope of these treaty provisions and principles, a means of finding a pacific solution which will provide for terminating hostilities in the Far East and for restoring peace in that area.

Custodial Employes.

Custodial employes, who perform the upkeep of postoffice buildings and similar duties under the Treasury, have laid out a program for the A. F. G. E. to push in the coming Congress.

They want a higher pay scale ($1,100 minimum pay for charmen and charwomen, with $1,300 for head charmen and charwomen) and the opportunity for promotional examinations for higher positions in the service. They want the 8-in-10 hour law to apply specifically to custodial employes as it does to other workers in the Postoffice Department—in other words, they want their eight hours of duty to extend over not more than 10 hours' time.

The custodial workers regard "misassignments" as a serious matter. By this term, they mean the assignment of employes to duties they are not supposed to perform as a part of the work under the jobs they hold. Removal of the "average clause" also is sought. Another item of their program provides for receiving credit for any sick leave due them on their former jobs when they are promoted to such positions as substitute postoffice clerk or carrier.

The United States Maritime Commission Welfare Society sponsors a dance at the Wardman Park on Tuesday, November 16, and thereon hangs a worthy cause.

The Welfare Society is successor to a similar organization of many years ago, known as the United States Shipping Board Welfare Society. Now, each member of the Commission is a member of the society and there are no dues. Its objects are to promote the general welfare of the commission employes and to give financial assistance to employes in special cases arising from sickness, death, etc.

Funds are obtained by contribution, all voluntary, and from subscription dances. Just now, there is no consistent source of income and the society must have additional funds if it is to continue. Members of its executive committee are as follows: G. H. Helmsbold, president; D. J. Houlihan, vice president; Eleanor Van Valey, secretary-treasurer; E. W. Andersen, assistant secretary-treasurer; C. D. Gibbons, J. F. Curtin, A. J. Williams, G. A. Vielmann, A. L. Lansdale, M. J. Kilerlane and F. M. Darr.

Tests.

The National Civil Service Reform League, of times bitterly outspoken against things here and there, reacts quickly, enthusiastically, to the Civil Service Commission's plan for conducting competitive promotion tests among its own staff. Says the league: "The commission's new plan of conducting promotion tests for its own staff sets an excellent example for the Federal departments. It will provide an incentive for initiative and encourage those who are willing to make a real effort to advance in the service." The move, the league felt, should raise the general level of efficiency and open up the "dead end" which "has sometimes led to a defeatist attitude in the civil service."

The commission could open up a florist shop with all the bouquets it received after announcing the promotion tests.

Recent retirements in the Agriculture Department have included: Henry F. Haardt, junior laborer-mechanic, Bureau of Public Roads, service 29 years one month; Mrs. Amelia R. Ealy, clerk, Bureau of Animal Industry, service 18 years, 6 six months; Samuel L. Jodidi, physiologist, Bureau of Plant Industry, service 24 years nine months; Virgil C. Miller, senior clerk, AAA, service 37 years five months.

Big Push.

Joseph I. Menehan (Interior), chairman of the membership committee of Local No. 2, N. F. F. E., is leading a membership drive in conjunction with the drive launched, or rather suggested strongly, by the Springfield convention. In a meeting launching the big push, the following well-known employes had part: Dr. J. Franklin Meyer, chief, Electrical Division, Bureau of Standards; Joseph Stansfield, of the ICC; Ulrey J. Biller, fifth national vice president, N. F. F. E.; Henry G. Nolda, of the Veterans' Administration, and Robert W. Cushman, of the Library of Congress.

Cushman gave prizes of gold pins and buttons to the following persons who had brought in from 10 to 50 members since the last awards were made: GAO—Mrs. Mary L. Giordano, Glen E. Gordon, Mrs. Grace E. Hearne, William R. Lowery, Miss Margaret C. Robertson, and Fred Waters; Veterans Administration—Robert E. Lowe, Henry Nolda, Miss Katherine O'Brien and Miss Nettie Tolson; Navy Department—Mrs. Marie T. Gardner; Interior—Mrs. M. Dorothy Dick, W. C. Ferber, Howard E. Horowitz, Mark Mattare, Albert M. Reising and David E. Thomas; Agriculture—Miss Lottie L. Anderson, Mrs. Pearl L. Anthony, Mrs. Tentie G. Johnson and Mrs. Margaret E. Phillips; Library of Congress—Robert W. Cushman; ICC—Leo E. Riegel, Joseph Stansfield; Civil Service Commission—Warren J. Hamacher.

Plans are moving for "huge theater party" to be held shortly at the Rialto under sponsorship of Local 2, N. F. F. E. It will embrace an amateur contest, confined to Government workers. Harold Sepler (GAO) will be master of ceremonies, with Lee H. Shugar in charge of the arrangements.

Writers: The Graduate School of the Agricultural Department will give the traditionally needed push to budding writers, we learn. There will be a seminar in creative writing on Tuesdays and Thursdays, beginning November 16, at 4:50 p. m. Registrations are now being accepted in room 4090 South Building.

The work in the seminar is devoted to journalistic and creative writing. Detailed analyses are made of trends and current forms of the trade, and the feature article, the familiar essay, the short story, the novelette and the novel as developed in modern publications. The course presupposes a fundamental knowledge of composition and rhetoric.

Playing Against One's Own Judgment

It is the height of folly to make a play that you yourself feel has little or no chance for success—this, of course, assuming that you have any alternative. The average player makes many of these hopeless plays simply because he lacks either the versatility or the patience to explore hidden paths. The declarer in today's hand surrendered much too easily.

West, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.
N-S 30 part score.

	♠ J 9 2 ♡ K J 8 ◇ A 6 5 ♣ 7 5 3 2
♠ K 6 5 ♡ A Q 4 ◇ K J 10 ♣ A 9 6 4	West North East South	♠ 8 7 ♡ 7 5 3 2 ◇ 8 4 3 2 ♣ Q J 10
	♠ A Q 10 4 3 ♡ 10 9 6 ◇ Q 9 7 ♣ K 8

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 N T	Pass	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	Pass
Dble.	Pass	Pass	Pass

West was hard pressed for a good opening lead and finally selected the Ace of clubs. East, who liked clubs better than any other suit, signaled with the Queen, and declarer won the club continuation. The heart ten was led toward dummy. West hopped up with the Ace, and played a third club. Declarer ruffed and, certain that a trump finesse would not work, laid down the Ace and a low one. West, fearing that to pass the trick might result in his eventually being thrown on lead and being forced to play a diamond from his tenace (after declarer had stripped hearts and clubs) went right up with the King and returned his last club. Declarer ruffed and drew the last trump, then finessed against the Queen of hearts. Dummy's Jack holding, the King was cashed, West, of course, following with the Queen.

Now, with the play in dummy and only three diamonds left in his own hand and in dummy, declarer virtually "gave up." He cashed the Ace and led another diamond toward his Queen. West, of course, gobbled up the King and Jack—the latter the setting trick.

West's original notrump had located him with all the missing honors except the club honors, which East had shown, and his penalty double was confirmation of this card-placing. West had been proved to have started with four clubs and, not only from his notrump, but from the fall of the cards, it was quite obvious that he held three cards in each of the other suits.

At the point where declarer led the Ace of diamonds a very simple play would have fulfilled the contract. Instead of the Ace, a low diamond should have been led from dummy, and declarer should have put on the nine-spot. West would be helpless; he would win with the ten, but then would have to return a diamond to the combined North-South tenace. It is to be assumed that declarer realized the position of the diamond King but apparently he did not know what to do about it.

Judge Fromberg Urges Teaching Ideals to Young

Calling on the Sisters of B'Nai Israel Congregation to inculcate the ideals of Judaism in their children, Judge Joseph H. Fromberg addressed the group Tuesday at the first annual donor luncheon at the Willard Hotel.

The luncheon was the culmination of a two-month drive for funds. Thus far, over $1,300 has been accumulated by the sisterhood.

Mrs. Samuel Benjamin is president of the sisterhood. Other officers are Mrs. Isaac L. Asrael, first vice president; Mrs. Harry Mulitz, second vice president; Mrs. Samuel Rosenstein, secretary; Mrs. William Oshinsky, financial secretary, and Mrs. Nathan Hankin, treasurer.

Grand Jury Called In Widow's Slaying

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 3 (AP).—Clerk C. E. Moran said today a special grand jury has been called in Albermarle Circuit Court to consider charges against Eugene Batten in connection with the slaying of Mollie Crawford Douglas, young widow.

Batten, 34-year-old truck driver, has been held in the Albermerle jail since October 27 when the shooting tok place near Charlottesville. Batten waived preliminary hearing.

Association Prize For Racial Study Goes to Georgian

Prof. James A. Padgett, of Brenau College, Gainesville, Ga., was announced Tuesday by Dr. Carter G. Woodson, director of the Association for Study of Negro Life and History, as the winner of the first prize of $100 for the best research articles contributed to publications of the association during the past year.

Dr. Padgett wrote two articles, one on "Ministers to Liberia and Their Diplomacy," the other on "From Slavery to Prominence in North Carolina." A prize of $50 was awarded Prof. James D. Browning, of Miner Teachers College, for an article on "Beginnings of Insurance Enterprises Among Negroes."

Announcing the Organization of the

WASHINGTON CERTIFIED DRUGGISTS

Realizing the importance of the Independent Retail Druggist to the community the following druggists have organized into a group, styling themselves "CERTIFIED DRUGGISTS," and, to identify themselves, will display the emblem on their windows and in their stores.

"QUALITY" and "SERVICE" will predominate in their business dealings and merchandise offered the public will be ONLY OF THE HIGHEST QUALITY. The public may rest assured that a high ethical standard will be the result.

These druggists listed here, all registered by the District of Columbia, realize that HEALTH is too precious to experiment with; that when a man or firm advertises a specific item at a reduced price IT SHOULD BE OF FIRST QUALITY and not shelf-worn merchandise; that a low price on an article is no guarantee of its therapeutic value; and that when a customer asks for a specific item IT SHOULD BE GIVEN.

"There Is No Substitute for Quality."

Read each week what your CERTIFIED DRUGGIST has to say in these advertisements. You will understand more fully the unique service, the health service, your CERTIFIED DRUGGIST is rendering you in your community.

Harlan MILLER Over the Coffee

To illustrate how impossible it is to find two people in Washington who agree completely on anything under the sun, let us take the case of that glamorous lady, Alice Roosevelt Longworth.

* * * *

We might take the Supreme Court, or wages and hours, or Jimmy Roosevelt, but I think Mrs. Longworth is much more fascinating, and she isn't a political issue.

* * * *

About Mrs. Longworth there are approximately 11,873 schools of thought, or about twice as many as there are people who have ever seen her in the same room.

"—Tower of Babel, D. C."

There's the school of thought which holds that she hasn't changed in mentality or personality since the days 30 years ago when she was Princess Alice, the White House Beauty, the Toast of the Town.

* * * *

This group is divided into (a) those who feel she has retained a fresh, youthful manner and point of view and (b) those who choose to regard her enfant terrible.

* * * *

Then there are those who esteem her as an authentic great lady, American style, kindly, gracious and considerate, the democratic equivalent of any grand duchess.

* * * *

Some describe her as a social lioness who flits from party to party, half a dozen a day, with sycophants fawning from every direction for a crumb of recognition.

* * * *

Others insist that she confines herself to a small circle of intimate friends and never appears at any of the great Washington mass brawls unless dragged thither by main force.

* * * *

Many old residents will tell you that she delights in going to the White House on every occasion and likes to sit and giggle or titter like a boarding school girl behind her lace handkerchief at some of the amateur or semi-pro talent trotted out there for the delectation of the guests.

* * * *

On the contrary, residents of longer standing vow that she shuns the Wait House except on rare occasions when she goes there for small family gatherings, when she is the soul of amiability.

"—juggernaut manned by individualists"

Some people like to roll their eyes and recount how she once insulted the wife of a Cabinet member, and imply pretty plainly that insulting people is meat and drink to her.

* * * *

Others tell you that people who matter are drawn to her house as to a haven of wit and rejuvenation, and that she is completely incapable of insulting or snubbing anyone.

* * * *

All this is vastly confusing to a country boy from the west forty, and the stranger can only deduce that Mrs. Longworth is a Washington legend with a thousand different versions.

* * * *

But everything in Washington is a legend, and everyone rejoices to confuse you with a different version, in the most authoritative and irrefutable manner.

* * * *

The truth seems to be that the juggernaut of regimentation is manned by as wild and woolly a crew of individualists as the one which manned the Tower of Babel, and no two think alike or speak the same lingo on matters even more vital to the Republic than the charming qualities of Theodore Roosevelt's daughter.

* * * *

If you could trick them into a game of Truth, I'd bet a $20 hat there isn't an undersecretary or assistant secretary or right hand man in Washington who agrees with his own boss more than 51 per cent of the time.

2 Police Brutality Charges Weighed

Investigations are under way in the second and fourth precincts following complaints of police brutality, Inspector James E. Beckett, acting chief of personnel, announced yesterday. He added, however, that no official report can be filed with Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, pending trials of prisoners.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Van Huten, through their attorney, M. Edward Buckley, complained against a patrolman in the fourth precinct. Buckley said Van Huten, who lives at 4217 Twenty-sixth street northwest, suffered a wound following an altercation in a Southwest restaurant October 10.

Investigation of alleged brutality in the second precinct lagged last night pending outcome of injuries suffered by Westwood L. Williams, 37, Clifton Terrace Apartments, after his arrest on a charge of drunken driving. Out on $500 bond, Williams is in Walter Reed Hospital with a compound fracture of the leg. Conflicting reports were received by Capt. James Bobo as to how Williams was injured. A bystander said Williams fell, and another said he was knocked down by a policeman.

6 Persons Hurt In Accidents in Capital Traffic

Two Women Seriously Injured in Four-Car Collision Near Here.

Six persons were injured, several seriously, in traffic accidents yesterday. One was the victim of a hit and run motorist.

A four-car collision at Queens Chapel and Bladensburg roads northeast yesterday sent two women to Casualty Hospital with serious injuries. Mrs. Katherine Kennedy, 66, of Staten Island, N. Y., suffered a fractured skull, internal injuries and severe cuts and bruises. She was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Joseph H. Kennedy, 67. The other victim, Beatrice Tydings, 19, of Mitchellville, Md., received a possible fractured skull, abrasions to her head and face and lacerations.

Two Trucks Collide.

Police said that a truck driven by John D. Carpenter, colored, 27, of Arlington, Va., collided with another truck operated by Albert L. Embrey, 28, of 1323 Allison street northwest. Carpenter's truck swerved across the roadway crashing into a third machine operated by William H. Wildman, 18, of Bowie, Md. Careening away from Wildman's car the truck struck the fourth car driven by Kennedy. Carpenter was held under $500 bond for a jury trial on a charge of reckless driving.

Harry M. Bennett, 48, of Capitol Heights, Md., was treated at Casualty Hospital for concussion of the brain and shock in an accident in the 3000 block Bladensburg road northeast. A truck he was driving collided with one operated by Joseph G. Ferrier, 28, of Hyattsville, Md. Ferrier was charged with reckless driving.

The victim of a "hit-and-run" driver, Miss Mildred Volkman, 20, of 3601 Connecticut avenue, was in an undetermined condition at Emergency Hospital with possible concussion of the brain and cuts and bruises last night. Miss Volkman was crossing the street in the 1800 block of Calvert street.

Maryland Girl Hurt.

A possible skull fracture and cuts and bruises were suffered by Mary Irene Nebel, 20, of Colmar Manor, Md., when she was struck by an automobile in the 900 block of Rhode Island avenue northeast. She was taken to Sibley Hospital, where physicians said her condition was serious.

The driver of the car, police said, was David T. Norman, colored, 47, of 1337 Delaware avenue southwest, a soldier attached to the Army War College.

When Maurice Stevenson, 4, colored, of 48 Fenton street, stepped from behind a parked automobile into the path of a horse and wagon driven by George Farrell, of Jackson alley, he was knocked down and suffered cuts and bruises of his right leg. The accident occurred in front of the child's home. He was taken to Freedman's Hospital.

Meanwhile Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald announced that he would conduct an inquest into the death of James J. Creamer, 81, of 4037 Grant place northwest.

Creamer died yesterday of injuries suffered last Thursday. Dr. MacDonald said it was possible the aged man had been the victim of a hit-and-run driver.

Dr. David Friday Talks To Trade Executives

"Where Are We and Where Are We Going?" was the title of an address delivered yesterday by Dr. David Friday, speaking before the Washington Trade Association Executives, meeting at the Willard Hotel.

Discussing economic conditions here, Dr. Friday briefly reviewed past periods of depressions and prosperity, and their effects on the future of American industry. The meeting was presided over by George W. Romney, vice president of the association.

'Oldest Inhabitant' Is Shocked, Finds Out He's 90 Instead of 89

John R. Mahoney, However, Will Go Ahead With His Plans for a Gala Birthday Party Here Next January 10.

Just imagine how you would feel if you had been counting on a ninetieth birthday celebration that really would be something to talk about and then discovered that you had passed your ninetieth birthday 10 months ago.

That's just how John R. Mahoney, financial secretary of the Oldest Inhabitants of the District of Columbia, feels about the news he uncovered this week in an old family Bible.

"Much to my surprise, I learned that I was born on January 10, 1847. I'll be 91 my next birthday instead of the 90 I had been counting on.

"I've missed my ninetieth birthday," he reported at the November meeting of the Inhabitants last night at the Old Union Engine House.

Will Have Party Anyway.

Inhabitant Mahoney will "play fair" with his associates, however, and have the party—even if he has lived a year he can't account for.

"Reminiscences of the Civil War" was the scheduled topic of discussion at the meeting, with J. Eliot Wright as principal speaker. Numerous other members added their remembrances, E. C. Palmer declaring that he remembered the day the war began, although he was but 2 years and 1 month old at the time.

"I didn't remember the date because of the war, but because my toy boat got away down the stream near our home. Later I was told about Fort Sumter," he said.

Banquet on December 7.

Wright said his first memory of the war was in 1861 just before the battle of Bull Run. His later memories of the conflict included Gen. Burnsides' reviewing of troops on K street, he said.

"The worst scare we had in Washington, as I remember it, was when Beauregard was reported on his way to the city," he declared.

Wright, recording secretary, has been a member of the Oldest Inhabitants 34 years, or longer than any other person, he said last night.

J. Clagett Proctor served as chairman of the meeting in the absence of Theodore W. Noyes, president.

It was announced that the annual banquet of the organization will be held at the Raleigh Hotel on December 7, "as usual."

Jail Inmate Loses $623 He Handed to Friend for Safety

Trouble always comes in bunches, Ray Bragg, of the 600 block of Tenth street southwest, decided yesterday.

Bragg, serving a 60-day sentence in the District Jail for drunken driving, gave a friend of his, Marjorie R. Garrison, of the 400 block of Seventh street northwest, $623.

Yesterday a thief jimmied her door and stole the money. Police last night were questioning a suspect in connection with the case.

A. F. G. E. Banquet Fetes G. C. Dimond

G. Carroll Dimond, a national vice president, American Federation of Government Employes, was tendered a banquet last night by Adjutant General's Office Lode No. 2, A. F. G. E., an event that attracted 250 people and brought forth seven speakers.

Dimond joined others in saying that the greatest tribute that could be paid him would be an organized effort to build up the A. F. G. E. This theme was struck first by James G. Yaden, the toastmaster, who, incidentally, was tendered a banquet by the A. F. G. E. District department last week. At that time, Dimond said that the greatest tribute which could be paid to Yaden would be an organized effort to increase the A. F. G. E. membership.

The speakers last night included A. F. G. E. Charles I. Stengle, president; Maj. Ralph Graves, president, District Department, A. F. G. E.; Charles Hoffman, Ira Y. Bain and Michael D. Shaffer, national vice presidents; Mr. Yaden and Mr. Diamond. The event was held in the Gingham Club and offered entertainment features, presided over by Edward J. McGinnis, a vice president of Lodge No. 2.

2 Youths Wanted In Theft Betrayed By Roast Turkey

A drumstick, last remnant of a roasted turkey, became the figurative key which locked two Washington youths in cells on charges of automobile theft last night.

The prisoners, one 18 and the other 19 years old, are alleged to have taken an automobile belonging to George Williams, of the 1600 block of Potomac avenue southeast. They fled into Virginia, police said.

Town Sergt. Fred W. McGwin, of Middleburg, Va., heard a lookout broadcast. A few hours later he scented roasting turkey, and pushed into a nearby woods, where he found the fugitives. He questioned them, and by the time only the drumstick remained, they were under arrest.

Both were returned to Washington by Detective Sergt. Henry Jett.

Real Estate Operators Warned to Get Licenses

A warning that all real estate operators in Washington must obtain licenses before November 23 was sounded yesterday by the Real Estate Commission as John A. Petty, secretary, stated that 1,200 forms had been distributed within the last fortnight.

Petty pointed out that the license fees are not payable to the collector of taxes, as are most local fees, but to the treasurer of the Real Estate Commission.

Capital Schools To Try 'Tactful' Report Cards

Pupils to Be Graded by Check Marks Instead of the Alphabet.

Boys and girls, you may be glad to know your teachers and principals have new plans underfoot to save you the humiliation of low marks.

The Board of Education yesterday approved two new experiments in report cards, designed to do away altogether with figures and the alphabet when they judge your standing. On such cards check marks would denote your progress in classes; at all times you'd be spared the disgrace of a C or D.

There's just one catch. Those check marks will denote not only progress in the three R's, but also your attitude about your work and your willingness to get it done. You'll also be asked if you bathe regularly—not once, but twice, a week—and if you ate your breakfast slowly and chewed your food well.

New Cards Tried.

"We already have several new report card forms on trial in our schools," Sept. Frank W. Ballou told board members. "I think it would be well to include these to make our experiments complete."

One of the new forms will be tried out for the rest of the school year at Fairbrother-Rossell and Randle Highlands-Orr schools, whose principals designed the cards. The other experimental card will be used in several of the kindergartens.

In a note to parents the elementary pupils' form announces: "On this report progress is noted in citizenship, scholarship and health." Check marks will indicate progress in more than a score of details of the pupils' work.

Check Marks Tell Much.

A check, for example, will tell parents that their son, or daughter "Is ready to attack reading" (reading); "Brings information and material to class" (social studies); "Contributes intelligently to group discussion" (also social studies); "Strives to correct his common speech needs" (oral language).

Tots in kindergarten will be checked on about 40 points. Under "General progress" are to be noted such details as "Gives direct answers to simple questions;" "Makes new words a part of his speaking vocabulary;" "Responds readily to simple directions."

Such "health habits" as "eating breakfast before going to school" and "eating slowly and chewing well" are also to be a part of the record.

"The new cards are certainly worth a trial," said Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, a board member. "For one thing, they're so simple they can be understood not only by pupils, but also by their parents."

Auto Show Crowd One-Fourth Larger Than Same Day in 1936

Italian Ambassador and Wife Attend; Driving Alertness Test and 'Scavenger Hunt' Are Features; 21 Standard Makes on Display.

Hundreds jammed the 1938 Automobile Show last night in Automotive Exhibit Hall, 1242 Twenty-fourth street northwest, to peer under rakish hoods, gasp at gone-with-the-wind streamlining, and — in many cases—sign on the dotted line. Men had eyes for improved brake and motor designing displayed on stripped chasses, while women played their traditional role as arbiters of color, lines, finish, upholstery, and even the dealers themselves.

One salesman confessed that 95 per cent of his sales are determined by decisions of wives, but he wasn't complaining. Richard (Dick) Murphy, manager of the show, said more than 400 cars had been sold since doors opened Saturday.

Attendance yesterday, according to Murphy, was up 24 per cent from the same day last year. The Italian Ambassador and his wife were in yesterday's record crowd.

J. R. Ackerman, general sales manager of the Hupmobile Corporation, paid a breathless visit to the show last night after inspecting displays in New York and Boston earlier in the day.

Complimenting Murphy on his management, Ackerman described himself as "highly impressed" with the floor arrangement and public interest in exhibits.

Today Murphy will guide 100 future engineers and craftsmen from Abbot Vocational School around the show, while tomorrow a local auto and radio firm is sponsoring a "scavenger hunt" with the judge's post in the Automotive Exhibit Hall. Entrants will present their assorted trophies at the stand at 7 p. m.

The show displays models of 21 standard makes of American cars, ranging in price from $600 to more than $6,000. Other features are a driving alertness test sponsored by the American Automobile Association and displays by manufacturers of car radios, batteries and other special equipment.

The show will be open the remainder of the week from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m. daily.

Airport's Failure To Press Charges Clears 'Stunter'

Harry Stumpf, 34, of 2675 Rhode Island avenue northwest, whose stunt flight in a rented airplane over northwest Washington and nearby Prince Georges County several weeks ago resulted in his arrest on a charge of operating an aircraft in a dangerous manner, was cleared in Hyattsville Police Court yesterday.

Judge George B. Merrick dismissed the case for lack of prosecution. John K. Hinson, owner of the Capital airport on River road near the District line, to whom a warrant was issued against the student pilot, failed to appear to press the charge.

On October 17, Stumpf, who had had 20 hours of flying experience, rented a plane from the Capital airport. His aerial antics caused complaints by Prince George county residents. Hinson took another plane and attempted unsuccessfully to persuade Stumpf to land his ship. Stumpf's plane later crashed near Laurel, Md., but he escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

Police Force Door To Free Child, 4, Locked in Home

David Wigransky, 4, of 1405 Manchester lane northwest, was "awful glad" to get out of his parents' bedroom yesterday.

Imbued with something of the pioneer spirit, David, son of Mrs. Sidney W. Wigransky, climbed the stairs and went adventuring yesterday morning while his mother was downstairs.

He went in the bedroom, and when he shut the door there was a clicking sound as the lock snapped. David screamed for help. His mother tried to open the door. Then she called for help. Police forced the door, and David stepped forth to freedom, somewhat subdued.

Stiff Fines Approved on Estate Taxes

Payment Due Within 15 Months Allowed After Death.

Rules and regulations governing the District's new estate and inheritance taxes were approved yesterday by the Commissioners upon recommendation of Jo V. Morgan, special tax counsel.

The new levy, which is expected to raise about $800,000 a year, is applicable to the estates of any person who has died and left property in the District in excess of stated exemptions since 12:01 a. m., August 18.

Morgan called attention to the penalties which may be imposed on any executor or beneficiary who fails to pay the tax within the 15 months allowed.

If taxes are not paid when due, interest shall be added at the rate of 1 per cent per month or portion thereof.

Any person who fails to file a return within the prescribed period shall become liable to a fine equal to 25 per cent of the tax found to be due. The fine is raised to 50 per cent in the case of false or fraudulent returns.

In addition, a fine of up to $1,000 or imprisonment of not more than one year is specified as a penalty for anyone who wilfully fails to file a return or pay the tax as required by the law and is convicted of a misdemeanor.

Exemptions allowed under the inheritance tax and the rates of tax for the remainder of the estate are:

Father, mother, husband, wife, children or lineal descendants or ancestors, $5,000 exemption, 1 per cent thereafter.

Brother, sister, nephew, niece, of the whole or half blood of the decendent, $2,000 and 3 per cent.

Grandnephew or grandniece or any other person not included in first two classes, $1,000 and 5 per cent.

Property transferred exclusively for public or municipal purposes or for charitable, educational, or religious purposes is entirely exempt from taxation.

Nelson B. Bell About The Showshops

'Live, Love and Learn' Proves a Sprightly Comedy With 'Dead March' Sounding Grim Contrasting Note

Two Previews Emphasize Striking Differences Between Two of Next Week's Films; Screen Makes Mighty Plea for Peace; "Victoria the Great" True in Detail and Story; "Social Whirl" Sets In; Notes.

THOSE who objected to the somber undertone of the murderous item known to the screen as "Night Must Fall," in which a playful young Irishman rambled the countryside sending elderly and susceptible ladies to meet their Maker, will have difficulty in recognizing Robert Montgomery and Rosalind Russell as the same costars in the infinitely gayer vehicle coming to Loew's Capitol Theater tomorrow.

BELL.

There is no reminder of "Night Must Fall" in "Live, Love and Learn." If the idea was to convey to the picturegoing public some concrete notion of the considerable versatility possessed by these agile players, no more suitable subject could have been hit upon than this antic comedy of a young man who thinks he is an artist only to discover that in the more substantial things of life he is a consummate dud.

The piece is played with a contagious zest and in a carefree spirit of prankish fun that translate a fragile story into a continuously nimble exercise in smart persiflage and laughable action. This quality of brittle humor is not dependent wholly upon the skill of the stars. They are surrounded by supporting farceurs who are quite as proficient in evolving huge fun from minor situations as the facile Mr. Montgomery and the capable Miss Russell at their best.

Among these secondary artists—if any in the cast strictly may be denominated as secondary—are Robert Benchley, Monty Woolley, E. E. Clive and Charles Judels. Mr. Benchley is probably the most waggish of the cinema's habitual inebriates. He wanders through the present subject as a helpful friend of the newlyweds, who spouts a steady stream of devastating "asides" that one suspects of being personal interpolations injected into the script by a superb capacity for ad libbing. However that may be, Mr. Benchley is immensely funny. So is Monty Woolley, a comedian of parts, less known to the general public than his distinguished associates. Mr. Woolley is cast as a connoisseur of art in oils who falls on evil times from the moment he calls upon Bob Graham to estimate the degree of his mastery of brush and palette. His necktie is clipped off at the roots, his vest buttons are neatly severed from their moorings and his galluses snipped with disastrous consequences to a man of dignity and reputation. They thought he was a newspaperman!

It isn't all quite as "Mack Sennett" as that, but, at least that ought to give you a rough idea of the extent to which "Live, Love and Learn" differs from the homicidal content of its predecessor on the list of the same costars' earlier collaborations. If personal vandalism makes no appeal to your risibilities, E. E. Clive's "silly awss" drawls as a wealthy imbecile, who wishes a great portrait artist to paint a horse, surely will.

* * * * *

Preceding yesterday afternoon's preview screening of "Live, Love and Learn," the quorum of guys and gals of the press, gathered in the private projection room of the Twentieth Century-Fox Film Exchange, had sat in grim fascination before the unspooling of "Dead March," a vivid, horrifying and relentlessly actual film symposium of the terrifying horrors of modern armed conflict. This will be the Armistice Week attraction at the Little Theater, where it will be presented for the first time in Washington, beginning Sunday. More than any mere conglomerate rehash of time-worn "clips" from the official archives of the nations participating in the European cataclysm of 1914-18, "Dead March" is a thoughtfully assembled recital of the agony, the hideous injustice and the futility of professional slaughter in the name of "national honor." It is an overwhelming indictment of every twisted precept ever invoked to justify the sacrifice of millions of human lives to the avarice of a handful of dominant martinets obsessed with delusions of "world leadership." Not confined to any single outbreak of war's fury in the world today, "Dead March" paints a vast and gory canvas of every ominous threat against the peace and stability of the human race at this explosive moment. If its inescapable lesson in war's fruitlessness and indefensible waste of every precious possession of mankind once is grasped and digested, a repetition of the Great War's holocaust ought to be as impossible as flying to the moon.

It was a happy thought of Mrs. Louise Noonan Miller's to serve sandwiches and coffee after the running of the picture. We all needed a revival of the spirit and a little fortification of the body. Perhaps the striking contrast had a part in making "Live, Love and Learn" seem so delightfully ridiculous. I can not too vigorously exhort every

Invaders of the Realm of "Art"

Having appeared together in the lugubrious screen play of "Night Must Fall," Robert Montgomery and Rosalind Russell, affectionately pictured above, now prove their versatility by costarring in a breezy comedy of the garrets and ateliers, "Live, Love and Learn." Mr. Montgomery is a young artist in this one; Miss Russell, his anchor on the side of sanity. The film opens at the Capitol tomorrow.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, Nov. 3.—Settin' Around (RKO-Radio Pictures): This has always been known as Hollywood's "friendliest" studio. Time and again the other majors have barred all visitors; sometimes even closing their gates against Filmville's newspaper brigade. RKO, believing that the public which pays to see its pictures is entitled to every possible courtesy, has usually refused to follow suit.

FRED ASTAIRE.

This morning I watched a party of visitors from New England touring the lot. While their guide tried to hold his temper in leash, they flouted every rule of common decency, insisted on seeing each and every set and made such nuisances of themselves in general that it is a wonder they were not bodily thrown off the lot. The women in the party demanded an introduction to Fred Astaire between scenes; one of the men kicked up quite a rumpus because they were refused admittance to a stage where process shots were being filmed.

A few more parties like that one and RKO will be closed as tightly against visitors as are all the rest. And no one but the visitors themselves will be to blame. For some strange reason people seem unable to realize that a motion picture studio is a place of work. Touring a steel mill, they would observe all the rules. Touring a studio they act like unruly children visiting the zoo.

Set-visited with Ginger Rogers, who is starring in "Having a Wonderful Time"—a sardonic title, in her opinion. She has just returned from a two-week location jaunt to Big Bear Lake, 6,000 feet above sea level. Every night the temperature dropped below freezing; every day Ginger had to muster a gay smile and plunge into the icy water of the lake to make swimming scenes. "It was an experience—and an insurance policy for my future," she told me. "Now I know that when I am through as an actress I can always earn my living by swimming in ice water for that newsreel shot they make every year."

On the stage where "Damsel in Distress," the new Fred Astaire opus, is being filmed I found a carnival sequence in production. Along one wall of the set was a bank of distorted mirrors, and in front of the mirrors was Mr. Astaire, executing grotesque dance steps and splitting his sides as he watched the strange antics of his image. "Hey," he shouted when he saw me, "come here and look . . . did you ever see anything like this? And he struck a new pose. Director George Stevens interrupted by draping a square of black velvet over the mirror. "Master Freddie," he said with heavy sarcasm, "do you think you could leave your play for a minute or two? I would like to discuss the next scene with you."

"Bringing Up Baby," the new Katharine Hepburn picture, concerns a dizzy society deb and her pet leopard—and Katie, from all accounts, was a bit nervous at first about the assignment. So was everyone else in the troupe after seeing the baleful eyes of Nissa, the full grown jungle cat supplied by Seelig Zoo. For the first week or so the sight of Nissa, lying at the feet of her trainer, was a signal to detour—but familiarity breeds contempt. Today, on the set, Cary Grant was complaining because "the damned leopard gets in everyone's way." And the sound man had a more pointed complaint. It seems that Nissa's purr is a deep-throated roar that would make a truck's cutout seem puny. It is too strong for proper recording. "How," the sound man asked sadly, "does one un-purr a leopard?"

Shirley's Curls Do Part-Time Duty

Those million-dollar golden curls of Shirley Temple are going rural for "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," her new picture.

Production Chief Darryl F. Zanuck has decreed that for the farmyard scenes of this modern musical, Shirley's hair will be brushed back and tied with ribbons.

It is the first time in the screen career of the No. 1 box office star that her world-famed head-dress has been altered. The change will be seen in only a small portion of the film, however.

Duke's Friend Is Dinner Guest Of Aunt Bessie

Windsors Will Make Tour of Greenbelt, Dine With President.

Mohawk Valley. This time there will be a White House luncheon, announcement of which yesterday would seem to have finished the official rush to the royal bandwagon, but for a note, jarring, but probably not meant to be, from Mrs. Roosevelt:

"Unfortunately I shall be away," she said, "I am very sorry, but it can't be helped, because lecture tour arrangements must be made months in advance." Mrs. Roosevelt will leave the city today to begin the tour at Des Moines, Iowa.

In their desire to inform themselves on living conditions in industrial areas, the duke and duchess will consume 37 days. Hollywood and the pleasure spots of Florida have been ruled out, their New York representatives said, in keeping with the earnest social tone of the tour, though labor interests in the England Edward once ruled as king continued to view the excursion as "nothing but a publicity stunt."

The official rush to accept the couple, begun by Lady Lindsay's invitation to dinner, spread yesterday to English officialdom. The British Embassy in Paris announced that the duke and duchess would be its luncheon guests before sailing Saturday, the first time Wallis Simpson's royal status has been given official British recognition.

Meantime, the attitudes and conditions of those members of Wallis Simpson's family who found themselves seriously disrupted by the royal romance were beginning to re-crystallize. None of those whose lives touched the former Mrs. Simpson's was thrown out of joint more by the marriage to Windsor than Ernest Simpson, her previous husband. He was apparently in New York last night, but events pretty definitely connected him in a new matrimonial undertaking.

Mrs. Raffray in Reno.

Mrs. Mary Kirk Raffray, former Baltimore belle, has established a residence in Reno, where she announced she would file suit for divorce against Jacques Achille Louis Raffray on grounds of mental cruelty. From remarks inadvertently dropped by Simpson in New York, it is gathered he means to compensate himself for the loss of one wife by marrying her girlhood friend who was a bridesmaid at the Simpson wedding.

Another section of the former friends of the duchess apparently has joined the general trend to approve the union that rocked Edward VIII out of his throne. Mrs. F. A. Sterling, wife of the United States Commissioner to the Paris International Exposition, entertained the duke and duchess at dinner last night, the United Press reported. Mrs. Sterling is from St. Louis, Mo., but she formerly lived in Washington and was one of the Duchess of Windsor's closest friends. She is a sister of Mrs. Joseph Leiter and made her debut here.

Permission Granted.

Couple this with the luncheon invitation extended the royal pair by British Ambassador to France, Sir Eric Phipps, and the announcement that the Duke and Duchess will be dinner guests at the American Embassy in Paris tonight, and the size of the band-wagon rush becomes apparent. Sir Eric obtained permission for the luncheon from the British foreign office in London and he will greet the Duke as "Your Grace." The American dinner will be attended by leaders of the Diplomatic Corps, French government officials and prominent members of Paris and international society.

In addition, several British officials are expected to attend the dinner and Ambassador William C. Bullitt and French government heads will attend Sir Eric's luncheon.

Reporters Barred.

At the dinner last night in Aunt Bessie's R street apartment—once branded by rumor as entirely too small for royal requirements—the conversation may only be guessed. Mrs. Merryman barred the door to reporters and Bedaux declined to show himself. Aunt Bessie was affable, but the only comment she would make was to express a liking for newsmen.

It may be safely assumed that Bedaux informed her of plans for the grand tour as they have progressed thus far.

In an interview yesterday Bedaux said that he had endeavored to map out a balanced survey trip. The duke and duchess, he said, "are seriously interested in learning about working and housing conditions in the United States."

May Visit Here Twice.

He added that he had come to Washington "solely as the friend" of the noted couple, and refused to reveal what arrangements he had made with Summerlin.

In mapping out the itinerary for the tour, Bedaux said he had attempted to include areas which would show working and housing conditions in private industry and on public projects.

Inspired by announcement that the duke and duchess would come directly to Washington after reaching New York and by knowledge that Greenbelt is one of the Government's pet low-income communities, Roy S. Braden, project manager, yesterday wired an invitation to his royal highness through Bedaux.

"Citizens of Greenbelt, America's model Federally financed, nonprofit community would be honored by a visit from their highnesses," the message said. "They cordially invite their highnesses to see what is conceded the most discussed of the Government's housing and community planning projects. Every facility would be extended to enable detailed study. Greenbelt citizens feel that any survey of American housing is incomplete without a visit to their suburban city."

The duke's former subjects, it developed yesterday, will have no chance to hear the 15-minute radio talk he is scheduled to give during his first visit here. The Government-controlled British Broadcasting Co., the Associated Press reported from London, ruled against rebroadcasting the speech. No reason was given.

Labor Warned Against Duke In Baltimore

Closeness to Bedaux and Cordiality to Hitler Condemned.

his wife have announced that they will study labor in this country under the guidance of Charles Bedaux, whose vicious adaptation of the Taylor system like unto the labor appeasement program of Germany would apply a stretchout system to labor in this country, and

"Whereas: Baltimore, the former residence of the wife of the Duke of Windsor is to be the first city whose labor is to be studied by one who while a resident here in no way showed the slightest concern nor sympathy for problems of labor or of the poor and needy, therefore be it

'Elixir' Death Toll To Stay Hidden, Drug Official Says

The unofficial death toll stands today at 67 but just exactly how many persons were killed by the "elixir" of sulfanilamide recently confiscated by the Food and Drug Administration probably never will be known. W. G. Campbell, bureau chief, said yesterday.

Because some physicians simply signed "kidney disease" or some other cause to the death certificate of victims without knowing, or being unwilling to report, that the patient had taken the deadly "elixir," the death toll remains conjectural, according to Campbell.

The fact that the "elixir" of sulfanilamide had been prescribed for venereal disease probably was responsible for noncooperation of some physicians, dtsirous of "protecting" their patients, officials believe. Unadulterated sulfanilamide is of proved value in treatment not only of gonorrhea but of practically all coccic infections.

EpiscopaliansHear Dr. J. Oliver Hart

Approximately 150 Episcopal ministers and laymen of Prince Georges and Montgomery counties yesterday attended the meeting of the northern convention of the Diocese of Washington at St. John's Episcopal Church at Bethesda.

Dr. J. Oliver Hart, rector of St. John's Church in Washington, addressed the convention on the recent national meeting in Cincinnati. The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, extended personal and spiritual greetings.

Other speakers included the Rev. Alexander Zabriskie, professor of history at the Virginia Theological Seminary and the Rev. Clyde Brown, diocesan missioner, who reported on Episcopalian missionary work.

Dr. Zabriskie was a delegate to the recent Oxford conference. "Communism and National Socialism and Their Challenge to the Church" was his subject.

The Rev. Joseph E. Williams, rector of St. John's Church at Bethesda, presided.

Wells Urges U. S. to Avoid War Tangles

Philosopher Tells Audience America Has Destiny to Fulfill.

H. G. Wells, speaking last night to an audience that filled almost every seat in Constitution Hall, said he "would not ask a single American to shoulder a rifle to defend the British Empire as it exists today."

The British novelist and philosopher declared the United States has a destiny that justifies it in keeping out of entanglements that might lead into war. "In quite a little while," said Wells, "the American continent may be the last refuge of a declining civilization."

However, he went on, America would "be beneath contempt" if it used this extra lease on life merely "to go on a few years longer, living slack, playing politics and playing ball," instead of using it to promote the unification of human knowledge and thought that Wells believes is the only thing that will save human society or, for that matter, the human species.

Voice High-Pitched.

The square-figured, somewhat florid Wells spoke in a curiously high-pitched voice that took on an increasing hoarseness, reading polysylabic words rapidly from manuscript in what was at times a pronounced accent. He took note of these difficulties at the beginning of his lecture by saying that for half a century, or "until the microphone put me on a level with your most audible speakers," he never had ventured to address an American audience.

He began with a note of optimism, saying he did not believe world disaster was inevitable or freedom doomed, and that he believed the "strength and staying power of dictatorships" had perhaps been overestimated. An age of mental confusion like the present, he said, produces an age of "gangster opportunism," but "after the gangsters the vigilantes."

The trouble, he said, is that "man has grown incredibly swift and strong in everything except his head," and that "none of our new powers is as great as our power of mutual injury."

"I do not agree to the inevitability of a world war," the novelist went on, "but I agree to its possibility." Certain factors, he said, were making toward the kind of world unity that would insure world peace. One of these was the increasing number of populations living under threat of aerial bombardment, giving rise to a demand for a world federation that would control the air. Other forces, he said, are working toward world control of money and credit and of health and world unity for the suppression of crime.

But the first step in achieving such unity, said Wells, was the "linking together of the world's mental organization into closer accord." And here Wells brought out what he said was the need for a "new Encyclopaedism."

The New Encyclopedia, said Wells, would be something on the order of the French Encyclopedia, conceived by Diderot, but infinitely vaster and more complex. It was not to be primarily a set of volumes, "but a clearing house for the mind—the beginning of a new world mind."

Introduced by Marvin.

There would, of course, he said be a published encyclopedia, too, which would serve as the "cerebral cortex to the cerebral ganglia," and on which shorter encyclopedias and dictionaries would be based.

Dr. Clyde H. Marvin, who introduced Wells, had announced that at the end of the lecture the novelist would answer such questions as were submitted by the audience. The questions came up in sheaves, but Wells, by this time very hoarse, declared that most of them were irrelevant to his subject. He said he had no opinion about the Spanish war, had nothing to say about the Duke of Windsor, and that he must decline to go into the history of his relations with George Bernard Shaw, the Webbs and the Fabian Society. To a question as to whether his plan for world organization of knowledge would feed empty stomachs, he answered:

Corporate Salaries Reported to I. C. C.

By the Associated Press.

Two salaries of almost $100,000 topped a list of compensations reported by corporations yesterday to the Securities and Exchanges Commission.

The Vick Chemical Co., New York City, reported that the compensation of H. S. Richardson, chairman of the board, was $95,710 while the Archer-Daniels-Midland Co., Minneapolis, paid Guy A. Thomas, chairman of the board, $99,436.

The Vick Co. reported compensation of $65,779 for L. Richardson, president, and $57,210 for W. Y. Pryer, vice president-treasurer.

Other top payments by the Archer-Daniels-Midland Co. and its subsidiaries were $49,597 to Werner G. Smith, president of the Werner G. Smith Co., and $50,000 to S. M. Archer, president of the Archer-Daniels-Midland.

Other corporation compensation reported today included: The American Agriculture Chemical Co., (of Deleware) New York City—Horace Bowker, chairman of the board, $30,000; L. H. Carter, president, $45,000; A. F. Stock, vice president-controller, $40,000.

Thomas E. Dewey Speaks HereNov.16

Thomas E. Dewey, newly elected Manhattan district attorney, will speak here November 16 before the United States Conference of Mayors in what is scheduled as his first appearance in the national spotlight.

Dewey's victory as running mate of Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia has given special emphasis to his speech, although it was scheduled many weeks ago when the program for the conference was prepared.

Mayor LaGuardia is expected to introduce Dewey.

The mayors conference opens November 15, the day the special session of Congress convenes here. The young prosecutor's speech is expected to attract wide political interest as a result of his New York victory and his record as a "racket-smashing" official.

A Full Roster Of Amusement For Next Week

Stage and Screen Promise Diversified Programs in the Theaters.

Joan Bennett, star of the cinema, who has not been seen on the stage since she appeared with her father, Richard Bennett, in "Jarnegan," will appear in the stellar role of "Stage Door" at the National Theater for the week begininng next Monday night. "Stage Door" is a play by George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber—their first joint effort since "Dinner at Eight"—dealing with the experiences of a group of young actresses strugglin for a place in the theater. Miss Bennett appears in the role created last season by Margaret Sullivan. In the supporting cast will be seen Douglas Gilmore, Richard Kendrick, Walter Davis, Madeline Grey, Helen Ray, Virginia Rousseau, William Atlee and William and Dorothea Andrews. There will be the usual matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Marlene Dietrich, supported by Herbert Marshall and Melvyn Douglas in the leading male roles, will be the pictured star for the week beginning tomorrow at the Earle Theater in Ernst Lubitsch's production of "Angel." Miss Dietrich appears in the role of Mr. Marshall's neglected wife; Mr. Douglas, as the third angel of the triangle. Supporting roles are played by Ernest Cossart, Edward Everett Horton, Laura Hope Crews and Herbert Mundin. On the stage, Phil Spitalny will present his "Hour of Charm," all-feminine orchestra and vocal and instrumental specialists, including Evelyn and her violin, Maxine, deep-throated singer, and Dale Winthrop, "rhythm in taps."

"Ali Baba Goes to Town," new Twentieth Century-Fox extravaganza, starring Eddie Cantor, is announced as the screen attraction at the Palace for the week beginning today. In his support will be seen such notables as Roland Young, Louise Hovick, June Lang, Douglas Dumbrille, Stanley Fields, John Carrdine, Alan Dinehart and numerous others. The story concerns a young American who introduces New Deal theories of government to the Bagdad of 937 A. D. Short subjects and "Events of the Day" will complete the bill.

RKO-Keith's will continue the run of "Victoria the Great" throughout the remainder of the current week and next, with Anna Neagle in the title role. H. B. Warner, Mary Morris and a supporting cast of distinguished English players appear in important roles in this historical pageant. This Herbert Wilcox production, produced with the co-operation of the British crown, was completely reviewed in this space yesterday.

"Live, Love and Learn," the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer screen comedy, costarring Robert Montgomery and Rosalind Russell, last seen together in "Night Must Fall," will be the chief screen feature of the bill at Loew's Capitol Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. Robert Benchley, Helen Vinson, E. E. Clive, Mickey Rooney and Maude Eburne are prominent in the supporting cast. The vaudeville bill well be headlined by Little Jackie Heller, who also will act as singing master of ceremonies, and will include a considerable list of variety performers of the first rank.

Irene Dunne and Cary Grant in "The Awful Truth" have attracted such enthusiastic capacity audiences to the Metropolitan Theater, where the success of the Earle week is being repeated, that this superlative comedy will be held over for a second week of its second downtown engagement beginning tomorrow. Cecil Cunningham, Ralph Bellamy, Joyce Compton and a perfect comedy cast appear in the stars' suport.

At the Columbia Theater, beginning today, the major film offering will be Paramount's production of "High, Wide and Handsome," in which the costellar roles are played by Irene Dunne and Randolph Scott, supported by Charles Bickford, Raymond Walburn, Elizabeth Patterson, other secondary players and a complete circus company. The story concerns the discovery of oil in western Pennsylvania and its horrendous results.

The Trans-Lux Theater will deviate from its usual custom by presenting a personality in its major short subject during the week beginning tomorrow, when Sybil Jason will be seen in "The Little Diplomat." Other featured shortreels will be "Cowboy Shorty" and "Mickey's Amateurs," augmented by complete world newsreel coverage.

The "Gala Magic Show," staged for the benefit of the underfed school children of the District, will be continued matinee and night throughout the remainder of the current week. The foremost Washington masters of the art of illusion appear in this entertainment and offer a varied and interesting program of black art and prestidigitation.

Boake Carter's "The Dead March," authentic pictures of the great war, will be given its premiere on a Capital screen as chief feature of next week's bill at the Little Theater, beginning on Sunday. In this subject, war is stripped of its glamour, and its terror, blood and disease are laid bare.

Opening today for an engagement of one week at the Rialto Theater will be shown the screen production of "Damaged Lives," a romantic drama of young love wrecked by the world's Public Enemy No. 1. The film was directed by Edgar C. Ulmer and is played by Cecilia Parker, Lyman William, Diane Sinclair, Marceline Day, Harry Myers, Jason Robards and an all-Hollywood cast. It has the endorsement of Government health authorities and many civic and educational bodies.

On Saturday morning, at 10:30 o'clock, the Junior League of Washington will present Hans Christian Andersen's story of "The Princess and the Swineherd," in the auditorium of Roosevelt High School. This is a living production of Junior Programs, Inc., being presented in more than 30 States throughout the country.

At the Gayety Theater next week, beginning with the usual Sunday matinee, the attraction will be Jimmy Lake's Own Show, the last word in musical extravaganza. The principal roles will be played by "Bee" Keller, "the Mae West of Burlesque," and Rob Carney, chief comic. A large cast of singers, dancers and comedians, plus a beauty chorus, will complete the roster.

Cross-Fire Artists at the Earle

Noted on stage, screen and radio for the glibness of their banter and the keenness of their wit, Block and Sully currently are amusing audiences at the Earle Theater as headliners of the vaudeville bill. They also sing a bit—and then "go into their dance."

man and woman in Washington to see "Dead March." It is more eloquent than a million sermons and all of the political speeches ever delivered rolled into one.

In recent conversation with Herbert Wilcox, producer and director of "Victoria the Great," now on the screen at RKO-Keith's, emphasis was placed by Mr. Wilcox upon the importance of the library at Windsor Castle in the development of the picture's romance between the young queen and Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha.

Unless the casual observer's attention is directed to this particular aspect of the biographical drama's development, its significance in all probability will elude him. It was in this room that Victoria proposed to her Prince Consort and it was in this room that he was stricken with his fatal illness and died. The library thus becomes the focal point of the very crux of the story of Her Majesty's 60-year reign. For this reason, extreme care was exercised to make it authentic in every minute detail. The scenes in the library were not filmed at Windsor, but Mr. Wilcox' technical staff was given full access to the room, permitted to take still pictures of it, make measurements, make notes on furnishings and color schemes and all of the other essential details. The reproduction, therefore, is one of photographic accuracy.

The same is true of the grand ballroom, in which Victoria, thinking she was in love with Prince Ernest, fell so genuinely in love with Prince Albert, the more diffident and more difficult of the brothers. It is here that Victoria's little-known love of dancing also is revealed. It was a Strauss waltz that sealed the future of the most glorious reign in British history.

The strict adherence to authenticated fact in filming such scenes as these in "Victoria the Great" is one of the factors that make the picture a great and living document as well as a superlative entertainment.

The Metropolitan String Ensemble, assisted by Sylvia Grassini, fioriture soprano, will give a concert this evening in the Raleigh Hotel ballroom under Conti-Berenguer management. The organization is composed of the following members of the Metropolitan Orchestra: Frederick Buldrini and Salvatore dell'Isola, violins; John A. di Janni, viola; Mario Mazzoni, violoncello, and Amelia Conti, harp. The program will include Beethoven's F minor string quartet, Op. 25, and compositions by Dittersdorf, Boccherini, Thomas and Mascagni. Miss Grazzini will be heard in an aria from Massenet's "Manon" and songs by Pergolesi, Schumann, Delibes and Massenet.

The theater's social season seems to be in what is popularly known as full swing—with the accent on the "swing," if you don't mind. With the merry revels in honor of Anna Neagle—and they were many—written into the past tense, there are in the offing a little "pouring" by Joan Bennett, star of "Stage Door," at the Mayflower on Sunday afternoon and a vague intimation that the Loew interests are planning a little something-or-other in celebration of Greta Garbo's coming in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's widely heralded production of "Conquest." The starving Armenians of the press seem to be doing all right for themselves!

Trick Lock Holds Joan a Prisoner

It's bad enough to be locked out of your home, but Joan Marsh, of "Life Begins in College" cast, says it's much worse to be locked in. About to leave her new Beverly Hills penthouse apartment with her mother, the doorknob came off in Joan's hand.

There was no other entrance or exit, the telephone had not yet been installed, and attempts with hammer and screw-driver failed to connect the doorknob with the latch. It took half an hour's waving and screaming from a balcony window to attract the attention of a passer-by, to whom Joan threw the keys.

Sharp Shooter.

Ray Milland's first screen test was one of marksmanship, he related on the "Ebb Tide" set. The role called for the player to shoot a small mirror out of the hand of Lya de Putti. Ray, a former officer of the King's guard, proved to be the surest shot in the tests at a London studio, so he got the role.

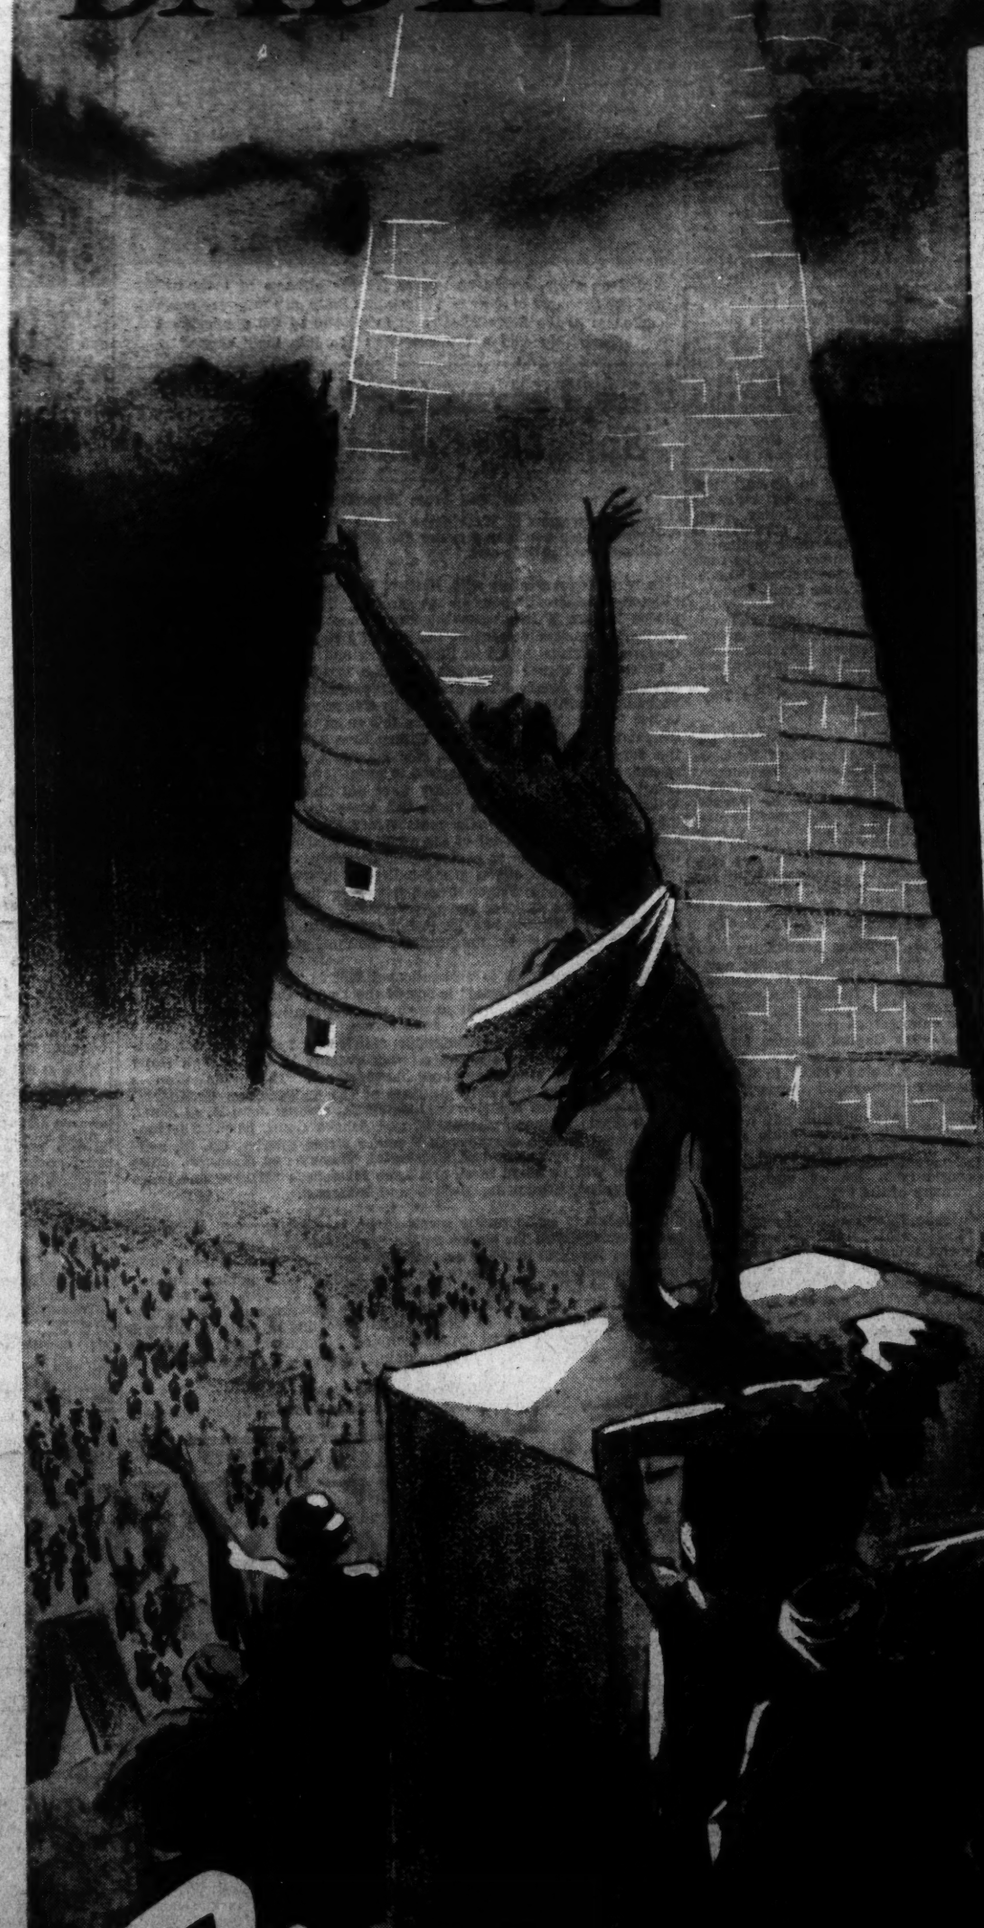
BABEL

man's monument to mis-understanding



- Babel—a temple of tumult—a tower of discord and dissension—a city that never came to be.
- Its prophecy unfulfilled—its workers scattered abroad on the face of the earth—AND ALL BECAUSE THEY DIDN'T TALK THE SAME LANGUAGE.
- Babel is gone, lost in the decay of centuries, but a common tongue is still today the world's most universal need. We rarely see the other fellow's viewpoint. We rarely comprehend his problems. Understanding is lacking—the one great link that ties us to our fellow mortals.
- The issue can't be dodged. Modern society demands a unity of thought and action. Every citizen has a definite responsibility toward his neighbor. To a greater or less degree we are all our brother's keepers. Your Community Chest is asking for your help to batter down this barrier to Social Betterment—to stamp out this age-long indifference. Money is needed to carry on the work that humanity demands.
- Your share is being left entirely up to you. How much or how little you give is strictly a matter for your own conscience to decide. But remember humanity itself is groveling at your feet for help. And the tumult of anguished, pleading voices sends up a din to heaven that would make the workers of Babel sound like pikers in comparison.
- GIVE—freely and generously—with a lavish hand—with a sympathetic heart—for after all, you know . . .

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Mother Dismisses Man Her Daughter Loves When Affair Comes to Light; Girl Asks What to Do.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Some time ago I met a young man who was separated from his wife but was not divorced. We fell desperately in love and planned to be married as soon as he was free . . . Thereafter we were together every day and because of such close association our affair developed into intimacy. I have always had—and still have—the highest ideals, and the thing that happened would not have happened had immediate marriage been possible.

• • • •

Mother has never liked this young man because he had had other affairs in the past, because of his family background, and because she feels that one's past is a definite indicative of one's future. I feel that a child should not be blamed for his parents' misdeeds and have always tried to put myself in the other person's position when judging. To continue with my problem, however, there came a day when I knew I was pregnant. My fiance made arrangements to fly to Reno so as to obtain a divorce in six weeks' time, but I asked him to wait until I had discussed it with my mother . . . I did so, agonising though it was to wound her implicit faith and trust. She has always been a most wonderful mother—lenient, understanding, broadminded.

• • • •

Although I have always adored children, looked forward to the day when I would have my own and was willing to have the baby at any cost, I finally consented to an abortion. Mother promised to see me through on condition that I never see my fiance again. In desperation I consented, never realizing what a hell I would have to live through without him. Allowing him no explanation—nothing!—mother forbade him to see me again.

• • • •

His first reaction was to write a furiously resentful letter, saying she couldn't take me away from him; that he must see me because he loved me. In a second letter he apologized for having spoken in desperation and without thought. He said he was seeking a better-paying job; that he knew he had caused my family untold suffering, but that he was determined to prove himself worthy by making me ideally happy in marriage. He said there could be no finer or more complete love than ours. Although he did not know what plans were being made, he offered all his savings to be used as my family thought best. His letters went unanswered; they made no impression whatever.

• • • •

I haven't seen him for weeks. His divorce will be final soon and I am at my wits' end to know what to do. I know he wants to marry me. I have played fair with my family, insofar as keeping my promise not to see or contact him, but I feel I can't go on much longer without him. As I have said, marriage and its ideals have always been sacred to me, and our affair has made my love for him the more sacred and binding. I can't discard this lightly and say, "Just an experience." It is more to me than that.

• • • •

My question is: Should I marry him? I can understand my mother's attitude toward him. Any mother would feel the same way. But is she right when she says he is not the man for me? I am as confident I will be happy with him always as she is confident I would be unhappy. She has said life will be over for her entirely if I marry him. She feels I will recover in time, but can one be positive of that?

• • • •

I know I can never in any way make up for the suffering I have caused her, and yet this is the most important decision I shall ever be called upon to make. Am I a selfish, unappreciative daughter to feel this way? And yet, in my heart I know I couldn't be happy at another's expense—knowing my mother was suffering. It is my fiance or mother. What shall I do? Yours very truly,

DISTRACTED.

Regain Perspective.

DEAR DISTRACTED: In order that there might be no possibility of anyone's guessing your identity, I have struck out of the foregoing letter considerable data on your problem. Now, let me say this: In view of your extreme youth (with its concomitant dependent helplessness), your fiance's past record of pagan licentiousness, your lenient, broad-minded, understanding mother's instantaneous and eventually confirmed distrust of his influence over you, and the tragic denouement of your tempestuous intimacy, I think it imperative that you let time and sound judgment, rather than impulse and passion, determine the nature of your future relations with him.

• • • •

As a rule, I don't believe in young persons choosing their life partners with a definite eye to pleasing their parents or appeasing the latter's prejudices. A person who is intolerable in his in-laws' sight may be the perfect mate for a changeling sort of child with markedly individual needs and characteristics. Yet, in this instance, I believe you owe your mother some consideration for the simple reason that one good turn deserves another. She helped you pick up the pieces of your life once; now you owe it to her to see that your life does not go to pieces again; at least, not until you have developed, beyond question of a doubt, that stern stuff of character which will enable you to stand up unflinchingly, courageously and unaided, to the consequences of possible future mistakes.

• • • •

Furthermore, you are not ready to make a decision which goes against your mother's wishes until you are absolutely done with leaning on her. And you are not done with leaning on her so long as complete rapport with her is indispensible to your happiness. If you were to marry this boy and he should turn out to be a splendid husband and still you fretted because your mother refused to bless the union, neither you nor he would be happy together very long. I predict the divorce court would receive you in the end.

• • • •

My advice to you is this: Allow this little drama more time in which to unfold. Give yourself and the man more time in which to prove your essential characters and the true nature of your attraction to each other. Let your complete separation become a matter of months, rather than weeks, before deciding, finally, between your mother and your fiance. In the meantime, if there should be any communication between yourself and him, tell him this interval of waiting is a sort of proving ground for both.

• • • •

You need time in which to regain physical vigor, sound nerves, emotional self-containment, a margin of moral reserve, before you can sanely assess your relationship with this man, or really understand what the experience has taught you—if anything; whether it has been essentially degrading or whether it has invested you, with maturity and strength. It might be, once your inordinate physical need of him has been brought under control, that you would find you didn't love him at all in the sense of sharing his ideals, respecting his abilities and sincerely trusting his intentions.

• • • •

He needs time in which to prove the sober truth or involuntary falsity of his passionate and excessive declarations of undying devotion. There is a type of romantic lover, you know, who is capable of high flights of short-lived heroism in times of great emergency, but who simply can't harness himself to the long haul of everyday, unpretentious heroism of the kind which consists of making a living for his ladylove and cherishing her in marriage with a completely faithful devotion.

• • • •

Give yourself time to find out whether he's found a better-paying job and is making good at it, or whether that was merely a piece of "big talk;" learn whether he's capable of living through emotional stress and deprivation without turning to other women for transitory consolation; whether, indeed, his love for you has made a man of him, or whether it's just made a mess of your youth and wouldn't make an even greater mess of your future if further indulged.

• • • •

Such a separation will only strengthen your love for each other, if love it is, and will refine the man's character into something finer, stronger, more disciplined, than it has been before, if there is essential decency in him. If you find him, months from now, still doggedly persisting in his determination to prove his fitness to be your husband, still ardently eager to make you ideally happy as his wife, and you still feel about him as you think you do today, then marry him and take your chances. But do so with the intention of stepping out into the world on a woman's feet—no longer looking to a mother for caressing approval, solicitude and assistance. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Scrub Elastic Garments.

Use lukewarm water and mild soapsuds applied on a brush in laundering elastic garments. Do not pull or stretch the garment. Rinse it thoroughly in warm water and lay it on a towel on a flat surface until it is dry. Never put it too close to direct heat.

Black and White in Dramatic Styling

IN SPITE of the tremendous vogue for brilliant color and the glitter of colorful sequins and paillettes, dramatic black and white continues to be outstanding in the formal evening fashion picture. The exquisite evening ensemble shown above illustrates the popular trend combining fragile and heavier fabrics; also the popularity of velvet as an accent note. The dress is made of white silk net with black velvet applique in leaf design emphasizing the wide hem of the black silk velvet. The fitted basque jacket of black silk velvet has quaint short sleeves and unusual neckline. The head-dress is black sequins and the mitts are velvet.

YOUR FIGURE, MADAME!

Rotary Twist Excellent Exercise for Slim Waistlines.

By Ida Jean Kain.

BY THIS TIME you know that you have to do something about your waistline. Not in years has style been so insistent on the slim waist. Even the girls who always considered their figures pretty good are alarmed about the fashion tuck in the waistline. To reconcile your figure to the new mode you must take steps to firm and slenderize this midsection of the anatomy.

If you are ambitious, two weeks can work wonders on the wayward waistline. Knowing exactly what you can expect out of exercise helps you to get the most out of it and you can expect the inches to vanish most speedily on a combination of stretching, twisting and bending. Stretching pulls the bulges apart, twisting squeezes the fat pads and bending reflexly contracts the abdominal muscles to go lax as you bend and twist.

Try this rotary twist:

Position: On the knees on the floor, knees slightly apart, arms stretched straight out from the sides.

Now for another bulge! This exercise is easy but effective. Lie on the floor on the back, arms stretched out on the floor at the sides. Flex the knees, and holding the feet together off the floor, roll sideward from the waist until the side of the left leg is resting on the floor. Pause a second and roll back to position, then over to the right leg. The muscular action involves only the lower part of the body, with most of the work being done by the muscles at the waistline. Try to hold the upper part of the body as flat on the floor as you can and try to keep these muscles relaxed. Set your own number of times for this exercise.

The following exercise is different from any of the waistline slimmers I have given you. It sounds almost too easy to be effective:

Position: Standing with one side fairly close to the wall, arm over head and palm of hand resting on the wall. Slowly reach upward with the arm, at the same time bringing the side of the body in closer contact with the wall. Stretch as high as possible, slowly relax and repeat six times. Change sides and perform the exercise six more times, with the other side resting against the wall. You will find this exercise smooths out a good many vexsome bulges.

For the disphragm, tummy and waistline try this:

Stand on the knees with the arms upstretched high overhead. Now, bending the trunk to the left, slowly sit down at the right side of the feet. Without lowering the arms, rise again to the knees. Repeat six times sitting down at the right of the feet, then six more at the left.

This group of exercises will remove an inch from the waistline in two weeks and will give you a firm, slim feeling about the middle.

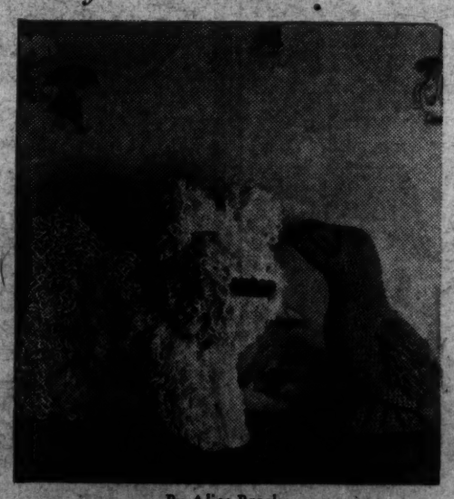
High Prices Paid For 1700 Mahogany

Fine examples of the mahogany furniture produced in the eighteenth century continue to bring high prices in the auction rooms. In May of this year, a Chippendale two-back settee with carved ribband splats was sold at Christie's in London for $7,085. In the same month, at the dispersal of the famous Genevieve Garvan Brady collection at "Inisfada" the Brady home on Long Island, New York, a Chippendale sofa covered in needlepoint brought $3,150.

Enterprising Pup, Cuddly Duck Easily Constructed in Crochet



By Alice Brooks.

YOU'LL LOVE making this enterprising pup and the cuddly duck—all in crochet—and be more than rewarded with their proud owner's joy. Of course, they're easy to crochet! The pup in loop stitch—the duck in single crochet—are both made in two identical pieces joined with a crocheted band. You needn't worry about laundering—just take off the crocheted covering and wash it. In pattern 5944 you will find a chart, directions and a pattern for animals; illustrations of them and of all stiches used; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Washington Post, Household Arts Dept., 259 W. 14th Street, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and pattern number.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, Nov. 3.

WE HAVE now gingerly inspected the motor cars of 1938 vintage, the local automobile show having just closed a busy week at the Grand Central Palace—which is neither in the Grand Central Deppo nor a palace. There are few salient changes to report, since the motor-makers considered their '37 tidbits the cream of the crop, but from a feminine point of view the new boilers, like the blonde movie queen, "never looked lovelier."

ALICE HUGHES.

The world knows how sensitive we are to color, and so do the autoboys. We all recall when the cars came in three standard hues—black, navy blue and a green. Now we can dragoon Pop into buying one in almost any tone of the spectrum, from the conservative and somber to the gay and sporty colors, and even in delicate pastel shades. Moreover, the new wagons are more spacious than ever before, with room for three in the front seat without riding on one hip and getting paralysis. Optimists shout that they will hold even three stylish stouts, but to this touch the nose dubiously. I just want to see 'em prove it!

Here are other noteworthy facts about the fresh shipment. Lines are long and sweeping, with streamlining at its finest. The windy, rain-swept rumble seat, which is death to sociability and long on pneumonia, is sometinmes being replaced by what is called the "opera seat"—a folding affair in the rear of business coupes. When not in use, there is almost enough storage space in the rear for a baby grand, or six youngsters. And there is something approaching air conditioning in many of the models. All of which promotes our road-comfort.

Millions must have poured in and out of the show. The usual pretty girls hopped in and out of the costlier models, and the usual married pairs lingered and stared wistfully at the shiny contraptions. No samples, alas, were given out!

• • • •

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Elissa Landi the movie beauty of stately mien, says she is definitely through with pictures, and will devote the rest of her youth and beauty to the stage and novel-scribbling. Perhaps also to handsome tenor Nino Martini (to whom she may be married by the time this sees ink). She's in a play here at present . . .

• • • •

Small dachshunds are the pup of the hour here, highly touted by their owners because of their affection for their bosses. Sometimes the avenue looks like Unter den Linden, as a result, except that it has no tree-lawn . . .

• • • •

The Rockefellers having stumbled in show business, the big operetta "ViVrginia" at their Center Theater having failed dismally, they intend to fill the big, beautiful white elephant next with "The Threee Waltzes," a time show imported from Paris. Marguerita Sylva, once a famed Carmen and now well along, will warble in th troupe . . .

• • • •

I hear that Peggy Hopkins Joyce had a spot of discomfort in a night club a few eves ago with a tableful of Cuban people . . . And speaking of places to go at midnight to hear New York conversation, let me recommend the famous Cafe Royal, down on Second avenue. It is the pet haunt of the city's Jewish intelligentsia, where they gather over glasses of tea to thresh out literature, the theater and music. You may be lucky enough to have the Einstein theory explained to you in detail, with a fork employed for gestures, or have a musician hum you the entire third movement of Beethoven's Ninth, just to straighten out moot points of tempo and interpretation. A great spot.

• • • •

The big women's mags, Vogue and Harper's, have now issued orders to model agencies to send them no more models with page-boy bobs—only girls with 'brushed-up coiffures, now the stylish frenzy. Smart—but adds 10 years to the cuties' ages!

• • • •

The veil madness rages ever more frantically here just now. Remember when a gal wouldn't be caught dead wearing one in the evening. Now they are worn from 10 in the morning clear through the night. Literally, the demand for these flattering and flirty nets is 10 times as great as last season. The dictum is—short in the daytime; any length after dinner. Like 'em or not, you must admit they add allure, and are provocative. And very complimentary to the wearer.

TODAY'S HEALTH TALK

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Dental Neuralgia.

Yesterday, in answer to the question of what should be done for neuralgia of the teeth, we pointed out that usually neuralgia ascribed to the teeth is actually due to neuralgia of the fifth or sensory nerve of the face. There are, however, cases where neuralgia is of dental origin. In the presence of infection of the pulp, pain at the onset and through the various stages, the pulpitis is usually of a general reflex variety involving all the teeth in that region supplied by the branch of that nerve.

In order to differentiate between the two kinds of neuralgias a rough test is that heat will usually make neuralgia due to a decayed tooth worse, while it has no action whatever upon a real facial neuralgia.

It is often said that pulp stones are the cause of head pain of dental origin. A dentist friend of mine, however, tells me he does not believe this, because he finds pulp stones so frequently, even in perfectly sound teeth with no symptoms of neuralgia, that it is hard to make out any relationship.

A neuralia which could, paradoxically, be called of dental origin, is that in which loss of back teeth or ill-fitting plates allows pressure of the jaw bone on the nerve structures. This comes from what used to be called too short teeth or overbite. I have referred to it before this summer. It is an extremely important and frequent form of trouble, and it is only recently that the relationship between the ill-fitting teeth and the neuralgia has been pointed out. These poor plates also cause neuralgia of the tongue, and may cause slight deafness and ear noises.

Seek 'Naturalness,' Not Glamour, Marta Abba's Advice to Women

Italian Actress Says Girls Should Cultivate Interests to Make Them Vital, and Not Ape Traits of Movie Heroines.

By Nancy Archibald.

THE PRESENT feminine craze for glamour is deplored by Marta Abba. Rather she would have women seek after "naturalness."

The feminine lead of "Tovarich" thus theorized about charm yesterday in her suit at the Hay-Adams House, which appropriately enough is furnished in Italian style. Her costume of simplest black, with a small rope of pearls at the throat to relieve the severity, was a splendid illustration for the individuality she insists is necessary to make a woman truly interesting.

Speaking both in Italian, French, and well-modulated English, the lovely blonde from Lombardy tried to put over her point. "I do not approve of this glamour that advertises celebrities and appears in modern novels," she said. "It makes women imitate gestures and mannerisms in the hope of acquiring charm. Women the world over are swept by this fever, and it is especially a pity for young girls. They try so hard to be like their favorite heroines that they lose the grace of being natural."

Need of Vital Interests.

Signorina Abba's blue eyes grew quite concerned and she gesticulated emphatically with her fine white hands as she said "It is so important for a woman to keep her own personality—even in my acting, where I must forget myself entirely and think only of the meaning the playwright wishes to convey, I cannot escape myself. My voice is still my own, my face can only be changed a little by make-up. And it is this fusion of my characteristics with those planned in the dialogue that makes a living character in the play . . . So in home-life it is the woman's own self added to the interests of the family that makes her vital.

Speaking of her role in "Tovarich," Signorina Abba said she did not study the superficial details involved, "No, I did not think about airs of aristocracy in playing the part of an Imperial Grand Duchess," she said, "I thought first of Tina's character. The regal way she carries herself just followed. I do not wish to make a cold portrait of a titled White Russion, I want Tina, alive, worried by circumstances, yet gay and gallant at all times. That is, I think, her charm—'la gioia della vita" (joy of life)—the ability to welcome good and bad fortune alike without becoming embittered by sorrows."

Foreign "Fascinators."

Marta Abba shrugged her shoulders when asked the secret of a foreign woman's fascination. "There is no secret," she said, "American women who travel in Europe are just as attractive to people abroad as foreigners are to you when they visit this country. Women in Italy are like other Continentals, perhaps they are a little more strongly individual in their thoughts and tastes. Certainly they are getting the reputation of dresing as smartly as Parisians. While general style trends come from France, the Italian woman chooses primarily to reflect her own temperament rather than the dictates of a fashion-house. Perhaps because there are few big department stores, even in Rome, and an enormous number of little shops where things can be designed especially, Italian women show a great variety in their choice of color and line. It is again a reflection of this distinctiveness in which I firmly believe."

Dance by Lovely Panamanian Girls in Fiesta Costumes Sets New High Mark for Celebrations of Independence Day

Minister's Daughter in Group Which Enthralls Distinguished Official and Diplomatic Crowd at Legation on Republic's 34th Anniversary.

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor

Fifteen lovely Panamanian girls in native fiesta costumes, set off with effective jewelry and colorful headdresses, kept yesterday's reception at the Legation of Panama from being just another pleasant party in celebration of an independence day.

Many of the men and women walking through the massive doorway of the Legation on New Hampshire avenue doubtless remembered they were there because a country occupying the isthmus connecting North and South America declared itself a republic 34 years ago. But chances are, their thoughts on departing were centered far more on the colorful group of dancers who furnished the high point in yesterday's entertainment.

An hour after the first guest arrived the music began and a sonorous voice coming through a loud speaker announced this part of the program. Filing down the winding stairway from the third floor came 15 senoritas, each one attired in a "pollera," the typical Panamanian costume, with hand embroidered flounces, low necklines and colored lace. Each girl paused on the lower landing as she was introduced and then proceeded to the middle of the reception hall. Then, before half the guests realized what an exceptional treat was in store, the dancing was under way.

Swaying this way and that, dipping forward and then stepping back gracefully, the girls began the first number—while guests crowded closer, some patting their hands in time to the music. There were three dances, the second of which included young men. Climax of the program was a "candle dance," with lights turned out and only the glow of a lighted candle in each girl's hand illuminating the scene; then—all too soon—the colorful interlude was over and the performers dispersed into a crowd that applauded for fully 5 minutes.

Senorita Dora Boyd Among the Dancers

"Who are those lovely girls?" This question rippled throughout the crowd. They were a group made up of young women from Washington and New York, several of whom had come to the Capital especially to take part in the program. In the assembly were Senorita Dora Raquel Boyd, daughter of the host and hostess, and Senorita Eloisa Arango, who also makes her home at the legation.

Before the spotlight of attention turned on the dancers, guests were busy depositing their calling cards and greeting the Minister of Panama and Senora de Boyd, who received their guests in the drawing room. Senora de Boyd was attired in a floor-length frock of pencil-blue crepe, cut on simple lines and trimmed with silver.

From the drawing room the usual line of travel was toward the dining room, where at a long table decorated with autumn flowers, Latin-American dainties and sandwiches, small cakes and coffee were served. A side table not far away and another in an adjoining room attracted guests desiring champagne and other drinks.

Mrs. Cummings Arrives Early

Among early arrivals was Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, wife of the Attorney General, who received congratulations several hours ahead of time on her birthday, which is today. Frau Dieckhoff, wife of the German Ambassador, was another I glimpsed before the crowd assumed enormous proportions. In a trim black suit and small high-crowned black hat, she was chatting with a group which included Frau von Boetticher, wife of the Military and Air Attache of the German Embassy.

Senora Giner de los Rios, wife of the Spanish Ambassador, was besieged on all sides with inquiries about H. G. Wells, novelist, who was entertained at luncheon at the Spanish Embassy yesterday, and the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera were also particularly popular guests, seeming to have an extensive number of friends in the gathering.

As usual, the Chinese Ambassador, Dr. C. T. Wang, and his attractive daughter, Miss Yoeh H. Wang, who wore a black silk frock with green accents, were centers of interesting and interested groups. The Commercial Attache of the Chilean Embassy was there with Senora Gabler de Campbell and their daughter, Senorita Eleanor Campbell; also The Dominican Minister and Senora de Pastoriza and the Counselor of the Greek Legation, Nicholas Lely, who said the Greek Minister would be there any moment, though I never did see him.

Arriving for the latter half of the party were the Siamese Minister and Mme. Rajamaitri, she in a flowered frock of black and white and a small, black-veiled hat; the affable and able Counselor of the Argentine Embassy, Hector Ghiraldo, and pretty Senora de Ghiraldo; Senora Rafael Requena, whose stunning black ensemble contrasted nicely with her silver hair, and the State Department's popular chief of protocol, George T. Summerlin, who could scarcely take a step without being quizzed about how the duke and duchess were to be received here.

Among others I glimpsed were Mrs. William Jennings Price, in a black insemble topped with a smart black hat trimmed in folds of cerise and gray. Mrs. Stanley White, Mrs. Peyton March, Mrs. Dion Williams, Mrs. Abner Drury, Dr. and Mrs. Robert E. Moran and dozens of others.

Harris & Ewins.

Senorita Marie Arias, daughter of Senor and Senora Luis C. Arias, and Senorita Elvirita Vallarino, daughter of Senor and Senora Octavio Vallarino, enjoy a cocktail after their participation in the entertainment at the Panama Legation's reception yesterday.

Notables Book Lecture Seats

James G. McDonald First Town Hall Series Speaker.

The Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, the Japanese Ambassador and Mme. Saito, and the Minister of the Dominican Republic are among those who have reserved seats for the Town Hall of Washington this season. The first forum will be held November 14 at the Rialto Theater, when James G. McDonald, former chairman of the Foreign Policy Association, will speak on "The Present Crisis in Europe."

With members of Congress already beginning to return to Washington for the special session, beginning November 15, it is expected that many Senators and Representatives with their wives will be in the audience at the first meeting. Among sponsors of the Town Hall from Congress are Senator and Mrs. Charles L. McNary, Senator and Mrs. Alben W. Barkley, Senator and Mrs. Millard Tydings, who are now en route to Washington after a trip to Hawaii, Representative and Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Representative and Mrs. James W. Wadsworth and Representative Edith Nourse Rogers.

Mrs. Richard V. Oulahan is director of the Town Hall and Mrs. Frank Bohn is associate director.

Stanleys to Honor Mrs. Cummings on Anniversary Today

Mrs. Homer Cummings, wife of the Attorney General, celebrates her birthday today and will be entertained at a party in her honor given by Mr. and Mrs. William Stanley this evening at the Mayflower Hotel.

Mr. Stanley was formerly assistant to the Attorney General. The Stanleys now live in Laurel, Md.

Off for New York early next week, Mrs. Cummings will remain there several days en route to Greenwich, Conn., for a short visit.

Polish Envoy Will Hold Reception on Thursday

The Polish Ambassador, Count Jerzy Potocki, has issued invitations to a reception on Thursday, November 11, from 5 to 7 o'clock, at the Embassy.

Celebration of the Independence Day of the Republic of Poland is the reason for the event.

LOADED TO THE gunwhales with titled passengers, the German liner Europa steamed into New York the other day. Among those on board was Viscountess d'Osmoy, who arrived the spend some time in Providence and in Washington with her brother-in-law and sister, Senator and Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry. The Gerrys are now at their Rhode Island home and their return to Washington is indefinite.

The viscountess is the former Susan LeRoy Dresser, and now makes her home in Nice on the French Riviera.

Another titled passenger on the Europa was the Countess Sigray, who is here to join her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Gerard. Mr. Gerard is former United States Ambassador to Germany and was the President's representative at the coronation. He frequently visits Washington and was guest of honor at a large dance given last spring at the Sulgrave Club by the late W. Forbes Morgan and Mrs. Morgan.

HEADED BY F. Trubee Davison, former Assistant Secretary of War, a section of New York society is going in for paleontological dinners at the American Museum of Natural History. Eight New Yorkers will be hosts at a series of dinners to be given at the museum during November under the auspices of the museum's ten-year development program of which A. Perry Osborn is executive chairman. At these unique meetings members of the museum's active scientific staff will discuss the various activities of that institution in the fields of research, exploration and exhibition. Mr. and Mrs. Grover C. Loening and William Sheffield Cowles are among those well known here who will entertain at these scientific dinners.

Matron Leaves Home in Capital

Mrs. Watson Makes Good Boast and Moves to Warrenton.

Mrs. Henry Winfield Watson left yesterday for Warrenton, but not on a visit. The fact of the matter is that she has made good her threat, about which we heard last August, of going to the "country" to live.

The house she has leased in Warrenton belongs to Mrs. Frances Scott Carter and is on Culpeper street. "It's big and old-fashioned and has a nice garden," explained Mrs. Watson, between orders to the van men who yesterday were moving her many rare and lovely paintings and books and furniture out of what is now her former home on Massachusetts avenue.

Mrs. Watson spent the summer in Nantucket, Mass.

* * * *

Mrs. Henry Wilder Keyes (Frances Parkinson Keyes) spent yesterday in Staunton, Va., as the guest of Miss Helen Walter, who entertained at a tea and reception in her honor.

On Sunday afternoon, Mrs. Keyes will be hostess at a tea complimenting Mrs. William A. Becker, president general of the D. A. R., and Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward, assistant administrator of the Federal Works Progress Administration. The tea will take place from 5 to 7 o'clock in Mrs. Keyes' new apartment at 1819 G street.

* * * *

Mr. and Mrs. Charlton M. Clark and Miss Elizabeth Clagett Clark, who arrived in New York Tuesday, after an extended trip abroad, will return to their home on Kilbourne place within the next few days.

While in Europe they spent September in Italy and also visited Switzerland, Germany and Austria. In Brussels they were given a dinner and a tea by the American Consul and Mrs. Charles Broy. Also, they were entertained at a tea with Mme. M. Havernith as hostess in her chateau at Bonlez, near Brussels.

* * * *

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Nold, of San Leandro, Calif., are stopping at the Dodge while in the Capital.

Tea Will Honor Marquis James, Pulitzer Author

Marquis James, author and Pulitzer prize winner, whose most recent novel, "Andrew Jackson, Portrait of a President," was published a few weeks ago, will be guest of honor at a tea given by Miss Elizabeth Howry this afternoon.

In Washington to do research in connection with a series of magazine articles, Mr. James now is collecting material on the Secretary of State, Cordell Hull.

3 Diplomats, Wives Depart for Posts

A-sailing they did go.

Namely, Mrs. Robert W. Bingham, wife of the United States Ambassador to Great Britain, who left New York for London yesterday on the Queen Mary.

Also passing by the Statue of Liberty on their way down to the sea on the Manhattan were Owen J. C. Norem, United States Minister to Lithuania, and Mrs. Norem; and Edwin C. Kemp, United States Consul General at Breman, and Mrs. Kemp.

Aboard the Europa as it cleared New York Harbor was the Netherlands Minister to the United States, H. M. de With.

Carrs Enjoying New Home in Czech Capital

Envoy's Wife Writes That Legation Has 6-Acre Garden Plot.

Well, the Wilbur Carrs (they left after a deluge of bon voyage parties last summer when Mr. Carr, former Assistant Secretary of State, received the post of Minister to Czechoslovakia) are all settled in the American Legation in Prague, a building that is so large that Mrs. Carr admits she may have to "take to roller skates" to get about in it.

Mrs. Carr, who is thrilled about their new abode, the Vrtha Palace, writes, in a recent letter to Mrs. Wade Hampton Ellis, that it has a 6-acre garden, "the joy of our hearts," with five terraces, from the top of which one may enjoy a beautiful and wide-flung view of the picturesque city.

At present, she told Mrs. Ellis, "it is giving us quantities of roses, dahlias, pansies and salvia, not forgetting lettuce, radishes, beets, beans and red apples." There are trees loaded with apples, pears and quinces and three gardeners are at work all the time keeping it up to snuff."

Shortly after their arrival in Prague, Mr. Carr, as representative of the United States, took part in the services given in honor of the former President and founder of modern Czechoslovakia, Thomas G. Masaryk. The week following the Carrs had luncheon with Jan Masaryk, son of the famous Czechoslovakian leader and now holding the portfolio of his country as Minister to London. They were entertained by him at the famous old palace, 20 miles from Prague, which the government gave to his father.

After three busy days in Berlin, during which the Carrs were feted by Mrs. William E. Dodd, wife of the American Ambassador to Germany, and by the American Consul General, at whose dinner in their honor Mrs. Carr sat next to the violinist, Fritz Kreisler, and then they went on to Prague to find the staff of the legation awaiting them and a crackling fire roaring in the hospitable fireplace of the Vrtha Palace.

Since then their schedule has been full with luncheons at the German Legation, the British Legation and at the Swiss Legation—not to mention their attendance of the opera "Rigoletto" with American Lawrence Tibbetts in the title role.

Out on Wyoming avenue, their Washington residence is boarded up and waiting for them, when and if they ever manage to tear themselves away from the fascinating Old World capital of Czechoslovakia.

Returns From Newport.

Mrs. E. H. G. Slade has returned from Newport and has opened her house on Eighteenth street for the winter.

Hessler Studio.

MISS MARGUERITE HAGNER.

Mrs. Randall H. Hagner announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Marguerite Colton Hagner, to F. Moran McConihe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Stuart McConihe. No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Hagner attended the Ethel Walker School at Simsbury, Conn., and made her debut here two years ago. Mr. McConihe is a graduate of St. Paul's School and Princeton University.

Both Miss Hagner and Mr. McConihe are well known in social and civic activities here, and Mr. McConihe is affiliated with the Community Chest campaign each year.

Mrs. Randall H. Hagner was the former Marguerite Colton, a member of one of Washington's cave dweller families, and made her debut, as did her daughter, here in Washington.

Notables to Attend Concert Tonight

Music lovers in Washington diplomatic and social circles are making plans to attend the concert this evening in the Raleigh Hotel ballroom, which features the Metropolitan Opera String Quartet, with Amelia Conti, harpist, and Sylvia Grazzini, coloratura soprano, from New York City.

Among those planning to attend are the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera, Senora de Suarez, wife of the Cuban senator, and her daughter, Senorita Tete Suarez; the Cuban Consul and Senora de Sera, Miss Emma T. Hahm, Dr. and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Schiffeler, Mr. and Mrs. Luther E. Schreiner, Mr. and Mrs. Jules Ricker, Dr. Edith Seville Coale, Mrs. Arthur J. Seaton, Mrs. Huron W. Mrs. Lawson Entertains London Club Executive Mrs. Herbert C. French, Vice President of American Group in English Metropolis, Is Luncheon Guest; Tells of Work There.

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

Mrs. Herbert C. French, first vice president of the American Women's Club of London, was in Washington yesterday and the luncheon guest of Mrs. Robert Campbell Lawson, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, at the federation headquarters. It is the first time in 17 years Mrs. French has been in her native United States and she is "thrilled and delighted" she says with everything she has found here including the cordial attitude of the people.

When she told her English friends she was coming back for a visit "thrilled and delighted," she says, with everything she has found here, disappointed; that she would undoubtedly find many things irritating to her, and the people too abrupt in their manner. After six days in New York and one in Washington, she announced with enthusiasm that she had found nothing of the kind—everyone was pleasant and friendly and no one was irritating.

The American Woman's Club in London has a membership of nearly 1,000, says Mrs. French . . . 600 town and country members and the rest overseas members who spend only a short time in London each season. It was founded in 1915 by a group under the leadership of Mrs. Curtis Brown, who is still its president. Its charter members were American women who had been meeting together for dinners once a month and doing war work together. They decided to form a club; had $250 in the treasury and with this, they bought a clubhouse and made it pay for itself. Since then another has been acquired which is a center for American women in London. Many make their residence there while they are in the city as it has ample accommodations with its 27 bedrooms.

"Being more or less strangers in a strange land, we do no civic work," said Mrs. French, "but we endeavor to be of as much service as possible in the country of our adoption. We support the Washington ward of the Royal Free Hospital for Women, providing about 800 garments a year, made at the Monday sewing parties of our welfare department, and contribute $500 yearly to the children's ward, an amount partly raised by benefit bridge parties. The philanthropic committee also aids American club members who are in financial need and have lived so long in England they cannot be sent back to this country although they are not British subjects nor entitled to help from English charities as such. Each year we also choose an additional charitable enterprise to which to give our special support."

One of the popular features of the club is its circulating library of nearly 3,000 books, with a committee of 30 members serving as volunteers to keep it open every day except Sunday. Members pay $1.25 a year for the privilege of using it and may take out one new book and one old one each week. The study circles include current events, music, and the theater, and a monthly magazine is issued.

Mrs. French expressed the appreciation of American women living abroad for the friendship tours sponsored by the General Federation in which club women from the United States visit the Federation's member-clubs abroad. "It makes us feel we are still as much a part of America and as important to the Federation as clubs in Massachusetts or Arkansas," she said . . . "Women over here can hardly realize how much these tours mean to us."

Mrs. French, who is a guest of Mrs. William Castle during her brief stay in Washington, is going from here to Boston, where she formerly lived. He son, Humphrey French, of the Royal Ulster Rifles, is with her.

Senora de Aya Is Guest Today Of Miss Stevens

Senora Ruperto de Aya, of Bogota, Colombia, is spending today in Washington as the guest of Miss Doris Stevens, chairman of the Inter-American Commission of Women.

Senora de Aya is a woman of distinguished family and many public achievements. Although educated in France and England, she has spent her adult life in Colombia, where she manages properties which have been in the family for many generations. She also is an ardent feminist and will confer with Miss Stevens concerning the work of the commission in Colombia. In addition to conferences, she will be received by Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director general of the Pan-American Union, at 11:30 and at 1:30 o'clock, Mrs. George T. Rublee will entertain in her honor at a luncheon at her home on 2840 Woodland drive.

The other guests will include Senora Rosa Huerta de Viteri Lafronte, member for Ecuador on the Inter-American Commission of Women and wife of the chief of the Ecuadorean boundary commission; Senora Fina Tudela, wife of the chief of the Peruvian boundary commission; Mrs. James Brown Scott, Miss Stevens, Senorita Minerva Bernardino, feminist leader of the Dominican Republic, and Mrs. Burnita Shelton Matthews.

At 4:30 Serona de Aya and Miss Stevens will take tea at the home of Senora dona Flora de Oliveira Lima, member for Brazil on the Inter-American Commission of Women, at Senora de Lima's home, 1507 Park road, and at 6 o'clock they will be guests of the Minister of Colombia and Senora de Lopez, at the Colombian Legation.

Envoy of Norway And Wife to Take Trip to New York

The Norwegian Minister and Mrs. Munthe de Morgenstierne will go to New York today for a brief visit. Tomorrow evening they will attend the dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria, given by the Norwegian Chamber of Commerce, in honor of Dr. Halvdan Koht, Norwegian minister of foreign affairs.

On Saturday they will see Dr. Koht off on the Stavangerfjord, the same ship on which he arrived on October 26.

Sorority Women To Meet Nov. 23

The Panhellenic Association of Washington will hold its second meeting of the season November 23, at 8:15 p. m. at the A. A. U. W. clubhouse to consider plans for its annual luncheon in February.

Miss Helen Marie Martell, of Delta Zeta sorority, is new president succeeding Mrs. John F. Warlick, Zeta Tau Alpha. The presidency changes annually with a different national sorority represented each year.

Miss Martell presided at the opening dinner and meeting held at the A. A. U. W. clubhouse Tuesday evening when preliminary plans for the February luncheon were discussed.

Other new officers are: Mrs. Joseph Roney, Phi Mu, vice president; Miss Regis Dunnigan, Kappa Delta, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Leighton Johnston, Alpha Delta Theta, recording secretary; Mrs. Ina L. Price, Theta Upsilon, treasurer; Miss Elizabeth Mann, Beta Sigma Omicron, historian.

Fete Draws Heads Of Ward-Belmont

The Washington, Maryland and Virginia Alumnae Association of Ward-Belmont School, Nashville, Tenn., will entertain at a luncheon Saturday at 1 o'clock, at the Dodge Hotel. Guest of honor will be Miss Elizabeth Phillips, executive secretary of the alumnae association, who will come from Nashville especially for the event. Colored movies of campus life will be shown.

Among the guests will be Mrs. R. B. C. Howell, president of the Nashville Alumnae Association; Mrs. Curtiss T. Garner and Mrs. J. S. Hall, of Baltimore, and the following of Washington: Mrs. James B. Howe, Mrs. I. L. Morrison, Mrs. C. F. Warner, Mrs. Patt Rayburn, Mrs. R. K. Srygley, Mrs. Edness Wilkins, Mrs. Louis Peak, Mrs. John Goodloe, Mrs. Raymond Zimmerman, Mrs. Charles Trammell, sr., Miss Mary West, Mrs. William P. Huxley and Mrs. P. B. Richardson.

Judge Linebarger to Speak.

Following a club dinner at the Arts Club this evening, members will hear a discussion of the factors behind the situation in China today by Judge Paul Myron Linebarger, who for 30 years has been the legal adviser of Sun Yat Sen and the National government of China. The talk is entitled, "How America Can Avoid War While Helping China and Promoting World Peace." Mr. and Mrs. George Hewitt Myers will be hosts.

"Madame Chairman" . . .

By Suzanne.

YESTERDAY in the Capital seemed one for visits of important clubwomen from out of the city. Mrs. Charles E. Gregory, of New Rochelle, N. Y., was one of them—conferring at the General Federation headquarters and with authorities at the Bureau of Standards.

She is founder and director of the American Institute for Family Living, which engages in research as to the cost, quality and utility of everything which concerns the American family from raising to refrigerators. A few years ago, as chairman of home making for the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs, she organized and directed the Home Making Center in Grand Central Palace and later planned the demonstration apartment opposite the Public Library on Fifth avenue in New York, designed to show young people how to furnish an attractive four-room apartment on $500.

Her first venture in demonstration home-making projects was as chairman of the "better homes week" exhibit of the New Rochelle Woman's Club, which won a national prize some years ago. After that she was drafted as head of the American home department of the federation and has been working on that line ever since. Last week she spoke before the Connecticut State federation on the research work in which the Institute for Family Living is now engaged.

TABLES in the Queen Elizabeth Room of the Raleigh were set in the shape of the Greek letter "A" last night for the birthday banquet of Alpha Chapter of Kappa Gamma, cultural sorority. Dr. Dorothea Wassman was chairman of the affair with Rosamond Gaydash, Melva Mills, Mrs. Belle Abrams and Ruby Stoner assisting her, and about 30 members and guests were present. Red and gold flowers and candles were the decorations.

THE QUOTA CLUB, by the way, is having its monthly dinner and business meting at the Parrott Tea Room tonight, with Dr. Mary A. Northam, of Batlimore, as guest of honor.

A TEA PARTY, the "party" part of which was paid for by the guests, was held yesterday by the National League of Republican Women at its clubhouse on Seventeenth street. Mrs. Frank Mondell, first vice president, was hostess and Mme. Cantacuzene, the president, and Mrs. Edward W. Gann were among those who assisted her in receiving. The tea was the first in a series on Wednesdays, at which the vice presidents will be hostesses, planned both to give members opportunity to see the new clubhouse and to increase the fund which will help the league carry on its future work—which explains why there was a charge for the tea.

Next week Mrs. William S. Culbertson will be hostess; the following Wednesday, Mrs. Warren J. Haynes, and the next, Mrs. William Doak.

THE WEEK-END is a busy one for the Y. W. C. A. Tomorrow night the high school Girl Reserves are having their first interclub supper and frolic—"Hollywood Review"—and, on Saturday, there are two important events, a program the morning at 10 o'clock in which Muriel Lester will read from her own books, and in the evening, a Kamp Kahlert reunion, with supper and a camp program reminiscent of the summertime.

PHYLLIS FERGUS HOYT, the much-loved national president of the League of American Pen Women, was a guest yesterday at the Wednesday tea of the local branch in its studio at the Grafton Hotel. She will also be present today at its book review luncheon there, as the guest of the D. C. branch president, Marguerite Merigold.

The program yesterday was by Sally Osburn, violinist, with her teacher, Elena de Sayn, at the piano. Mrs. Augustus Thomas, hostess for the day, was assisted by Mrs. Claudia Wright Scott, Mrs. W. Harry King, Mrs. Bertha Shanks Chaney and Mrs. Redwood Vandergrift, and at the tea table were Mrs. James W. Crabtree and Mrs. Ruth Norcross Hoxie.

"ONCE A SOROPTIMIST always a Soroptimist" was the welcome of the Washington club to its former members at a homecoming luncheon at the Willard Hotel. Among them were Mrs. Helena Reed, past president; Mrs. Jane Ryan, Dr. Lulu I. Waters, Miss Celeste Hodges, Miss Mary Shaw, Mrs. Jean Corens and Mrs. Sadie Trapp. Daisy Reed, the president, presided and Mrs. Celia Stach, who was in charge of the program, presented Mrs. Charlotte A. Hankin as honor guest and speaker.

Strayer College Queen Honor Guest at Dance

Jo Robinson, Strayer College queen and a member of the court of honor of the District's Halloween queen, will be the guest of honor at a rush dance of Alpha Omega Chapter of Alpha Iota, national commercial sorority, to be held Saturday night in the Washington Hotel.

A "Big Apple" contest will be the feature of the dance. Judges will be Elgie Purvis, college dean; L. E. Smith, registrar, and Franklin Chace, accounting instructor. A prize waltz and spot dance will also be staged.

Committee members in charge of arrangements include Ruth Staubus, chairman; Betty Ann Hall, Madelyn Gerling, Doris Pratt, Marie Swann and Miss Elizabeth Glenn, faculty sponsor.

21 Women's Circles Aid Crittenton Girls

Cooking, Sewing, Business Courses and Classes in Art and Current Events Conducted and Special Funds Maintained for Home.

Cooking, sewing and business courses, a current events class and classes in art are among educational opportunities provided for girls at Florence Crittenton Home through activities of 21 Crittenton circles in the District.

The circles meet regularly, sometimes for luncheon at the home, and they include in their membership a large group of representative women of Washington, nearby Virginia and Maryland. A Christmas fund, dental and art funds and an educational loan fund are maintained.

Art classes for the girls were started several years ago by Mrs. Lloyd W. Biddle, president of the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs and a member of Reba Barrett Circle, named for Mrs. Reba Barrett Smith, of Alexandria, daughter of Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, one of the founders of the movement. When Mrs. Biddle was obliged to give up the classes because of other duties, Mrs. Robert Hazell took them over and has continued them. These are maintained by this circle, of which she is a member.

There is also a big sister movement sponsored within the circles to aid girls after they leave the home. Miss Anne Rogers, a caseworker, is at the head of this group, which includes at least one representative of each circle.

Wheel Club is the oldest of the circles, with Mrs. Miriam Alvord as its president. The others include Loyalty, with Mrs. Jesse Anthony, president; Foxhall Village, Mrs. Ray W. Bell, president; Reba Barrett, Mrs. A. M. Ayres, acting president; Good Will, Mrs. Walter A. Brown, president; Mary Louise English Circle, named for the daughter of Mrs. Merton A. English, who is its president; Maud Belle, Mrs. Leo Speer, president.

Also, Chevy Chase Circle, Mrs. Michael McInerney, president; Charlotte Pogue, Mrs. Charles Patterson, president; Burrall Class Circle, Mrs. F. R. Mitchell; Wesley Heights, Mrs. Louise B. Montfort; Florence Circle, Mrs. J. Francis Moore; Jean S. Cole Circle, named for Miss Cole, superintendent of the home; Mrs. L. H. Parker, president; Belle Lane, with Mrs. Ira B. Priddy, president; Dahlgren Terrace, Mrs. A. C. Proctor, president; Helen Wood Circle, named for a former member of the Wheel Club, with Mrs. E. H. Rietzke, president; Helping Hand, Mrs. Todd Thoman, president; Dr. Kate Waller Barrett Circle, Mrs. Fred Umhau, president; Pollyanna, Mrs. Kermit Taylor, president; Chevy Chase Baptist, Mrs. Mabel H. Test, and All Souls Unitarian, Mrs. Clift Richards, president.

Reba Barrett Circle at its last meeting appropriated $25 to the teachers' fund for courses carried on at the home and at its meeting November 18 will prepare good cheer packages for the girls. Every session for each of the circles means a step forward in the program of helpfulness.

Mr. and Mrs. James Fisher, who have been spending some time in Atlantic City, are now stopping at the Dodge for a few days en route to their home in Toronto.

Mrs. Grayson Fetes Rowac

Mrs. Cary T. Grayson, wife of Admiral Grayson, head of the American Red Cross, was hostess yesterday at a luncheon for members of the ROWAC Club, composed of wives of officers of the organization in Washington.

About 35 members were served a buffet luncheon. They assembled in the drawing room at small tables placed before a crackling wood fire in the broad fireplace. Large bouquets of chrysanthemums in different autumn shades were used both in this room and in the dining room where the buffet table was set.

Mrs. William Hepner, the president, presided at the business meeting which followed the luncheon—the first session of the season devoted to business matters, as the September gathering was a picnic and that last month, a guest day tea.

Mrs. Grayson, who is welfare chairman for the club, presented as the speaker of the afternoon, Miss Alta Dines, of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, in New York City. Miss Dines is here for four months, working in the nursing service of the Red Cross. She talked on "Social Security," of which she has made a special study in her field. Following her discussion a period was given over to questions and she was kept nearly half an hour later, answering them.

The next meeting of the club will be the annual Christmas party, and will be at the home of Mrs. Edward Cavin. Each member will bring a gift, marked for a boy or girl of a certain age, to be taken later to Children's Hospital for the little patients there.

* X WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1937 19

This Morning

Pirates Almost Got Walter Johnson.

By Shirley Povich.

On Saturday night at the Mayflower Hotel, 500 friends and admirers of Walter Johnson will honor the Big Train at a testimonial dinner. The fiftieth birthday of Walter Johnson is the excuse for the party.

For 30 years, ever since that August day in 1907 when, as a gangling young countryman from Weiser, Idaho, he stepped to the mound for the Washington club for the first time, Walter Johnson has been a Washington institution. Never has the greatest pitcher of them all tossed a ball for any big league club except Washington. But——

POVICH.

The honor of honoring Walter Johnson would not be Washington's except for what must take rank as the greatest blunder in the managerial history of big league baseball. Pittsburgh fans would even now be acclaiming Walter Johnson as their own. Washington's would be only a long distance affection for Johnson. Only by the greatest stroke of luck did the Washington club acquire Johnson in 1907.

* * * *

The story of the signing of Johnson by Cliff Blankenship, a Washington scout, is old. Blakenship, the Washington catcher who was out of the line-up with an injured leg, had been dispatched on a scouting tour by Manager Joe Cantillon in the summer of 1907. In Idaho he heard about a big Swede who was burning up a semiprofessional league.

* * * *

On the day that Blankenship arrived to scout Johnson, he saw a raw-boned young fellow with abnormally long arms pitch a shutout. Inquiry brought the information that that shut-out by Johnson was the ninth consecutive game in which the young pitcher had not allowed a run. Blankenship signed him to a Washington contract on the spot.

* * * *

Old, too, is the story of how Walter Johnson, as a kid of 20, faced the Detroit Tigers in his opening ball game in the big leagues, how he was beaten, 3 to 2, because he didn't know how to field a bunt. Six hits he allowed that day, three of them were bunts. Not a man did he walk, six he struck out. It was the beginning of baseball's greatest pitching career.

* * * *

Well, that brilliant 20-year pitching career might have begun and endured with the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League instead of the Washington Club, it has been learned only lately.

* * * *

This department is now privileged to tell the story. It is contained in the papers of the late George L. Moreland, famed in his time as a baseball writer and authority on the game. Among his several works on baseball is the highly factual and illuminating tome "Baseballdom."

* * * *

The late Mr. Moreland relates that in the spring of 1907, four months before the Washington club signed Johnson, "I was tipped off by an umpire named McGuire that a fellow named Walter P. Johnson had pitched some great ball around Idaho and the coast towns. I relayed my information to my very good friend, Fred Clarke, manager of the Pirates.

* * * *

"The Pirates that season were training at Hot Springs, Ark., Clarke said he wasn't interested in Johnson, pointing out that his team was all set and that they would break camp in two days. I told him I had it on good authority that young Johnson was surefire big league timber.

* * * *

"Carke and the Pirates could have taken a look at Johnson for an expenditure of $18, which would have covered the train fare from Weiser to Hot Springs and return. But the Pirates did not make the investment. As it turned out, there would have been no return ticket to Weiser necessary if Johnson had reported to the Pirates. The Pittsburgh club would have acquired the greatest pitcher of them all for exactly $9."

* * * *

Burdened by the weakest club in the league, Johnson nevertheless compiled a pitching record that for sheer brilliance is unparalleled. Heart-breaking were most of his defeats as the Washington team was unable to muster a run that would have tied the score or won the ball game.

* * * *

Forty times in his career with the Nats, Johnson was forced to win games by the utterly revealing score of 1 to 0—revealing in that the score attests eloquently of Johnson's individual brilliance and the shortcomings of the team behind him. Twenty times Johnson lost ball games by that same 1-to-0 score. Thus he figured in 60 1-to-0 ball games, 19 more than Grover Alexander, 21 more than the great Mathewson.

No wonder they're honoring that guy!

Ace Parker Signs With Pro Dodgers

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—Ace Parker, Duke's 1936 all-America football back, today wired acceptance of terms to play with the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National Professional Football League. Parker wired he would arrive by plane tonight, work out tomorrow and be ready to play against the Philadelphia Eagles Sunday.

Blue Birds Beaten, 41-7 By Redskins

D.C. Team Scores at Will Over Baltimoreans in Night Game.

Baltimore, Nov. 3.—Washington's Redskins showed Baltimore's Blue Birds how they do it in the big leagues here tonight as the National League gridders buried the Dixie representatives under a 41-to-7 score under the flood lights of Oriole Park.

The Redskins produced the football but the hosts produced the star in left-handed "Sunshine" Leroy Campbell, the unorthodox kicking and passing ace from Western Maryland, former all-State end, who definitely proved he is championship material as he scored the only Baltimore score and outpassed Sammy Baugh with a great exhibition, hitting his mark time and again with bullet-like throws, only to be nullified by a lack of qualified ends.

The Skins scored twice in every quarter but the second, by various routes, and with six different men carrying the ball over. It only took them three minutes to establish a 7-to-0 lead, with Cliff Battles scoring, and 5,000 fans left the park with a knowledge that the Blue Birds were not to be mentioned in the same breath with the Marshall-owned aggregation.

Redskins' Line Holds.

The Capital City lads gained and scored at will, while Campbell's passing was the only offense the Orioles could produce. Their attempts at the Redskin line resulted in a net loss.

On three end runs and a line buck following the kick-off Battles was over for a score and Riley Smith made the first of five perfect placements for their 7-point lead. Two minutes later, Sammy Baugh, idol of the crowd, carried the ball over from the 5-yard line, and Smith converted to make it 14 to 0.

Scoring was at a standstill for the remainder of the half, Joe Uvanni, another former Western Maryland star in the Blue Birds line-up, making the only real threat when he picked up a fumble and was run out on the 12-yard line after a 55-yard run.

On the second play following the last half kick-off, Riley Smith ran 64 yards for the third marker and converted. A few plays later Don Irwin took the ball to the Blue Birds 12-yard line on a 50-yard dash and Ed Britt carried it over on the next play by a country mile, Smith making the usual extra point from placement for a 28-to-0 lead.

Losers Put Over Score.

Here the losers made their offensive show as a pass from Campbell to Uvanni was good for about 40 yards to the Redskins 14-yard line. Campbell faded back on the next play, couldn't find a receiver and dashed 20 yards to a score as the spectators went wild at the antics of the ace who had thrilled them four years previous in the Municipal Stadium, home ground of Western Maryland. Wright converted, to make it 7, with a placement.

The remainder of the game was a scoring paradise. Milner going over after receiving a shovel pass from Baugh, then Carroll received a pass from Slinging Sam and ran 20 yards for the forty-first point. Battles missed the point after, the first one of the night.

Milner scored again but the pass was nullified as the Redskins were off-side, then the final whistle saved the Ogden-owned lads from a more severe lacing.

The frozen Baltimore fans left the park with the knowledge their team was outclassed, but they had consolation in producing the best man on the field last night, "Sunshine" Campbell.

Presidents, Celtics Play for Charity

Washington's underprivileged school children will benefit from a grudge game between the Washington Presidents and the St. Mary Celtics, Dixie League opponents, when they clash Sunday at Griffith Stadium at 3 p. m.

Possessors of the league lead, the Presidents will be after their fifth straight victory at the expense of the Celtics, who although they have sustained several defeats this season are considered one of the strongest teams in the circuit and proved their worth, Sunday, by defeating Ace Parker's Portsmouth Cubs.

Hubert Polishes Cadet Air Game

Lexington, Va., Nov. 3 (AP).—The V. M. I. Cadets busied themselves today with a brief offensive scrimmage in which blocking was stressed and then engaged in a long session of passing and pass defense for Maryland.

Coach Pooley Hubert especially praised the blocking of Ray Taylor, right end, who continued in scrimmage to handle opposing tackles as effectively as he has in recent games.

"Maryland's line may force us to take to the air again," Hubert remarked, "but their tackles will have their hands full if our ends block as well as they have been doing."

2,200 Fans See Amateur Bouts

By Jack Munhall.

Before a capacity throng of 2,200 persons, largest ever to witness preliminary bouts, the Golden Gloves Amateur Boxing Tournament continued last night at Turner's Arena, where the open class contenders swung into action. They share the spotlight with the novice scrappers who initiated the event last week.

Although the card on the whole provided plenty of thrills and spills, and Mike (Dizi Eslin, Rendezvous playboy, won his first bout that anybody can remember, the final clash of the evening easily stole the show.

Bobby Schwartz, defending 175-pound champion and a strong favorite to repeat, won a bruising 3-round decision from Tom Jordon, unattached, but not before a whirlwind finish by Jordon had left the final outcome in doubt. Schwartz, A. B. & W. color-bearer, who has beaten Jordon several times, found his slender, curly-haired foe a much improved fighter, but was awarded a unanimous and loudly booed decision on the strength of an early lead.

One novice champion was crowned when Wilson Gray, Police Boys Club No. 4 entry, outpointed Clinton Williams, Terminal Y. M. C. A., the only other competitor, in a bristling 3-rounder. In other novice bouts Leo Marcopulos, flashy Police No. 5 112-pounder, outpointed Julius Tretick, Washington, D. C., to gain the semi-final bracket with Nick Cherl, a teammate, who decisioned Hilton Rudd, unattached.

Billy Vermillion, W. B. C., returned to the ring wars after a lapse of several years and suffered the first knockout of his career when Glen Drake, of the Terminal Y. M. C. A., dealt him a terrific body beating and floored

Ole Miss to Fly Here for Battle With Colonials

Mississippi's fighting Rebels, who face George Washington's damn-Yankee Colonials tomorrow night, have decided to use their favorite mode of travel—plane—for the trip to Washington from Oxford, Miss. Coach Ed Walker wired G. W. authorities last night his squad would use two chartered air transports, arriving here tomorrow at 3:30 p. m.

The Ole Miss team traveled by plane to Philadelphia last month for its game with Temple. Walker believes the saving in time, hotel bills and missed classes more than offsets the added cost.

The G. W. squad went through a lengthy scrimmage yesterday at Griffith Stadium, its last heavy drill before the game. Following the scrimmage, Coach Jim Pixlee moved his charges into the H-street gym for skull practice. Since they will not arrive until late tomorrow, the Rebels are not expected to practice here.

All Is Forgiven—Ernie May See Santa Claus

Houston, Tex., Nov. 3 (AP).—"Pa" Lain says it's all right for son Ernie to come home for Christmas.

Ernie, 212-pound Rice Institute back, failed to connect with four passes early in the football season. "Pa"—H. L. Lain—feels rather strongly about that sort of thing, and there was some talk about rolling up the welcome mat.

But Ernie's record now is 11 completed passes in 15 tries and Saturday he passed Rice to a 13-7 victory over Auburn.

"Pa" feels better.

Layden Gets Pupils Ready for Panthers

Notre Dame Kicking Star, Whose Point-After-Touchdown Defeated Minnesota Last Week, Seen as Threat to Undefeated Pittsburgh Eleven.

By William Weekes.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—Notre Dame's handsome red brick stadium may be jammed to capacity for the first time Saturday when the Fighting Irish battle Pittsburgh's Panthers, and if it is, one of the reasons will be Andy Puplis' toe.

Probably no one will head for South Bend just to see Handy Andy kick the football, but it was his place-kick which gave Notre Dame its 7 to 6 triumph over Minnesota last week, that stirred up possibility of a full house of 56,000 for Saturday. Puplis' calm point-after-touchdown act gave Notre Dame its victory, and a victory over the powerful Northmen was all that was needed to put Ticket Manager C. Arthur Haley and his assistants to a lot of enjoyable work.

Since the upset triumph over the mighty men of Minnesota, a rush of orders from those who believe that what Notre Dame did to the Gophers it might be able to do to the undefeated Panthers, has kept Haley's department on the jump. The fact that Pittsburgh and the Irish will be playing the last game of their thrilling series also has something to do with it.

The biggest previous crowd in the stadium, between 52,000 and 53,000, saw Southern California's Trojans come from away back yonder on November 21, 1931, to wreck a perfect season for Notre Dame by a 16-to-14 score.

Even more eager to square accounts for last year's 26-to-0 beating

Feller Pitches In and Helps Folks on Farm

Van Meter, Iowa, Nov. 3 (AP).—Bob Feller, who says he'd like to forget baseball for a few months, celebrated his nineteenth birthday today by helping with the farm chores and doing a little hunting.

Bob, young pitching ace for the Cleveland Indians, gave the hired man a lift with the chores and then took down his trusty automatic rifle for a jaunt into the woods.

His mother had only the usual large noonday meal for the birthday dinner. No cake, no candles.

The important Feller arm? That's doing all right, he said. He doesn't expect a recurrence of the trouble which kept him from hitting his stride until late in the 1937 season.

3-Year-Old King Runs Faulty Race

Man O'War Son Trails Until Last and Fails to Respond to Whip; Masked General Runs Wide to Beat Self.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Pimlico Race Track, Nov. 3.—War Admiral will not race again this year.

This announcement was made tonight by Samuel D. Riddle, owner of the 3-year-old champion, following the Admiral's poor showing in winning the Pimlico Special this afternoon. Trainer George Conway will be given a two-month vacation.

War Admiral won by default. Belying his title of "super-horse," the son of Man o' War felt the sting of the whip and eked out a victory only because one of his three rivals ran to the outside fence at the turn into the stretch. Appearing anything but a champion, War Admiral came to the finish line a length and a half in advance of Masked General, heretofore obscure 3-year-old which ran a half city block farther than the son of Man o' War.

In trouble for the first time in his career despite the vest pocket field, War Admiral did not handle himself in his accustomed superior fashion and was trailing what appeared to be a potential winner by a length and a half entering the stretch. Unable to get to the front at any stage until presented with the lead, War Admiral was doing his best until the final 20 yards of the 1 3-16 miles race.

Low Odds Set Record.

War Admiral went to the post one of the shortest favoritees in Maryland history. The lights on the approximate odds board were turned off when the price shrunk below 1 to 9, and it was announced that the colt was 1 to 20. By paying $2.10 mutuel to win and the same to place, the lowest prices possible under the State's mutuel law, the track was forced to dig into the "breakage" to make up the difference.

Jockey Charlie Kurtsinger, who has ridden War Admiral in all his starts, said after the race that the 3-year-old champion failed to get into stride until the stretch. According to the jockey, War Admiral was not getting into firm footing and the ground broke from under him. However, War Admiral appeared to be in his usual good condition when returned to the winner's circle.

Despite the fact that few race fans believed that there was a chance in a million of War Admiral being extended, the program drew a crowd of 15,000 and $57,487 was wagered on the feature event. Regardless of how he won, War Admiral ran his winning streak to eight straight and virtually clinched the money-making title for the year when he added $5,680 to his earnings bringing his total to $160,820 for the year.

Had Inside Position.

War Admiral's time for the race was 1.58 4-5, the fraction over the track record and two-fifths of a second slower than his Preakness victory over the same ground last spring.

As had been the case since the start of the year, War Admiral did not start between horses. This time he had the inside post position, the same spot from which he began the Preakness. The original field of ten had shrunk to seven after scratch time this morning and three others dodged the issue later.

Only Masked General, War Minstrel and Bottle Cap lined up with the champion and Masked General was the longest shot of the quartet. War Admiral's post actions were usual. He pushed against two assistant starters and lunged forward at every opportunity. However, when the starting bell came he was not making his usual dive. Instead he began sort of flat-footed.

War Minstrel lunged to the front at the break and War Admiral appeared to lug out, soon finding himself between War Minstrel and Bottle Cap. As these three went toward the clubhouse turn, Masked General was full of run and had his head up on the flank of War Admiral. Perhaps feeling that Masked General, a habitual runner-outer, would lunge, Jockey Eccard was forced to take up the colt, losing several lengths.

Admiral Drops Back.

War Admiral failed to do the expected when he did not go through between his rivals. Instead he dropped back as War Minstrel became a definite leader turning into the back stretch. Bottle Cap soon dropped out of it, but Masked General, taking the long way around, moved up on the outside midway of the back stretch. It was at this point that Kurtsinger went to the whip for the first time in War Admiral's career. The champion failed to respond noticeably to the punishment, but ran steadily.

War Minstrel then began to fade and, like a shot, Masked General went to the top and gradually opened a lead. There were groans from the stands. Wasn't War Admiral doing his best and under punishment at that? Wasn't Masked General running rather easily and not under punishment?

Then came the "break" that spelled victory for War Admiral. When Eccard tried to turn Masked General's head to swing into the stretch, the colt failed to answer the bit. Across the track he went with Eccard standing in the stirrups, pulling futiley on the left rein. It was only as the outside fence loomed in front of him that Masked General swung into the straightaway. Meanwhile, Kurtsinger made the turn with War Admiral and he

U. S. Army Team Gains Big Lead at National Horse Show

Belgians Tie Canadians in Second Spot

Mrs. Whitney Wins Two Ribbons; Red Top Stable Stars.

By Orlo Robertson.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, Nov. 3.—The United States Army Show Team, with two of its youngest members riding like veterans, got away in front tonight in the international military jumping competition as society and horse lovers from the sidewalks of New York nearly packed Madison Square Garden for the formal opening of the National Horse Show.

Riding three horses wide in the ways of jumping, and a newcomer to the team, Lieut. S. Franklin F. Wing, jr., and W. H. S. Wright, compiled the low aggregate of seven faults. They beat out Belgium, Holland, Canada and The Netherland in the first of the three-day competition for the trophy presented by President Arturo Allesandri of Chile.

From the boxes packed with Metropolitan's "400" to the uppermost regions of the balcony rang the cheers as two of the American horses turned in perfect performances and the other pair faltered at one jump each.

Dakota and Rengo Star.

Dakota and Renzo, ridden by Lieuts. Wing and Wright, respectively, gave the faultless exhibitions. The veteran Joe Aleshire, with Lieut. Wing handling the reins, bowled over one fence for four faults and Podhorski, the newcomer, piloted by Lieut. Wright, refused an obstacle and was charged with the other three faults.

The Belgians, competing in the national for the first time, tied with the Canadians for second place with 15 faults each. The Irish Free State, presenting a veteran team, was fourth with 20 faults, while the Dutch were distanced when two of their mounts were eliminated, either for three refusals or refusing to stay on the course.

Preceding the military competition, the officers were escorted to the arena by squadron "A" and the Sixteenth Infantry band in a colorful parade. The salute was received by Harry H. Woodring, Secretary of War.

Meanwhile the entries of Irving S. Florsheim's Red Top Stable, of Libertyville, Ill., surprised by tak-

War Admiral Races On to Eighth Straight Victory

TURF CHAMPION BEATS MASKED GENERAL IN PIMLICO SPECIAL.

War Admiral Wins, Shows Faulty Form

was now in front some three lengths ahead.

Eccard rallied Masked General some, but inside the sixteenth pole Kurtsinger looked back and then began taking in on the reins.

Gay Charles, half of the Gwladys Whitney entry, won an easy purse in the day's steeplechase, finishing some 25 lengths in front of Mrs. D. A. Buckley's Head Hunter. Glory Road was third in the field of eight starters and six finishers. Bagpipe, a stablemate, was giving Gay Charles something of a battle, but fell at the final fence. The saddle slipped on Happy Feet at the fifth fence and Jockey F. McKay went tumbling. The Whitney entry paid a mere $3 mutuel.

Sirgay and Combatant waged a merry battle for the major money in the second race, running neck and neck from flagfall to finish. Jockey McCombs, who rode Combatant, made a futile claim of foul against the winner, charging that Sirgay lugged out on him through the stretch. Third money went to Erin's Son, one that swerved at the break and made up a world of ground, to be beaten a half-length. It was a photo finish and Sirgay paid an $8.90 mutuel.

The Montpelier Farm's Flying Lance, trained by S. L. Burch, of Washington, came through with a smashing victory in a field of a dozen juveniles in the third race. Ridden by Jockey Moose Peters, Flying Lance came from behind the pacesetter to finish a length ahead of a photo finish for second money that went to Graeme Cracker over Tilaana. The winner paid $21.30.

Roman Lady, capably handled by Jockey Basil James, was an easy winner of the fourth race, galloping to the wire five lengths in advance of Flying Wild, with Short Distance third in a field of ten competing at a mile and 70 yards. Roman Lady went around leaders and was not threatened after getting to the front. The winner, owned by H. P. Metcalf, paid $30.40.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WAR ADMIRAL, $2.10, $2.10, out; MASKED GENERAL, $3.30, out; WAR MINSTREL, out.

WAR ADMIRAL, lacking usual early speed, was in close quarters between WAR MINSTREL and BOTTLE CAP, was steadied to backstretch, took command while saving ground when MASKED GENERAL ran out and was being taken in hand at end. MASKED GENERAL, forced to be taken up at first turn, went around horses to get to front and was leading when he ran to outside fence at final turn. WAR MINSTREL, first away, closed gamely. BOTTLE CAP had good early speed.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $3,000 added. The Lady Baltimore. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:17. Off 4:17½. Winner, W. Zeigler, jr.'s, ch. m. (5), by Espino—Quick Batter. Trained by M. Brady. Net value to winner, $2,840; second, $500; third, $300; fourth, $100. Divvy Dan's Friend Picks Winners.

By Jack Cuddy.

New York, Nov. 3.—The fugitive football prognosticator:

While reading through the personal ads of a newspaper this morning, I discovered this human interest item: "Divvy Dan—lease phone your lonely sweetie at Jerome 6-6284—Susie Q. Shag."

* * * *

I grinned as I read it. Quite clearly it seemed a plant by the police. They wanted to get be-whiskered old Divvy into a telephone booth so that they could trace the call, grab him and hustle him back to the sanitarium from which he escaped six years ago.

* * * *

I forgot all about the item until late this afternoon. Then I remembered suddenly that the deadline was approaching and I hadn't received Divvy Dan's football picks for the week-end.

* * * *

Clutching at straws, I phoned the Jerome number and a woman's voice answered. Yes—it was Miss Shag—and what did I want? I informed her that I was paying Divvy 25 cents a week to send in the selections from his hideout. And that they hadn't arrived.

* * * *

"Well—I haven't heard from Divvy, myself," Susie replied. "But don't you worry none. I'll come down to your office right away and pick those winners for you. Can I pick 'em, big boy—can I pick 'em? Why, Divvy calls me his mystic mamma. He fell in love with me years ago because I could out-divinate him. I work with the spirits."

* * * *

So—down she came. And what a woman; What a sweetheart—this mystic mamma! She's a tall, scrawny, hatchet-faced old bimbo with the piercing, close-set eyes of a buzzard. Her withered, wrinkled skin was faded to mummy color. Htr sparce, faded hair was streawed and blotched with henna dye. But she was dressed like an ingenuerakish conical blue hat, smart blue ensemble and swanky French patent-leather shoes. Her movements and gestures wavered between Mae West and the late Flora Finch.

* * * *

"Well, big boy, let's get to work," she said, picking up my lighted cigar and taking a couple of puffs. "How'd Divvy do last week?"

* * * *

I told her that Divvy improved a bit, getting 83 games right, 11 wrong and suffered 5 ties. That gave him a right and wrong average of .750 and boosted his season average to .726. She cackled, "That's awful. Give me a tumbler of rum and watch me work with the spirits—watch your mystic mamma go to town."

Great Ends, Backs Are Numerous

Clash of Irish, Panthers Will Feature Duel of Flankers.

By Alan Gould.

Associated Press Sports Editor.

New York, Nov. 3.—This week's All-America football round-up puts the spotlight on a flock of newcomers, besides revealing the pressure being applied to "key" players by the opposition, and focusing special attention upon the high caliber of "end men" in the collegiate gridiron cast.

For the second straight week Notre Dame's star flanker, Chuck Sweeney, can take a bow for his exploits. Sweeney followed up his stunt of making the tackle that gave the fighting Irish their 2-point margin over Navy by blocking Minnesota's try for the extra point in last Saturday's 7-to-6 upset of the Gophers.

Thus the Irish of Notre Dame, including McCormick and McCarthy, look like bad news for Pittsburgh's Panthers this week. However, Pitt will offer one of the best pairs of ends in the country, in Frank Souchak and Bill Daddio. A sensation as a sophomore last year, Daddio has been bothered by a crippled knee, but is reported in shape after an extra week's rest. Scuchak has proved a consistent play-wrecker.

"Ivy League" coaches rate Cornell's Negro, Jerome (Brud) Holland, the best they have tried to checkmate in years. Holland, who weighs close to 200 pounds and is as shifty on his feet as a ballet dancer, started out as a blocking back but was shifted because of a dearth of ends at Ithaca. He plays left end on defense, right end on offense.

Sooners Have Fine End.

One of the main reasons for Oklahoma's fine Big Six record is Pete Smith, tall 180-pounder at left end. Villanova's sensational John Wysocki, who put on a one-man scoring show against Manhattan, had another big afternoon against Detroit. Sam Boyd, of Baylor, caught six passes against Texas Christian besides doing a standout defensive job.

Southern scouts heap praise on Bill Jordan, Georgia Tech end, who was a prime factor in the upset of Vanderbilt. Injuries kept Jordan out of the game the week before, when Auburn shellacked Tech, but he returned in time to prove a key factor in his team's razzle-dazzle attack.

Other ends on this week's honor roll: Harry Schwartz, California; Andy Bershak, North Carolina; Ray King, Minnesota, and John Miller, Yale.

All-star backfield candidates again covered wide range, including such established headliners as Clint Frank, of Yale; Bill Patterson, of Baylor; Vic Bottari, of California; Joe Kilgrow, of Alabama; Don Heap, of Northwestern; Jack Pingel, of Michigan State; Whizzer White, of Colorado, and Milton Popovich, of Montana. Pitt's Marshall Goldberg was kept on the sidelines last week.

Dartmouth kept Frank from breaking loose on the ground but failed to check the Eli star's long-range passing.

Good Fullbacks More Numerous.

Bottari's scoring dashes for California have been chiefly due to the superb blocking of his mates, notably Johnny Meek, 200-pound signal-caller, and Sam Chapman, versatile right halfback. Meek is the "key" blocker and a destructive backer-upper.

Fullbacks bounced back into prominence to disprove the idea they are a vanishing race. Harvard's Vernon Struck raised havoc with Princeton on power plays. Cecil Isbell, of Purdue, Al Cruver, of Washington and Charley Holm, of Alabama, whose brother Tony was all-American in 1929, also gave high voltage performances.

Sophomore headliners on the latest ball-lugging honor roll include Ernie Lain, Rice's 200-pounder who helped upset Auburn; Harry Clark, of West Virginia, who tallied five touchdowns against Western Maryland, and George Cafego, Tennessee triple threat.

Detroit's Andy Farkas lost the national scoring lead when he was stopped by Villanova but played a grand game, observers report, despite the handicap of a bad leg. An erstwhile casualty, Cornell's George Peck, put the spark back into the Big Red's offensive against Columbia.

Heelfly Reported Ill On Journey to Coast

Los Angeles, Nov. 3 (AP).—Heelfly, prized race horse of the T. P. Morgan stable, was reported sick today en route here from the East, where he placed second to the great War Admiral in the $15,000 Washington handicap last Saturday.

Santa Fe Railroad officials said they heard a horse specialist was ready to fly from San Diego to Needles, Ariz., to care for the colt on its arrival there early tomorrow.

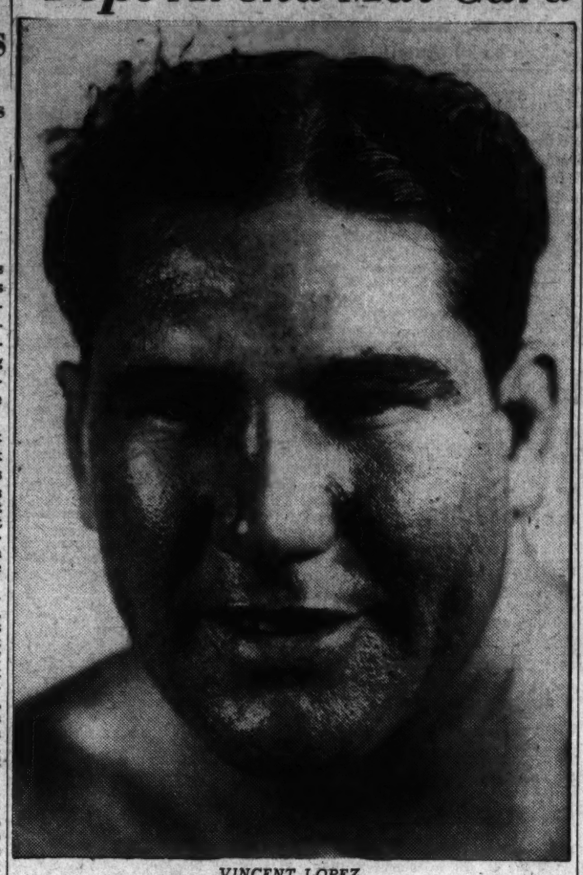
Sanctity Winner At Rockingham

Salem, N. H., Nov. 3 (AP).—Sanctity, owned by Mrs. C. C. Winters, today won a three-length victory in the Center Harbor Handicap, 6-furlong feature at Rockingham Park, paying ticket holders $9.10, $4.70 and $3.2".

Gay Balko paced the field most of the way, but dropped into second place in the stretch when Jockey Marrero brought Sanctity to the lead. Gay Balko paid $4.10 and $3, while Lady Higloss was third, paying $3.90.

Sanctity ran the 6 furlongs in 1 minute 12 seconds.

Steele and Lopez Bout Tops Arena Mat Card



VINCENT LOPEZ.

Six-Round Grapple Match Will Feature Tonight's Show; Judges May Aid Referee in Rendering Decision.

Ray Steele, whose real name is Peter Raymond Sauer, will decorate the canvas at Turner's Arena tonight with his massive six-foot frame in a feature wrestling match against Vincent Lopez (not the orchestra leader), whose Mexican dancer is very easily aroused.

Steele and Lopez are to mix it in a six-round bout the Australian way, with ten minutes allotted to each round, and a minute's rest in between.

Yes, there'll be seconds in each corner, and Promoter Turner is considering having two judges and a referee hand down the decision.

Steele returns to the Arena after a two-month absence. The towering Californian, who a few years ago was the magnet for capacity crowds here until an automobile injury knocked him out of competition for nearly two seasons, has a terrific following at the Arena, and no doubt will be a rooting favorite.

Ray has wrestled four times in Washington this season, and is yet to suffer defeat. His head twist, a wrestling trick he uses with telling effect, has won him many a match.

Lopez, victor over Dr. Freddie Meyers, and more recently over Karl Davis, is quite colorful, and a master showman. The Mexican is not of the villain type, and as a result absorbs brutal punishment in his matches—until he decides to cut loose.

Cliff Olsen, the Minnesota Swede, who was tossed by Chief Thunderbird last week, is back for a one-hour time limit semi-windup bout against Bill Sledge, who once was some shucks as a footballer at Rice.

In another all-foreign brawl Hans Steinke, the German veteran, faces Scotty McDougal. Jack Hader opposes Abe Kashey, and Henri Piers meets Mayes McLain. First bout is at 8:30.

High Financing

Henry Ford Spent $100,000 to Broadcast Series, Then Passed It Up.

FORD.

Chicago, Nov. 3 (AP).—Henry Ford paid $100,000 for option rights to sponsor the broadcast of the last world's series, but declined to exercise his option, it was announced today.

Major league baseball, however, did split up the motor magnate's $100,000.

Ford, it became known, contracted for the option last summer, but at the last minute declined to exercise it.

The sum he paid, however, swelled the series receipts to $1,085,994. The players' pool, as a result, increased from $417,365.97 to $459,629.35.

At the offices of Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball commissioner, Leslie O'Connor, secretary and treasurer, explained:

"Mr. Ford merely fulfilled his contract to baseball."

Gibby Young Is Hurt First Time in 4 Years

Chestertown, Md., Nov. 3 (AP).—For the first time in his four-year football career at Washintgon College, Gibby Young limped through training scrimmages this week.

The 145-pound quarterback suffered a slight leg injury against St. Mary's College and was forced from the game. However, he is expected to play against Gallaudet, of Washington, here Saturday.

Bob Barnett, Mrs. Smith Golf Victors

Pair Scores 76 Net to Take Honors at Chevy Chase.

Bob Barnett, Chevy Chase professional, honored the club's Women's Golf Association first team champions yesterday in a mixed Scotch foursome with Mrs. Emery Smith to score a net 76 and nose out his assistant Louis Worsham and Mrs. Y. E. Book by a single stroke. Barnett and Mrs. Smith scored 79-3, 76, and Worsham and Mrs. Booker, 80-3, 77.

Al Treder, Manor pro, and his partner, Mrs. Bishop Hill were third with 80-2, 78, Gene Larkin, Woodmont and Mrs. L. O. Cameron next with 84-5, 79.

Other scores included Miss Louise Claytor, playing with George Diffenbaugh, 85-4, 81, and Mrs. W. B. H. Legg, partner of Leo Wapler, driving range owner, 88-6, 82. Selective drives and alternate shots were played.

Mrs. Smith and Barnett required 43 shots on the first nine but returned in 36, only two over par. The back nine score included deuces on the tenth and thirteenth holes. Mrs. Booker and Worsham led by two strokes entering the sixteenth hole but they finished 6-5-4 to Barnett and Mrs. Smith's 4-4-4 to lose a shot.

Golfers Battle Sunday for Cup

Miller B. Stevinson and Donald Woodward will play Craig McKee and Dana Belser for the Cumming's Cup at Columbia on Sunday afternoon. The former titleholders shot a best ball of 72 yesterday to best a small field and earn a crack at their last year's conquerors.

Merrill Lord and L. M. Laudick were 75, the next best score, three strokes behind the winner's twin nines of 36. McKee and Belser won the challenge cup in the fall of 1936, ending the long reign of Woodward and Stevinson as club two-man team champions.

Steele Hurt; Fight Off.

New York, Nov. 3 (U.P.).—The 12-round nontitle fight between Middleweight Champion Freddie Steele and Fred Apostoli was postponed today from November 12 to January 7, because of a training injury suffered by Steele.

Co-ed Determined to Kick Despite Faculty 'No'

By Jack Munhall.

Although the faculty of American University yesterday voted down by a 21-14 count Coach Gus Welch's innovation of a fair coed to kick points after touchdowns for his team, the do-or-die spirit still beats strongly in one young lady.

For last night a young lady, professing to be a student at American University, phoned The Post and avowed that she would go through with the original plan if the student body supported her. Her challenge to the powers that be at the University may well be tested since the students were so fired by the decision yesterday that loud and angry talk of a demonstration swept the campus.

Strangely enough it was a woman, Dean of Women Mary Louise Brown, who led the opposition that squelched the daring and noval plan of Welch, who probably learned such things when he coached the tricky Carlise elevens some years ago. Dean Brown charged that the whole scheme was unladylike, was attracting unfavorable publicity to the university and violated principles of the Association of Women's Colleges on intercollegiate competition.

When his last pleas failed, Coach Welch was disillusioned and puzzled, saying he would be glad to permit his daughter to essay the kicking role—if he had a daughter. But that's just like old Gus. Meanwhile, applications continue to engulf Welch's office. Tall coeds, short coeds, pretty coeds and not so pretty coeds—all want to kick in with their bit for the school.

The situation now boils down to a lot of kicks. The student body apparently feels, as one winsome miss expressed herself, "it is a darn shame that the school refused to carry through with a project which had received so much favorable publicity," and then added, in a threatening tone, "we students are going to do something about it."

What they are going to do about it will be seen when the Eagle team faces Randolph-Macon, traditional rival, Saturday. If American University scores a touchdown (the team has scored but three this season) it will not surprise if some young lady does not rush onto the gridiron carrying her six-league boots, a powder puff and perhaps the dean of women hanging to one foot.

Lem Cook, Fleet Back, Leads Navy

Coach Hardwick Builds His Offence Around Backfield 'Find.'

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Nov. 3.—The running of Lem Cooke, the backfield find at the Naval Academy this season, featured the practice this afternoon, which consisted largely of scrimmage against a strong squad B eleven in Columbia's style of play.

Cooke twice ran from midfield to a touchdown, the first time on the opening play of the game, and made numerous other substantial gains, taking the ball on nearly every play.

Head Coach Hardwick said today that his best chance to hold down the passing and running of Sid Luckman was to hold the ball as much as possible and to that end, he is polishing off the offense, with Cooke as its spearhead.

Hardwick has a high opinion of Luckman, based on the reports of his scouts and regards him as probably the best and most versatile back of the year.

The line was considerably changed this afternoon, Frank Lynch going to right tackle, in place of Ken Hysong and Jimmy Andrews to center for Dick Fincher, while Herman Spector took right guard in place of Capt. Ray DuBois, who has not been in the best physical condition.

In the backfield, Bob Antrim rested, his place being taken by Harold Hansen. Hensen and Art Franks, both 200-pounders, were in the blocking back locations, Emmett Wood being the fourth man in the backfield.

'Homecoming' Program Set At Catholic U.

Cardinals-Gamecocks to Clash on Gridiron as Day's Feature.

Plans for a record-breaking Catholic University Homecoming for Thanksgiving Day yesterday had been completed by a hard-working alumni committee. The committee in charge is F. J. (Jiggs) Donohue, '22, general chairman; Shannie McCarthy, '35, chairman for smoker; Richard W. Galliher, '35, chairman for the dance, and James J. Bowe, '30, chairman for the homecoming football game, in which Catholic University meets the University of South Carolina in Brookland Bowl at 10:30 in the morning.

The complete program follows: Smoker, Wardman Park garden room, Wednesday evening, November 24, at 9 o'clock; homecoming football game, Catholic University vs. South Carolina, Brookland Stadium, Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock; dinner, Thanksgiving evening, Wardman Park Hotel at 7 o'clock, and dance, Wardman Park dragon room, Thanksgiving evening from 10 to 1 o'clock.

The committee feels that this year's program will revive the old-time Catholic University spirit and that the football game will set a new attendance record for Brookland Bowl. It is squarely behind Arthur J. (Dutch) Bergman in all his activities and will go its limit in extending co-operation toward making the entire curriculum a success.

Middie Soccer Team Wins, 2-1

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Nov. 3.—Navy's soccer team won its third straight victory this afternoon by defeating Gettysburg College, 2 to 1, in a good game in which all the scoring was done in the first half.

Kirkpatrick, Navy, broke ice by goaling near the middle of the first quarter on a long front kick after receiving the ball on a pass from Parker. Well into the second quarter, Mizell evened matters by putting the ball into the corner of the goal on a side kick, F. Hartmen passing.

Kelly scored the winning goal in the same quarter by kicking the ball over the goal line heads on a long center kick.

Terps Resume Work for V. M. I.

College Park, Md., Nov. 3 (AP).—The University of Maryland's football regulars returned to the practice field today after two days of complete idleness. They welcomed the cooler weather and hoped it would last until after the game with Virginia Military Institute Saturday.

The Terrapins spent most of today in polishing a new attack to be used against V. M. I. They also pushed the charging sled around. Tomorrow they will build up their defense.

Ambers Must Beat Day To Get Crack at Ross

Chicago, Nov. 3 (AP).—If world lightweight champion Lou Ambers wants a crack at Barney Ross' world welterweight title he'll have to earn it by giving Ross' young stablemate, Davey Day, a chance at the 135-pound crown.

Day, according to Manager Sam Pian, earned a chance at the lightweight championship by whipping Enrico Venturi, of Italy, in New York recently. Ambers, however, has declined to sign for a bout with Day in the Chicago Stadium December 15.

Colonials' Powerful Line Due To Coaching of Botchy Koch

'Baylor Bear' Has Unique System in Drilling His Forwards.

They call him the "Baylor Bear," and, come to think of it, Botchey Koch, George Washington's squat, likable line coach, does remind you a bit of a friendly, powerful grizzly as he goes about the work he loves—coaching.

Seven years ago down in the Southwest they recognized Botchey as the best lineman that part of the country had ever seen. He was the Southwest Conference's first all-American and many called him an all-time all-American, highest praise a player can receive. Now they're saying Botchey Koch coaches almost as well as he played, that he's the coming young line coach of the country.

For in the past two years Botchey's George Washington lines have stood up so remarkably well against Southwest competition, that he's fairly outstripping the reputation he established at Baylor as player and coach.

Frank Thomas, Alabama coach, and the Birmingham correspondents, were the first to point out that the Colonial line was sturdy and smart. The Crimson Tide scored through the air and ripped the ends, but from tackle to tackle they were stopped cold. Then Tulsa brought what it considered a fine forward bulwark to face George Washington and admittedly was outplayed in the line from start to finish.

Showed Result of Coaching.

Pete Yurwitz and Lloyd Berry, the ends who bore the brunt of Alabama's fierce blocking, were the standout defensive players on the field that night against Tulsa, ample proof of what they learned from 'Bama—and from Koch in the intervening week.

"That G. W. line will stand up against any we've met in several years," Tulsa critics said. "Botchey Koch must be doing a whale of a job."

The Tulsans, you see, were glad to see a Southwestern product doing so well in the East. And they had heard from their neighbors at Arkansas and Rice, who faced Koch's line last fall, that the "Baylor Bear" was on the loose again.

It's been seven years since Botchey played football and he has a knee that jumps out of joint on the slightest excuse, yet he gets down in the line nearly every day with his boys to show 'em just how it ought to be done. Judging from their remarks, they're glad he's just the coach and not an opponent they must face.

"His initial charge is the fastest, hardest I've ever seen," John Rebholz, Colonial tackle, was saying the other day. "Boy, what a guard he must have been in his prime."

Should Learn Problems.

Koch believes every lineman should play in the backfield for a few days, at least, to learn the backfield problems and to get over the notion that the linemen do all the work and the backs have all the fun.

"I had that idea in high school," Botchey said. "And it's fortunate I was given a chance to get over it early. They put me in the backfield one day and I spent the entire afternoon, it seemed to me, flat on my back. The ends on the other team were on me most of the time before I even got started. After that, I never wanted to play in the backfield again."

Extremely friendly with his players, from whom he always seems to get their absolute best, Botchey regards football from the coaching standpoint just as he did as a player.

"It's still a game to me," he says. "When it gets to be anything else, then I don't want to coach any more."

Saints Prepare For Homecoming

Mount St. Mary's gridders are diligently preparing for their homecoming game Saturday against St. Bonaventure at Olean. Today's drill was lengthy, consisting of long passing and blocking sessions, coupled with a stiff tackling workout. Tomorrow Coach Joe McCormick will hold the only defensive practice scheduled for the week, planning to give the remaining time to offensive drills, particularly to forward passing.

The Mountaineers kept their aerial attack under cover last week against Washington College relying only on ground plays and straight football but this week plan to shoot the works. The battle looms as a individual duel between two great satrs, O'Donnell of the visitors and Frank Apichella, the Mountaineers' brilliant ball-carrier.

These Grid Games Get Coaches Excited

Chicago, Nov. 3 (AP).—These Big Ten football coaches—

Lynn Waldorf, head man at Northwestern, has the reputation as one of the calmest gridiron leaders in the country . . . yet, the other day he placed a lighted pipe in his pocket in an exciting moment of Wildcat practice and nearly ruined his coat.

Harry Stuhldreher, Wisconsin's head coach, who sported a black eye the day of the Wisconsin-Pittsburgh game, got the shiner as a result of a nightmare . . . He dreamed Marshall Goldberg, Pitt's sparkling half, had eluded a Badger defense man and was heading for a touchdown . . . Stuhldreher leaped out of bed and tackled a door knob.

Earl Duncan Sets Recreation Loop Mark for Season

Earl Duncan, of the leading Marlboro Hotel bowling team, rolled a new season record in the strong Recreation League last night at Recreation alleys when he blasted the maples for a 172 game. Aided by Duncan's big game, Brad Mandley's 391 and Harry Dawson's 366, Marlboro swept their set from Blaydes Contracting Co. Marlboro also chalked up a new team game of 658. El Geib, with 365, was high for the losers.

Bregman's Wildcats, led by Beaver's 368, moved into second place by whitewashing University Shop, despite a 370 set by Ouncie Harrison.

Marvin's Credit Co., paced by Henry May's 381, took a 2-to-1 decision from Brodt's, who ended a 13-game losing streak.

Terry's Home Appliance Co. swept their set from Federal Bureau of Investigation despite a 401 set by Astor Clarke.

Blanken's Restaurant, led by Perce Ellett's 389, took the odd game from Allied Roofing, despite Chick Schilke's 387 set.

Regal Will Meet Anacostia Team

One of the sandlot football naturals of the season will be Sunday when the spanked Anacostia Eagles meet undefeated Regal Clothes on the Gonzaga field at 2:30 p. m.

The game promises to be hot and furiously waged for it developed out of a challenge hurled by the Eagles who are confident they can take Jan Jankowski's burly boys. The Regal eleven, leading the National Football 160-pound league drew a bye this week, and thus was in a position to accept the defy which they did in no uncertain manner.

Hoyas Patch Team to Meet Mountaineers

Hagerty Limits Squad to Light Drills as Results of Injuries.

Georgetown's battered and bruised Hoyas will probably present a patched line-up against West Virginia in their game Saturday at Griffith Stadium.

Four men will wear masks to protect broken noses while many others are nursing severe bruises which may keep several regulars out of the starting line-up. Joe Mellendick, sophomore back; Clem Stralka, tackle; John Franks, guard, and Tom Robertson, also a tackle, are the men who will wear the masks to guard tender nostrils.

Also on the hospital list are Tom Keating, Lew Shuker, Jim Hill and Jim Dooley. Keating is covered with welts, marks of the terrific beating he sustained last Saturday at the hands of Manhattan. Dooley is catering to a damaged shoulder, Hardy to a bad leg while Shuker's trouble is nothing more serious than a charleyhorse.

Coach Jack Hagerty, cognizant of the condition of his charges, has curtailed heavy work this week. Instead he has ordered light drills, consisting of touch football and methods to thwart the mighty offense of the Mountaineers who rolled up 64 points against Western Maryland last week. Hagerty is planning an aerial attack built around Mellendick and Keating to surprise and visitors whose 197-pound line and 187-pound backfield forbode evil to a running attack.

Horse Show

ing the lead in the battle for blue ribbons among civilian horsemen. Competing in the national exhibition for the first time, the Red Top horses carried off four first awards. Lovely Venus, a 6-year-old three-gaited mare, won two events at the afternoon session and Golden Avalanche, another three-gaiter, and Hazelene's Dream, a fine five-gaited performer, accounted for one each at the night performance.

Miss King's Horse Loses.

An Atlanta, Ga., entry, Miss Judy King's Knight Bachelor, champion harness horse the last two years, was unexpectedly defeated when he finished second to Newton Victor, owned and driven by Miss E. Gwen Martin, of Norristown, Pa., in the class for single harness horse shown to a lady's phaeton.

Another mild upset was the failure of Miss King's La La Success to do better than fourth in the Erduin von der Horst Memorial Trophy for signle hackney ponies. The award went to Coronet from Adrian Van Sinderen's Glenholme Farm of Washington, Conn.

Miss King, third last year; Mrs. Loula Long Combs, of Kansas City, returning to the National after an absence of two years, and Mrs. John Hay Whitney, of Upperville, Va., and New York, gave warning that they will be in the running for the title left undefeated by Frances Dodge, of Rochester, Mich.

Although the trio won only one blue ribbon each, they threatened in several other classes, placing with newcomers to the Garden competition while reserving their better known horses for the more important events to come.

Beats 1936 Runner-Up.

Miss King scored a victory at the expense of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Dick's Dicksfield Farm, of Gurnee, Ill., runner-up last year. The Southern sportswoman's Highland Cardinal took the measure of Dickfield's Stonehedge Temptation in a two-horse contest for 3-year-old Hackney ponies.

Mrs. Combs counted with admiration in the class for novice single harness horses, over 14.2 hands, after seeing her highly regarded Captivation beaten when shown in hand in quest of the blue offered to the leading Hackney mare over 14.2 hands.

Captivation, 1934 harness horse champion and recent conqueror of Miss King's Knight Bachelor, titleholder the last two years, at Lexington, bowed to Killearn Beauty from Alfred B. Maclay's Killearn Farm of Millbrook, N. Y. Killearn Beauty went on to win the North Farm challenge trophy for American-bred Hackneys and complete the first double of the show.

Mrs. Whitney's bid for honors came in the lightweight green hunter division. Showing two of her horses which had never been ridden to the hounds in a recognized hunt, she finished on two, respectively, with Airy Spirit and The Bar. Dick Kirby rode Airy Spirit while Mrs. Whitney handled The Bear.

The Dicksfield representatives also were forced into second place in the class calling out teams of harness ponies, not exceeding 14.2 hands, by Mrs. Iona T. Kaiser's combination of Cassilis Jasmine and Harveston Vina, of New York. The Illinois stable showed Melbourne Swell and Monarch Swell, which were handled by Mrs. Dick.

Although the powerful Disksfield Farm received two setbacks, two other Illinois stables came through with important victories. Lovely Venus, owned by Irving S. Florsheim's Rep Top Farm, of Libertyville, started off the day by whipping four other five-gaited model saddle horses and then came back late in the afternoon to parade to the top of the five-gaited harness class. The other blue ribbon was won by My Nu-Joy, from Hubert S. Silberman's Delaine Farm, of Glenview.

3 Speed Records Are Set by Eyston

Bonneville Salt Flats, Utah, Nov. 3 (AP).—Capt. George Eyston halted a distance run at 6:59 p. m. (Pacific Standard Time) tonight after capturing three major world speed records—for 3,000 kilometers, 12 hours and 2,000 miles.

He quit the speed run after shattering the 2,000-mile record with an average speed of 163.75 miles an hour. His new mark for the 12-hour run was 163.68 miles per hour, and for the 3,000 kilometers, 163.49 miles per hour.

The run actually gave him 12 new records—three marks in the world unlimited class, three in international Class A, and three each in American unlimited and American Class A.

Cooper Nears PGA Honors; Has Wide Lead

Chicago Pro Leading Nearest Rival by 124 Points.

By the United Press.

New York, Nov. 3.—"Lighthorse" Harry Cooper, of Chicago, whose winnings of $13,573 make him the leading golf winner of 1937, has virtually clinched the Professional Golfers Association trophy with a point total of 490 for 26 events this year, it was announced today by the P. G. A.

Cooper holds a 124 point lead over his nearest rival, U. S. Open Champion Ralph Guldahl, of Chicago. Guldahl is third money winner with $8,190, behind Henry Picard, of Hershey, Pa., who has earned $9,916.

Standings of the first ten in the trophy contest and earnings for the first ten months of 1937 follow, with the number of events, points, rounds, scoring average and earnings in that order:

Harry Cooper, Chicago, 26, 490, 78, 71.58, $13,573.68; Ralph Guldahl, Chicago, 21, 366, 62, 72.16, $8,190.91; Sam Snead, White Sulphur, 24, 320, 70, 72.00, $8,081.91; Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa., 17, 319, 50, 72.16, $9,916.58; Jimmy Hines, Garden City, N. Y., 26, 255, 74, 72.63, $5,944.50; Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., 23, 250, 58 72.51, $4,613.50; Horton Smith, Chicago, 23, 245, 66, 72.59, $5,873.73; Byron Nelson, Reading, Pa., 16, 218, 46 72.28, $3,562; Jimmy Thompson, Shawnee, Pa., 28 217, 78, 72.93, $3,993.58, and Ed Dudley, Philadelphia, 14, 177, 42, 72.14, $3,968.58.

6 Illinois Tracks Seek 1938 Dates

Chicago, Nov. 3 (AP).—With the 1937 season hardly over, six racing tracks in the vicinity of Chicago already have applied for 1938 dates. All but Washington Park have applied for virtually the same dates they were granted this year.

Washington Park officials have requested a switch to the August 1-September 5 period. Lincoln Fields applied for the same period, excepting Labor Day. Almost the entire month of June was left open.

Notre Dame

than he was to conquer Minnesota last week, Coach Elmer Layden started erecting a defense designed to put the brakes on "Mad" Marshall Goldberg, Pitt's spectacular halfback, and the rest of the bone-crushing Panther offense. He also drilled the Irish on plays prepared for the Minnesota game which were not used when Notre Dame played defensive football after scoring in the first ten minutes.

Francis Schmidt, who sends his Ohio State eleven against Indiana's battling Hoosiers in the standout game of the Big Ten title card, polished up the Buckeye razzle-dazzle offense. At Indiana, Bo McMillin looked over his reserves seeking replacements for Center George Miller, who has a fractured thumb, and Halfback Bill Anderson, a fine passer, who may be out of the important struggle because of a shoulder injury.

Fumble-itis Is Treated.

Northwestern's backs were given a treatment for "fumble-itis," a glaring fault in last week's victory over Wisconsin, as Lynn Waldorf gave the Wildcats a long drill in preparation for Saturday's game with Illinois. The Illini varsity stopped Northwestern plays dead in a half-hour defensive scrimmage. Both Michigan and Chicago which tangle at Ann Arbor, concentrated on their offenses.

Most of Iowa's cripples were back in uniform for the first heavy practice for its meeting with Minnesota. The Gophers, still smarting over their loss to Notre Dame, went into their third straight week of secret drills. Wisconsin, which has an open date before tackling Purdue a week from Saturday, suffered a blow when it was learned that Erv Windward, senior quarterback, would be lost for the balance of the season because of a knee injury.

Cecil Isbell, spearhead of Purdue's attack, was excused from practice, but the work of Tony Juska, Tony Ippolito and Leon de Witte indicated the Boilermakers would be at top form for their intersectional contest with Fordham. Isbell, nursing a leg injury, probably will be ready for heavy duty by Saturday.

U. S. Workers Urged to Boost Chest Efforts

Mrs. Ross, Stanley Reed and Dodge Are Among Speakers.

Department chairmen and keymen of the governmental unit of the Community Chest, in numbers sufficient to practically fill the Labor-Interstate Commerce Auditorium, yesterday afternoon were praised for their participation in past Community Chest campaigns and urged to take an even more active interest in the tenth anniversary campaign of the Chest this year. Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Wayne Chatfield Taylor, chairman of the governmental unit, presided and introduced a notable group which occupied the rostrum.

Among the speakers were Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the United States Mint; Stanley Reed, Solicitor General of the United States; Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, auditor of the District of Columbia; J. Austin Latimer, special assistant to the Attorney General; Maj. Gen. Frederick W. Coleman, U. S. A. retired, governor of the Soldiers Home; Clarence Phelps Dodge, president of the Community Chest; Herbert L. Willett, jr., director of the Chest; Maj. Merritte W. Ireland, U. S. A. retired, former Surgeon General of the Army.

Meanwhile continued increases in larger contributions marked the reports of the committees at the meeting of the Special Assignments unit. Increases ranged from 6 2-3 per cent to as high as 166 per cent.

Four anonymous gifts, totaling $6,000, were announced. They were for $2,000, $2,000, $1,200 and $800 respectively.

Other contributions reported were those of Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Burling, $2,000; Mr. and Mrs. William L. Bush, $650; Mrs. Avery Coonley, $750; Erlebacher, Inc., $850; Mrs. William Corcoran Eustis, $4,000; Mr. and Mrs. Robert V. Fleming, $700; Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Gaillard, $1,600; Mr. and Mrs. George Angus Garrett, $1,250; Glassman & Ostrow, $1,000; Clark C. Griffith, $600; R. Harris & Co., $750; Judd & Detweiler, Inc., $3,000; Mr. and Mrs. Milton W. King, $2,400; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar K. Legg, jr., $800; the A. W. Mellon Educational and Charitable Trust, $10,000; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer, $12,000; Mr. and Mrs. William McClellan Ritter, $800; H. L. Rust, $3,500; H. L. Rust, jr., $750; B. F. Saul Co., $2,000; Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Semmes, $660; Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Sheridan, $1,000; Simon, Koenigsberger & Young, $600; Mrs. Henry K. Willard, $850, and Young & Simon, $900.

Stabilization Now Is Futile, Sprague Holds

World Currencies Are Too Unstable, Declares Harvard Economist.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Nov. 3.—Dr. O. M. W. Sprague, of Harvard University, a former New Deal monetary adviser, told the foreign trade council today "to stabilize currencies in a highly unstable world does not get you anywhere." He added:

"Sooner or later the system will break down. The fact that countries went off the gold standard for the first time in the history of man in times of peace makes it doubly important that when we return it should be on a firm basis. That is not a doctrine that is widely held at the present time."

Dr. Sprague, who spoke informally at a banking session, said the council's banking committee was "wise" in not recommending "the immediate stabilization of currencies."

Morgan Views.

Previously W. A. Mitchell, of J. P. Morgan & Co., reporting for the committee on stabilization of international currencies, said it did not offer "any suggestions regarding the redistribution of the gold now concentrated in the hands of a comparatively few nations." On the other hand, Fred I. Kent, of the Bankers Trust Co. of New York, sent a message to the meeting which said:

"At the moment it is the belief of business men and economists that the price of gold will have to be reduced somewhat from its present high valuation to better meet business and trade needs of trading countries."

"I am personally convinced that the advance in the price of gold had very little to do with recovery in this country since 1933—but certainly there are a lot of my fellow economists who think so, and certainly there are a lot of voters who think so," Dr. Sprague said.

"I hope we can move forward to more definite stabilization than we now have." He cited recent evidences of stability among world powers and said "I think if the will were present it would be feasible for nations to return to gold now at approximately the present rates."

Greenbelt Service Meeting.

The Greenbelt Consumer's Service, a subsidiary of the Consumer's Distribution Corporation, is holding a meeting today at the Hay-Adams House.

A. T. & T. Calls Bonds.

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—American Telephone & Telegraph Co. announced today a call for redemption at par on January 3, 1938, of the outstanding $12,923,000 4½ per cent convertible bonds due July 1, 1939. Of the $219,112,000 originally issued, $206,189,700 had been converted into capital stock to December 31, 1936.

Socony Oil Votes Special

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—Directors of Socony-Vacuum Oil Co. declared a special dividend of 30 cents a common share today, payable December 15 to stock of record November 18.

Prevous payments this year were 25 cents each on September 15 and March 15, bringing total disbursement in 1937 to date to 80 cents a share, compared with 70 cents in the full year 1936.

Coca-Cola. Int. Extra.

Directors of Coca-Cola International Corporation, a holding company for stock of Coca-Cola Corporation, declared today an extra dividend of $15.50 and a quarterly dividend of $6 on the common stock payable December 15 to stock of record November 26. The company paid $5.85 October 1, $3.90 July 1 and $3.90 April 1.

Bristol-Myers Votes Extra.

Directors of Bristol-Myers Co., drug manufacturers with principal plant at West Elizabeth, N. J., declared an extra dividend of 10 cents and the regular quarterly dividend of 60 cents on the common stock, both payable December 1 to stock of record November 15.

Loans to Brokers Off $313,497,644

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—The New York Stock Exchange today reported that members' collateral borrowings October 30 were $725,622,872, a decline of $313,497,644 from the September 30 total.

The total face amount of Government securities pledged as collateral for borrowings included in the above figure on October 30 was $14,969,280 against $25,246,075 on September 30.

Wheat Topples 3 Cents to Low For Two Years

Dearth of Exports With Drop in Securities Hit Grain Pits.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—Collapsing to low-priced records unreached before in some cases since 1935, wheat today fell 3 cents a bushel here in general stop-loss selling.

Sharp downturns of securities, together with scantiness of export demand for wheat from North America, as well as estimates of domestic winter wheat plantings about equaling last year's big aggregate, all combined to intensify bearish sentiment. New export purchases of North American wheat totaled hardly 300,000 bushels, including a little domestic soft wheat from the Pacific Coast, but no hard winter grades.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1¾ to 2¼ cents under yesterday's finish; December, 91⅞ to 92; May, 91⅝ to 91¾; July, 86¾ to 86⅞. Corn, ⅜ off to ⅛ up; December, 58⅜ to 58½; May, 59½ to 59⅝; July, 60 to 60⅛. Oats at ⅛ to ¼ decline; December, 30½, and rye showing ⅛ to 1½ drop; December, 71⅝. Provisions results were 5 to 25 cents advance.

Retail Food Prices Drop for Month

Retail food prices declined 1.1 per cent in the period from September 14 to October 12, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reoprted today. The buerau said the decline, attributed largely to lower prices of meats, fruits and vegetables, was general throughout the country, lower average costs being reported from 44 of 51 cities surveyed.

Meat prices have declined 2.3 per cent since September 14. Beef and veal ropped 2.1 per cent; pork, 4.5 per cent, and lamb, 2.8 per cent. The retail price of chickens was up 0.2 per cent.

The Market

Gold Shares Rise on Dollar Cutting Rumor But Other Stocks Decline in Moderate Trading.

New York, Nov. 3.—In an orderly but weak market the leading industrial and railroad stocks settled back 1 to 5 points, putting the market into a position to show cancellation of all ground recovered since October 23. Stock turnover was around 1,750,000 shares. In spite of the fact that price movements were dignified, the selling was persistent. Commodities also were weak. Cotton was down about a dollar a bale. December wheat closed 2⅛ cents lower at 91⅞ cents a bushel. United States bonds were firm.

The stock market acted as though it had resumed the downtrend after nothing more than a two-day rally as a conventional response to the lower margin action of last week, which came at a time when a little short covering was beginning. Fundamental conditions are much as they were recently, only it is becoming a little clearer that trade recession has been widespread, if light to date. It also may turn out that all that has taken place and much of that which may take place in business decline has now been sufficiently discounted in the stock market, but stocks today were weak from the start and gave no indication of rallying.

Gold Shares Rise.

Steel, Chrysler, Bethlehem, American Telephone, Anaconda, Santa Fe, New York Central, International Nickel, General Electric and others sank from 2 to 3 points before finding support. Westinghouse broke 5 points. Rubbers and oils were down 1 to 2 points and all commodity shares except the gold mines were weak. The sharp rally in the gold stocks was a feature in an otherwise dull market. Most of the golds rose 1 to 3 points, with Homestake, McIntyre, Dome and Alaska Juneau active in response to rumors ahead of another lift in the gold price.

Election Small Factor.

Local and State election returns scarcely were a factor in the securities markets. Even in one or two Western contests where the C. I. O. question was uppermost, the seeming victory of the opponents of labor domination probably made little difference. In the minds of numerous observers in Wall Street the time is not far off when labor will be compelled, by the returns from economic laws, to dismount from the lofty steeds and talk business on the ground. With the country's steel mills operating at less than half of capacity and with signs cropping up everywhere of reduced employment, it will become apparent before long that labor cannot live unless industry also breathes. Even the Government may find that it can't strangle the taxpayer and continue to take his money for the support of its disconcerted one-third of the population.

Trade Declining.

Trade statistics of this week will be influenced to some extent by the fact that business was interrupted by the election vacation. Midweek news was of the color familiar of late. Thus the Iron Age noted a "precipitous decline in steel ingot production," and a "sharp drop" in pig iron output in October, and the sinking of steel scrap to a new low price for the year. An indirect indication of declining business activity was given by the weekly summary of city bank operations over the country. The Federal Reserve Board's figures for banks in 101 leading cities show another sharp fall in commercial loans, along with fall in commercial loans, along with heavy deflation in security loans. As an offset to the loss of their real business, the banks turned to the bond market for employment of their funds.

Cheap Money Likely.

The bank buyer of United States bonds can count on a cheap money market for some time, partly because of Federal Reserve Board operations and partly because at the moment the business demand for available credit is rapidly shrinking. On other considerations, the position is, to say the least, no stronger. Once more President Roosevelt, in ordering the RFC to make corn loans, has shown that he doesn't care a whoop about balancing the budget. He recently promised that the RFC would make no further loans, which made it look as though some railroad receiverships wouuld come along shortly. With the farmers the case is somewhat different. No budget balancing is ever likely to take place unless at the same time every farmer is getting all he wants from the Treasury.

Hoarding.

Conditions are now favorable to the hoarding of gold, and it is easy to understand why premiums are being paid for the metal in London. The appearance of business recession on this side removes the last fear that the United States will reduce the gold price. Recently this country has disposed of some gold to foreign countries, and since spring the authorities have taken more than half a dozen measures on the inflationary side. In the background, as everone realizes, is the President's authority to devalue the dollar further by lifting the gold price, and soon or late, the gold buyers probably are thinking resort will be had to that operation as a means of relieving the public debt burden and stimulating business. Weakness in some of the European exchanges is an added factor on the side of the gold hoarders.

Gold.

Rumors of an increase in the price of gold here have not been taken seriously in the local market, but apparently in foreign centers they are heeded and today the stories were circulated with increasing intensity. These reports were held mainly respo..sible for putting gold up to a premium of more than 13 cents an ounce in the London open market, a new record figure, and for making virtually all European currencies buoyant most of the day. Sterling got up close to $4.97 and belgas made a new high. Even French francs were strong.

Aim of SEC Is Free and Open Market

George C. Mathews Addresses I. B. A. Convention at White Sulphur.

By the Associated Press.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Nov. 3.—A plea to the security dealers of the Nation to co-operate with the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission "to perfect and lubricate the mechanism of the free and open market" was made by SEC Commissioner George C. Mathews today.

Addresing the initial session of the twenty-sixth annual convention of the Investment Bankers Association of America, he declined to discuss the causes of the recent break in the securities markets, which some bankers have attributed in part to the rigidity of SEC controls. Mathews said:

"We are too close to the time of the market distress to feel certain that causes could be explained calmly and accurately, even if all the data necessary for their ultimate listing and measuring were now available."

He asserted, however, that the commission has at all times sought the advice and co-operation of bankers in drafting their regulatoins and criticized business generally for failure to realize earlier that some form of regulation was necessary.

"I think that many times," he continued, an earlier recognition by business that it could not expect to go uncontrolled might have greatly affected the form of regulation."

He complained that in some instances since the SEC began to function, criticism invited from bankers had brought only blind objection to any control that would add any form of burden, but he added:

"It would not be fair, however, to leave the impression that this was characteristic of the general run of suggestions received."

Coffee Prices Break; Brazil-Colombia Rift

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—The collapse of the negotiations between Brazil and Columbia, in which an agreement was sought on price parity and control of coffee production, brought an end today to the coffee valorization scheme of the Brazilian government and the beginning of a vigorous competitive effort between the two South American countries, the principal producing nations of the world.

The action of the Brazilian finance minister in reducing the export tax on coffee 75 per cent—or from 2¼ to 1½ cents a pound, thus eliminating the Government's principal means of controlling the price of Rio and Santos coffees, was followed by a sharp break in the price of Brazilian coffee futures on the New York Stock Exchange.

Cotton Lower; December 7.66

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—December liquidation and hedging caused cotton to ease further today. March sold off from 7.81 to 7.69 and closed at 7.72 with final prices 9 to 22 points net lower.

The market opened 1 to 7 points lower in response to declines at Liverpool and under a holiday accumulation of hedging orders. Larger private crop estimates, easiness of other markets and a less optimistic outlook for business in 1938, as analyzed by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, influenced sentiment adversely. The pressure centered principally in December, which eased to 7.54, a net loss of 24 points and to within 4 points of the low for the season touched on October 8.

Brazil to Junk Scheme to Peg Price of Coffee

20,000,000 Bags Dumped on Market; Price of Futures in Nose Dive.

sist Brazilian growers to compete favorably in foreign markets.

Out of it all, however, the average housewife stood to gain little. Foreign dealers reported that the cost of roasting, packaging and distributing would maintain retail prices around current figures.

The collapse of the program was expected to solve Brazil's most pressing economic problem—a coffee crop for 1937-38 estimated at least 70 per cent in excess of the estimated demand at current prices.

Coffee is Brazil's greatest money crop and 52,547,493 bags of 132.24 pounds each have been destroyed since 1931 in an effort to effect a world balance.

Exports Were Cut.

The methods of destruction have been unique. Millions of pounds annually have been ground, pounded into bricks, sprinkled with tar and used as fuel for the Nation's locomotives. Other millions of pounds have been burned, more has been thrown in the sea.

This wholesale destruction meant money to the farmers. Where a generation ago Brazil sold 25,000,000 bags of coffee annually to the world, she has sold in recent years only between 12,000,000 and 14,000,000 bags. The difference—made up of inferior grades—was purchased by the government direct from the growers.

The better grades only have been exported. Every bag of coffee exported was taxed $2.70 when the cost of production averaged $1.50. This tax money paid the farmers for the coffee destroyed. The plan kept export prices up, kept the world supply down.

Year after year the program had the desired effect on world markets.

Other nations took notice, and many of them tried similar plans.

In the United States, the crop-control and price-control plans of the New Deal were modeled to some extent after the ambitious Brazilian coffe scheme. Methods in many instances varied, but the underlying principal was the same—to balance supply and demand.

Plan Cited in U. S.

Latest offshoot in America is the proposed "ever-normal granary" plan, affecting cotton, corn, wheat, tobacco and rice. The plan provides for the accumulation of surpluses in years of high production, this surplus to be sealed on the farm and held until it is needed to bolster prices in years of low production.

Time and again during Congressional discussion of the plan the success of Brazil's coffee program has been pointed out as an argument.

But Brazil's coffee plan became unwieldy with the passage of time and finally the cost became too great for the nation's treasury to bear. The export tax failed to balance with the payments to farmers.

And so the plan was discarded.

Just what will be done to offset the change was a matter of speculation. The official national coffee department said a reduction in the export tax from the present figure of $2.70 a bag to about 90 cents was "highly probable."

It also was indicated the finance ministry might reduce or eliminate exchange restrictions which have been keeping the export price high.

What effect Brazil's experience will have on control lans elsewhere—such as America's ever normal granary plan—remained to be seen.

Ex-Alley Scores Governor of Ky.

Harlan, Ky., Nov. 3 (AP).—While 41 Harlan County peace and election officers awaited their expected dismissal in county court here Friday on charges preferred by State highway patrolmen, Sheriff Theodore R. Middleton fired a verbal broadside today at his former political friend and ally, Gov. A. B. Chandler.

The sheriff and 13 of his deputies were among those jailed during yesterday's election by State police sent here by the Governor. All were released last night on bonds of $100. State police swore out warrants charging election law violations and violations of the gambling statuet.

Sheriff Middleton's signed statement termed Gov. Chandler an "ingrate" and "racketeer" and referred to use of troops and police as "peanut politics by a peanut politician."

Exports to China And Japan Drop

By the Associated Press.

Secretary of Commerce Roper disclosed yesterday that United States exports to China and Japan had dropped $12,500,000 between August and September.

In a special report on trade with the warring Oriental nations, Secretary Roper said September exports to China totaled $1,559,000 in September, as compared with $6,061,000 in August. Shipments to Japan dropped from $24,644,000 in August to $16,842,000 in September.

An abrupt decline in exports of iron and steel scrap, from $4,473,394 in August to $1,401,878 in September, was a major influence in the Japanese trade figures.

encouraging and as a rebuff to the New Deal.

House Minority Leader Bertrand H. Snell of New York, said that Republican gains of "12 to 14" seats in the New York Legislature and the fact that the G. O. P. forces won a seat in the national Congress while re-electing two other Republicans indicate that "the people are fully alive to the Roosevelt-Farley threat of a crushing centralized bureaucracy of political spoilsmen."

Hamilton Cites Barton.

Hamilton said he was particularly pleased at the victory of Bruce Barton, author and advertising man, as candidate for the House from New York City's "silk stocking district." Barton's predecessor was a Democrat.

In addition, the Republican chairman found encouraging signs in balloting for borough presidents in New York, the election of Thomas E. Dewey as district attorney of New York County and election of Republican mayors in Cleveland, Akron and Canton, over C. I. O. opposition in the last two cases.

While a Democrat (A. Harry Moore) was elected Governor of New Jersey, Hamilton attributed that result to the fact that the victor, as a member of the Senate, was an opponent of President Roosevelt's bill for reorganization of the Supreme Court.

Lewis said "the accomplishment of the American Labor Party in New York is outstanding." That party, closely allied with the C. I. O., polled 482,459 votes for LaGuardia.

"In Detroit," Lewis continued, "labor demonstrated its strength in its first test against the combined influence of massed wealth and an entrenched political machine. Labor in Michigan is prepared to expand the sphere of its influence in the future.

"In Pittsburgh, the election of Cornelius Scully as Mayor was a distinct triumph for labor. In a host of smaller communities throughout the country, labor was successful in electing its representatives to political office. Labor's Non-Partisan League will now devote its attention to preparation for the 1938 campaign."

G. O. P. Divided Over Off-Year Party Meeting

Borah, Townsend Condemn Proposal on Eve of Committee Decision.

'Hamlet' with Hamlet left out" He said the voters would have no representation in the convention—"simply the leaders"

"We have heard a great deal about usurpation and dictatorship in recent years," Borah said. "There could be no greater exaggeration of usurpation or dictatorship in politics than for a few self-selected, self-elected, self-accredited men undertaking to fix the principles and policies for 17,000,000 voters without ever having consulted the voters or received their indorsement in any way."

The Idahoan was sounded out by proponents of the plan weeks ago and registered his vehement opposition. On his way East, he passed through Chicago early this week and talked with Harrison Spangler, one of the sponsors, and other party leaders. Asked yesterday if he would accept appointment to the convention committee if offered, he merely smiled his skepticism.

Scoffs at Recall.

He said "nothing could be more impolitic and nothing more calculated to affront the voters than that of a few distinguished men assuming to commit the party to a set of principles or to outline the policy of the party" without any authority to do so.

"It has been stated that we could secure something in the nature of authority from the people by calling back the delegates to the Cleveland convention," he continued. "The work of these delegates, their views and their principles, lie beneath an avalanche of votes, buried, rejected. We do not want a voice from the tombs, but a fresh, new voice from the voters. Have not these men who are assuming to speak for the voters had their day in court and had their principles passed upon. The voters know well their views and theories, and have rendered judgment."

Replying to claims that the convention would deal only with "fundamentals," Borah said that if the conference failed to declare in some "detail" on the farm question, labor, Government expenditures, taxes and the budget, "we would be jeered from the Atlantic to the Pacific as unfit to have the reins of government."

Ballots Show Rising Power Of U. S. Labor

3d Party Aid to LaGuardia May Make it Decisive Factor in N. Y.

Rising power of labor in American politics emerged last night as the outstanding feature if Tuesday's off-year elections.

In New York, where Tammany for the first time in history suffered its second successive defeat, it was largely the ballots of the American Labor party, unheard of until a year ago, that swept Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia and his Fusion ticket to victory.

In Detroit, while Patrick J. O'Brien, C. I. O. candidate for mayor, was defeated, he and C. I. O. backed candidates for city council piled up a surprisingly strong total vote.

And in Pittsburgh, Mayor Cornelius D. Scully and the entire Democratic ticket carrying the indorsement of the C. I. O.-affiliated Steel Workers Organizing Committee, triumphed.

Labor Holds Balance.

With only a few scattered votes yet to be counted, the situation by State was as follows:

New York—The loosely-knit Republican-labor-leftist coalition headed by Mayor LaGuardia held historically Democratic New York City in triumph. LaGuardia polled 1,345,000 votes to 890,000 for Jeremiah T. Mahoney, his Democratic opponent. The American Labor Party turned in more than 400,000 votes for LaGuardia, and thus became a powerful third party which might conceivably claim to hold the balance of power between Democrats and Republicans.

Into office with LaGuardia went Thomas L. Dewey, 35-year-old special rackets prosecutor, elected district attorney of New York County (Manhattan), stronghold of Tammany, by a plurality of more than 100,000 votes over his Tammany opponent, Harold W. Hastings.

Bruce Barton, Republican, easily won the Congressional election in the Seventeenth Manhattan District, last represented by the late Theodore Peyser, Democrat.

G. O. P. To Rule Convention.

Republicans were returned to State assembly control for a third straight year, capturing 85 seats, largest majority in seven years, as against the Democrats' 61 and the American Labor Party's 4—the latter represented for the first time.

Republicans were also far ahead in seating a majority of delegates to the possibly potent 1938 constitutional convention. The convention meets next April to revise the State's organic law.

Michigan—The Committee for Industrial Organization failed by nearly 107,000 votes of attaining its objectives of "seizing the reins of government in Detroit." Richard W. Reading, backed by the American Federation of Labor, polled 260,957 votes to win the mayoral election from Patrick H. O'Brien, C. I. O. candidate. O'Brien's total vote was 154,050. Likewise the C. I. O. failed to place any of its five city council candidates on the nine-member body.

Earle Amendments Lost.

Pennsylvania—Mayor Scully of Pittsburgh was re-elected by 122,167 votes to 92,126 for Robert N. Waddell, Republican candidate. Scully's councilmanic ticket of five captured all contested seats in city council. Voters of Allegheny County registered a decisive "no" on a proposal to create a three-man utility administration and clothe it with power to buy up or compete with existing utility services.

In Philadelphia the Democratic organization made nearly a clean sweep. Only one judgeship, that of Common Pleas Judge Harry Kalodner, for whom Gov. George H. Earle had campaigned, went to a Republican candidate. Municipal Court Judge Theodore Rosen defeated Judge Kalodner, 350,379 to 339,038. Democratic candidates for four major city-county offices were elected.

tions, expressed disappointment at the order. He was the chief spokesman for the citizens associations at the public hearing and made a demand for a 5-cent fare, which the commission formally rejected in its order.

Clayton charged that the citizens had been "tricked" as they had been told that the merger of the Capital Traction Co. and the Washington Railway Co. would lead to a reduction in fares.

He also pointed out that the 50-cent minimum for token purchases would force many poor persons to pay cash.

Chairman Palmisano, of the House District Committee, appeared willing to accept the order and he scouted the idea of an intensive investigation of the company in Congress. He expressed the belief that the commission was authorized to act on such matters and that its verdict should be accepted.

Inquiry to Resume.

An inquiry was started by a subcommittee of the House District Committee last session, however, and is expected to be resumed under the chairmanship of Representative Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia. The probe is based on a Dirksen bill which would fix a minimum fare of seven cents and prohibit one-man cars and buses.

The 8 1-3-cent token rate is equal to the fare asked by the company in its original petition of June 19, 1936. This later was amended, however, to raise the rate to 8¾ cents, and the company fought for this throughout the hearing.

"It is the opinion of the commission that the interests of the public and the company can best be served by denying the company's request to fix the token rate at 8¾ cents," the commission stated.

It is of further opinion that a token of 8 1-3 cents would be a reasonable rate and would establish a fair differential between tokens and cash fare, and that it is the highest token benefit from which the company can obtain real financial benefit."

32 Per Cent of Riders Affected.

The order states that the aggregate number of passengers for 1937 is 156,209,271 and of this number 49,582,524, or 32 per cent, constitute token passengers "who may sustain an increase in fare."

"It is probable," the commission added, "that many of the passengers falling in this latter class will resort to the pass with a decrease in cost per ride over the existing token fare and that the remaining 106,626,747 passengers, or 68 per cent, will receive a reduction in fare by inauguration of the new token fare, with free universal transfers, or will not have their fare effected by this order."

The commission admonished the transit company that by improving its service—replacing older cars with new equipment—it could increase substantially its revenue.

"The financial benefits to be derived from good tracks and rolling stock cannot be questioned," the order stated. "Poor tracks cause damage to cars and vice versa. It is an established fact that new cars attract new riders."

"Firm Has No Monopoly."

"The company has no monopoly on transportation in the District of Columbia in view of the competition of private cars and low-rate taxicabs."

Admitting that the cash resources of the company had been depleted last year by the purchase of 71 buses and 45 street cars, the commission pointed out that the railway is controlled by the North American Co., "one of the largest holding companies in the country," which also controls the Potomac Electric Power Co.

"If the funds which may be obtained from local banking institutions are limited," the commission added, "there seems little reason, particularly in view of the financial condition of the company controlling the stock of the Capital Transit Co. and the ability of that organization to obtain adequate security for any sum which might be invested in new street cars or new buses, why sufficient funds should not be available to satisfy the streetcar requirements."

Dismissing the 5-cent fare proposal, the commission said:

"Upon all the evidence of record, the commission is satisfied that a universal 5-cent fare would result in no net income and would therefore cause impairment to the service rendered the public."

Bus Lines Affected.

Bus lines on which the fare will be reduced by the use of tokens are the Connecticut avenue express, the Massachusetts avenue, the Petworth-Chillum, the Potomac Heights-Foxhall Village, Sixteenth street, and Takoma express.

Lines on which the fare will be unchanged as they heretofore sold six tickets for 50 cents are: Burleith-Trinidad, Hyattsville-Laural and Rhode Island avenue.

Emphasizing the uniformity of rates and the universal transfers that were adopted with the hike in the token fare, the commission said:

"The commission for a substantial period of time has felt the need of uniformity in the basic rates of fare for street car and bus service and in transfer privileges, a view held by many of the citizens associations, and particularly those in territories served by buses on which a straight 10-cent cash fare, or a combination 10-cent cash fare and ticket fare, sold at the rate of 8 1-3 cents cash in groups of six, are in effect."

Firm "Regrets" Increase.

Defending the new increase in street car token fares and explaining what it will mean in "dollars and cents" to the average rider, E. D. Merrill, president of the Capital Transit Co., last night announced the change was made "with regret."

He also censured the Public Utilities Commission for its attack on the transit company's reputed failure to replace antiquated equipment.

Merrill said: "We are just as anxious as the Public Utilities Commission to improve our rolling stock and buy new cars. But we haven't hung back. I don't see that the P. U. C. is justified in saying we have been reluctant to seek funds to improve our system.

"The holding company," he continued, is under no obligation to loan out funds for us to purchase new equipment. Officers of the North American Co. must see that they invest their concern's money in a proper and wise manner. They are charged with the same responsibility as the officers of any investment company in connection with loaning funds. They must be certain that the loan is a good investment."

Merrill explained that the Transit Co. last year borrowed $1,000,000 locally to purchase new cars.

Riding Public Opposed.

The man on the street and most especially the man on the street car, doesn't think much of the increase. At least, that was what a reporter found last night.

Jack Smith, 913 H street northwest, Washington's No. 1 newsboy, said: "Looks to me like the company is doing all right now—I don't see where it's necessary for them to raise more money. Besides, Washingtonians are having enough trouble trying to pay all the rising prices and new taxes."

Boarding a Fourteenth street car, the reporter's next victim was Margaret Kreamer, 1322 Buchanan street northwest, young housewife. "I think the new one-man cars have thrown a lot of people out of jobs—they should be making enough money now as the result of payroll savings without having to raise the fare."

Philadelphia Cuts Fares.

Another housewife, Mrs. Sylvia Kardon, visiting here from Philadelphia and staying at 5855 Malvern avenue, said, "Back in Philadelphia, they are reducing the fares. I don't know much about the cars here but they don't seem to get you there as quick as they do back home."

Jimmy Cassidy, 809 Twenty-first street northwest, cab driver, was all for the new rates. "It's certainly going to help my business," he said. "That small difference will bring us a lot of customers that usually ride street cars."

Estelle Wainwright, 605 F street northeast, a waitress, was of the opinion that car service here fails to warrant increased rates. "The connections are so poor," she said, "I have to transfer at Union Station every night on my way home and the car just in front of me always starts off just before I can catch it."

"Those streamlined cars helped a lot," John Femig, 2523 Fourteenth street northwest, a carpenter, said, "but I don't think they should raise the rates yet. Anyway I use a pass and the token boost does not affect me."

Oppose One-Man Cars.

Gertrude Lewis, 114 Poplar street, Takoma Park, said: "I've been riding the cars here all my life. Now, it seems I have to stand up more than ever. Another thing is the way you have to wait for change on the one-man street cars. One man can't handle all of the passengers during the rush hours, and you just have to stand and wait. No, I don't think they should raise the fares now."

A bookkeeper, John Koval, of 1749 Columbia road northwest, said: "I fail to see any marked improvement in service on the cars—the present fare is enough. Now, more people will buy passes and that is just what the company wants."

Thomas Ellis Lodge, Federation president, said that while he considered any elevation of car fares "unfortunate," he did not "feel in the position to make a more comprehensive statement at this time."

Meanwhile, a number of riders were wondering why they couldn't buy more than four tokens at one time last night. One rider boarded a car at Fourteenth and F streets and asked for eight tokens. "Sorry, mister," the conductor said, "we can't sell more than four at a time." Asked why, he said, "All I know is it's new regulations."

Umbrella Judge and His Guest

Judge Tom McCarthy, of The Washington Post's "Umbrella Court of the Air," pictured with Robert Sutton, Washington Post newsboy, who was a guest on last night's program. Heard every Wednesday night over WMAL, 9 to 9:30 o'clock, the show last night played to a capacity audience that overflowed the seating facilities of N. B. C.'s largest studio. Requests for studio tickets should be addressed to Judge McCarthy, care of The Washington Post, and they will be mailed out for next Wednesday's show as long as the supply lasts.

H.M. Robinson, Adviser to Four Presidents, Dies

California Banker Refused Cabinet Posts; Served U. S. in War.

By the Associated Press.

Pasadena, Calif., Nov. 3.—Henry M. Robinson, 69, internationally known economist and banker and an adviser to four Presidents, died of a heart lesion here today.

The man who spurned Cabinet posts because he believed he could carry on welfare work better outside of public office, died in the Huntington Memorial Hospital, of which he was president. Injured in a fall last July, he was taken to the hospital October 17 and lapsed into a coma late yesterday.

At the deathbed were his wife, Mrs. Laurabelle Arms Robinson, and one of two brothers, Richard H. M. Robinson, Tuxedo, N. Y.

Robinson, known for his philanthropies and as an educator and friend of labor, spent many years in public service without holding office save for emergency wartime and postwar commissions. Presidents Wilson, Harding, Coolidge were his friends

Refused Cabinet Posts.

Wilson offered him the Secretaryship of the Interior and Harding and Hoover sought him for Secretary of the Treasury, but he declined. At Wilson's call he aided in establishing the wartime Council of National Defense, the War Industries Board and other wartime institutions. He became commissioner of the Shipping Board.

At the time of the armistice he served as a commissioner of the United States and member of the supreme economic council of the peace conference, later the first international labor conference. In the illness of Samuel Gompers, Robinson presented both the sides of busines and labor to the conference and won the thanks of the American Federation of Labor.

President Coolidge named him to the committee on the Dawes plan to rehabilitate Germany in 1924 and made him chairman of the American delegation to the Geneva International Economic Conference in 1927. He was a member of President Hoover's Stabilization conference, the National rought Relief Commission and the Organization on Unemployment Relief.

Born in Ravenna, Ohio, September 12, 1868, Robinson took part in development of the steel industry in Youngstown and later aided in merger negotiations which preceded creation of the United States Steel Corporation.

Served on Coal Board.

He moved to California in 1905 and engaged in development of lumber, oil, hydroelectric and telephone businesses.

Besides his wife and brother, another brother, Thomas L. Robinson, Long Island, survives.

WHEN you put your trust in GAWLER Service, you are assured a beautiful final tribute. This service is distinctive, but not expensive—as shown by the list below of 1,000 consecutive funerals.

In short, this list is assurance that a GAWLER-conducted funeral—of unforgettable beauty, reverence and smoothness — does not cost more, yet may cost less than you expect. We invite your trust.

This Record Helps Many Families:

As selected by Patrons, prices of 1,000 consecutive Gawler-conducted Adult Funerals were as follows:

128 Services	....Under $200
186 Services	....$201 to $300
212 Services	....$301 to $400
194 Services	....$401 to $500
135 Services	....$501 to $600
114 Services	....$601 to $900
31 Services	.....Above $900

We Invite You to use the New and Finer Gawler Establishment for services.

IN MEMORIAM.

LIGON, FULTON—Dedicated to the memory of my devoted friend, FULTON LIGON, that died one year ago today, November 4, 1936.

I want to see your loving face,
Since no one dear can take your place,
And where your body has been lain,
Virtue from mine have felt the same.

My life has never been the same,
Since on that eve the monster came,
And stole away your precious frame,
Which left me sad, lonely in pain.

I know that I shall meet you there,
When I have finished every care;
How happy, happy we shall be
To live with Christ eternally.
HIS DEVOTED FRIEND, NINA BLAIR.

Bob Burns Says—

I believe we'd get along a lot better if we just realized that we all need each other. Sometimes you see people that you kinda envy because you think they have just about everything, but if you stop to inquire, you'll find out that you've got a lot'ta things that they would like to have.

My Uncle Fotchy is a farmer down home, and one year he had a big, bumper crop but there was no market for it. One day he went to the bank to borrow some money and the banker says, "Why, you don't need no money!" He says "You've got plenty of butter and eggs and milk and all kinds of farm produce to eat!" and Uncle Fotchy says, "Yes, but you come back here four or five months from now and you'll see the fattest, sleekest and nakedest farmer you ever saw!"

Arms-Hungry British Seeking Franco's Favor

Trade Pact Being Sought to Protect Sources of Raw Materials.

By the Associated Press.

London, Nov. 3.—A rearmament program hungering for raw materials was seen tonight as a prime factor in negotiations reported nearing completion for a trade agreement between Great Britain and Insurgent Spain.

The British government was understood to be anxious to come to terms with the insurgents in order to block any possible Italo-German control of Spain's rich mercury, iron, copper and pyrites deposits if Generalissimo Franco should be victorious in the civil war.

Informed sources said it was "only natural" the government should desire trade relations with the authority controlling the larger part of Spanish territory where, incidentally, the bulk of Spain's valuable minerals are.

It was reported last night that under the terms of the agreement commercial missions and consular offices would be established in Britain and Insurgent Spain.

British spokesmen said the announcement of such an agreement would be the "subject of a joint announcement by the two parties if and when it is reached."

British have not forgotten a declaration by Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany that this country needed Spain's raw materials and they declared Britain needs them too.

Britain has been Spains' largest customer.

A softening of tone toward Generalissimo Franco has been evident here recently.

Quai D'Orsay diplomats in Paris reported there was a growing belief among them that Britain was seeking to have Franco break away from Italy and Germany.

WPA Education Units Will Meet Tomorrow

The second in a series of joint meetings for WPA education and recreation group will be held tomorrow at 9:45 a. m. in the auditorium of the North Interior Building, Commissioner George E. Allen, District WPA administrator, announced yesterday.

Speakers will include Mary Steele, director division of women's and professional projects; Maude E. Aiton, president of the adult education section; Dr. Garnet Wilkinson, assistant superintendent of public schools; Dr. H. C. Wilkerson, of Howard University; Dr. Winifred Richmond, chief psychologist, St. Elizabeths Hospital; Sibyl Baker, supervisor of playgrounds, and Adelia Boynton Hieney, of the National Research Center.

9-Power Parley 'Useless,' Italian Envoy Cries As Norman Davis Cites Danger of World War

allow the Brussels conference to break up without the embarrassing necessity of considering coercive measures against Japan.

The fate of the conference may be decided tomorrow at a restricted discussion among the actual signatories of the nine-power treaty to determine whether another invitation shall be sent to Japan.

Maxim Litvinoff, Russian foreign commissar, followed the Italian delegate's defiant speech with a plea that the conference not only re-establish peace in the Far East, but find the basis for "a real and just peace which will be a warning to future aggressors."

Litvinoff, speaking in halting English, revealed Russia's apprehension over the Nazi-Fascist-Japanese entente bordering on Russia.

"The unity of all peace-loving countries is particularly necessary when aggressor countries are becoming more and more united," he said.

China, fighting to obtain outright condemnation of Japan despite refusal of the United States, Britain and France to take any steps openly antagonizing Tokyo, served notice that her armies will continue to fight until "Japan halts her aggression."

Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese Ambassador to Paris, echoed the warnings of a general war unless "the rampant forces of Japanese aggression now are checked and faith in the pledged word is restored."

Davis and the other United States delegates were grave as Eden and Delbos stressed the fact that their governments "shared" the United States' determination to seek a peaceful solution of the Orient's troubles. It was obvious that Davis feared the British and French speeches would convey the impression that the United States was assuming leadership of the parley.

Ever since his arrival in Europe Davis has sought to banish any such interpretation.

Emphasizing that President Roosevelt has no intention of assuming a role of leadership, Davis said in his speech:

"We are here with a common concern and common purpose."

He added that the United States would not consent to any peace proposal involving the dismemberment of China.

Although it had been anticipated that Italy would support the Japanese side of the controversy, Count Aldrovandi-Marescotti's announcement that only direct negotiations between the two warring nations will be acceptable to Italy came as a jolting surprise.

Count Aldrovandi-Marescotti, referring to President Roosevelt's speech, said:

"There can be no question of any direct or indirect coercive measures being taken, nor can we speak more or less of a moral quarantine. It is only the parties directly concerned who are in a position to eliminate the underlying causes.

"Without Japan's participation here any discussion is useless and Italy makes the fullest reservations regarding efforts by the powers to adopt any resolution which would merely show that the nations are powerless to accomplish anything," he said.

Chinese Widen Lines, May Quit Shanghai Front

New Strategy Believed to Evacuate Industrial and Native Areas.

Apparent readiness of both sides to consider exclusion of the war at least from part of Nantao stimulated various hopeful theories that the conflict might move from war-beset Shanghai.

The proposed Nantao neutralization plan, originated by Father Jacquinot, the Catholic priest who heads the international refugee committee, provided for separate Chinese and Japanese agreements to demilitarize the area purely for humanitarian reasons. China would be bound to withdraw all military forces and Japan not to attack.

Copyright, 1937, by the United Press.

Shanghai (Thursday), Nov. 4.—Efforts of the powers, led by Britain, the United States and France, to neutralize Shanghai as soon as the long Chinese-Japanese battle around this city ends, have failed completely, reliable Japanese sources told the United Press today. Military reasons prohibit such neutralization, they said.

Duchess Resting After Operation

London, Nov. 3 (AP).—The Duchess of Gloucester, 35-year-old Scottish wife of the brother of King George, tonight was ordered by four royal physicians to take a month's rest following a minor operation this morning.

She will be confined to York House, where the operation was performed, on the second anniversary of her wedding to the third son of Queen Mary next Saturday. An official bulletin, signed by her doctors stated "Her Highness, the Duchess of Gloucester, underwent this morning a minor operation . . . A month's rest will be necessary. The general health of her royal highness is good."

Winthrop Ames Dies; Retired as Actor in '29

Boston, Nov. 3 (AP).—Winthrop Ames, 66, prominent for many years in Boston and New York theatrical circles, died of pneumonia today. A graduate of Harvard, Ames began his theatrical career in 1904. George Arliss played under his management at one time. In 1927 Ames headed a committee appointed to clean up the New York stage. He retired from active theater life in 1929.

Anti-Jewish Students Picket Polish University

Lwow, Poland, Nov. 3 (AP).—Strife among University students over "ghetto seats" broke into violence again today. Throughout the day gentiles picketed the doors of the university, polytechnic school and commercial college, forcibly barring Jews. Some Jews, however, fought their way inside. Police, who quelled an ensuing free-for-all, arrested several gentiles.

Here it is—Bottoms Up · · one of the famous Brown-Forman whiskies · · made in the slow, expensive way used for 67 years . . .

Like all the great Brown-Forman whiskies that have come out of Kentucky for 67 years—Bottoms Up is distilled in a way that demands more time—and more grain per gallon.

But when you taste the superb flavor of Bottoms Up—and feel its vigor—you'll understand why Brown-Forman has stuck to this slow and costly way of distilling whisky through all these 67 years.

Bottoms Up is a whisky you can stick to—and never weary of its taste. Give it a trial. You'll be more than pleased at its moderate price.
